Zoning change asked

Auto repair clinic sought for Dundee-Milwaukee site

by LYNN ASINOF

The abandoned gas station at the northwest corner of Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue may soon be replaced by an auto repair clinic.

Bernhard Brueggemann, contract purchaser for the property, is asking the village to change the zoning of the site to allow the repair clinic. Brueggemann Tuesday night presented plans for the proposed auto clinic to the Wheeling Zoning Board.

Members of the zoning board, however, were unsure if the zoning request was necessary. They said that the auto repair clinic might be classified as a public garage, which is allowed under the property's present zoning.

Brueggemann said he was requesting the new zoning because zoning administrator George Passolt had told him the new classification was needed for the repair clinic.

ZONING BOARD members continued the hearing until 8:30 p.m. Tuesday so they could check with Passolt on the appropriate zoning for the clinic.

If the repair clinic is classified as a public garage, Brueggemann will not need the approval of the zoning board to build the clinic. The village would then be rid of one of six abandonded gas stations.

Wheeling officials have tried repeatedly in recent years to avoid additional abandoned gas stations and to get rid of the existing abandoned buildings. Several times the zoning board has recommended denying zoning requests that would allow an abandoned gas station to be reopened.

Zoning board members have often stated that they are trying to upgrade Milwaukee Avenue by finding persons who are willing to convert the gas stations to different uses.

THE AUTO REPAIR clinic proposed Tuesday night would be restricted to engine and brake repairs. Brueggemann said he had no plans for any retail sales of automotive products except those that would be needed for repair work.

Brueggemann further assured the board that any outside parking of cars would be behind the building, out of sight from passing motorists. "We intend to replace the fence on the north side of the building," he said. "It would hold four cars easy. I think there will rarely be any cars sitting outsie overnight."

He said there would be three repair stalls in his new building. The clinic would not do any body work or major transmission work that would lead to the accumulation of junk on the property, he added.

The gas station on the property has been abandoned for nearly one year. Bill Bieber, director of building and zoning, said the Atlantic-Richfield Co., owners of the building, had proposed remodeling and enlarging the station, but did not have the proper zoning. He said the station was operating in the village before zoning ordinances for gas stations were enacted, and was only allowed to remain open under a "grandfather clause."

'Ghost' stations passing away

Abandoned gas stations are becoming a diminishing problem in Wheeling, according to Bill Bieber, director of building and zoning.

Although there are six gas stations that have been vacant for at least a year, Bieber said he has indications that several of the abandoned buildings will soon be sold for other uses.

"We are going out of our way to talk to people who want to buy them and change the uses," Bieber said. "The biggest need in the Northwest suburbs right now is professional offices."

Several years ago, the village discussed passing an ordinance that would require the demolition of abandoned gas stations. The ordinance was never passed, but the village building department instituted an informal program to get the abandoned building torn down.

BIEBER SAID HIS department last year sent letters to the owners of five vacant stations asking that the buildings be torn down. He said the owners, who responded to the letters, were either negotiating to sell their property or promised to clean up any debris so the buildings would meet village codes.

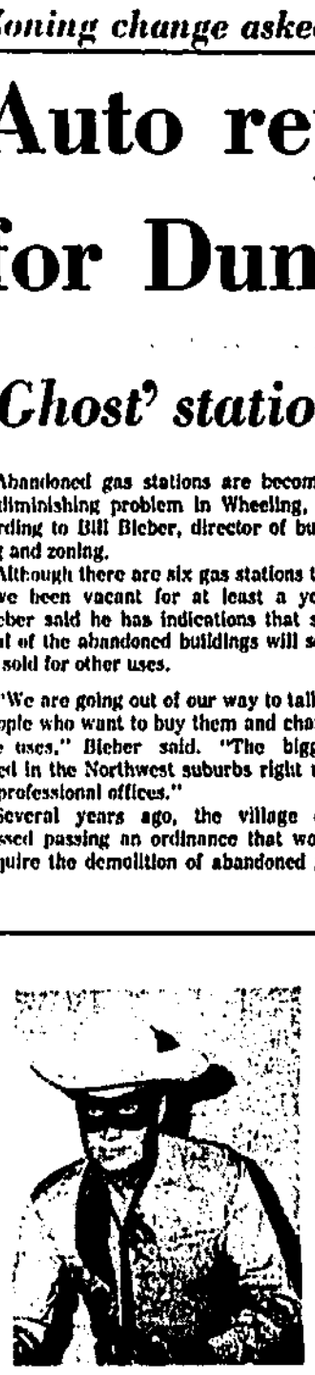

The building director said he has not pushed for demolition of the vacant gas stations. "All we're doing at this point is policing them, boarding them up and making sure there are no hazards," he said.

Although several of the owners of the vacant gas stations have asked to be allowed to reopen their stations, both the zoning board and the village board have denied their requests because of plans to upgrade Milwaukee Avenue.

Last year, the village denied zoning requests that would have allowed the old Enco station at 352 S. Milwaukee Ave. and the Phillips 66 station at 434 S. Milwaukee Ave. to reopen.

MEMBERS OF THE zoning board have repeatedly stated that they are looking for persons who will convert the abandoned property to other uses.

Bieber said the village now has nine operating service stations, and six abandoned stations. He said that at one time there appeared to be a big demand for gas stations, but said that demand is decreasing.

Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear . . .

Are Certs a candy mint, or are they a breath mint?

That question, so frequently asked on television commercials, was not part of the debate Monday when the High School Dist. 214 board agreed to buy 11,340 boxes of mints.

The purchase was part of a $35,799.07 contract for candy for the district's cafeterias. The district will also buy 893 cases of Twizzlers (licorice sticks), 206 boxes of Brach Mints, 144 boxes of Chuckles, 470 boxes of Reese Peanut Butter Cups, 197 boxes of Tootsie Rolls and various amounts of five other kinds of candy.

In stocking up the cafeterias for next year, the board also approved a contract for 4 million half-pints of white and chocolate milk, for $12,000 worth of bread and rolls and for $12,000 worth of ice cream.

The foods will be used in the district's eight schools.

"THESE GRIPS ARE a little loose," says Rich Haddock of the Wheeling Park District. Haddock was helping the youths get their bikes in shape for the upcoming bike safety clinic, beginning at 10 a.m., Saturday. After the clinic, a bike rodeo will be open to clinic participants. In case of rain the day's events will be next Saturday, June 16.

Summer programs still have openings

There still are openings in several summer programs being offered this year by the Wheeling Park District.

Registration for all activities is taken Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the park district office, 222 S. Wolf Rd. Fees for all programs are due at the time of registration.

A variety of sports and activities is available to children in playground programs offered at three sites. The programs at Twain School, Field School, Sandburg School and Heritage Park will be conducted from June 18 to July 23.

There are also spots still open in several instructional classes, including children's tennis, golf and guitar. Park district residents may also register for classes in horseback riding, camping skills and judo.

Adults with an artistic interest may sign up for a painting class, that will be conducted outdoors, or arts and crafts. There is also a class in flower arranging.

Registration is being accepted for the second sessions of classes in adult tennis and "swim and trim" for women.

Registration for all activities except women's 16-inch softball will be taken until the programs ae filled. The cutoff registration date for the women's softball program is June 13.

For murder of husband

Mrs. Carbona ordered to serve 20-60 years

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Ruthe Carbona was sentenced to from 20 to 60 years in an Illinois state penitentiary yesterday for the 1971 murder of her husband, Joseph, a Cook County Sheriff's Police lieutenant.

Cook County Criminal Court Judge Arthur L. Dunne imposed the sentence on Mrs. Carbona, 30, of 1762 Euclid, Mount Prospect, late yesterday afternoon, as the mother, sister and children of the defendant watched from the rear of the courtroom.

"Your husband is deceased, madam, and you have been found guilty of murdering him," Dunne told Mrs. Carbona.

"But I didn't do it," Mrs. Carbona answered.

In a long, tearful plea before the judge handed down the verdict, Mrs. Carbona said her husband was being investigated by the Illinois attorney general's office for official police misconduct shortly before his death.

CARBONA, 34, died in his Mount Prospect home the morning of Dec. 22, 1971, after being shot in the back with his police service revolver.

Mrs. Carbona said her husband had feared losing his job with the sheriff's police because "he drank and was violent." During the trial she had testified that her husband "drank a gallon of bourbon a week."

Mrs. Carbona named Morton Friedman, now chief of the Criminal Division for Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey, as the investigator for the attorney general who was looking into her husband's alleged misconduct in 1971.

Friedman yesterday told the Herald that he would have no comment on the allegations.

Mrs. Carbona's mother, Ruth Kuba, said Ralph Berkowitz, a special assistant state's attorney, also had been involved in the investigation of Lt. Carbona. But Berkowitz told the Herald he could not recall any investigation of Carbona while he worked for the attorney general.

Mrs. Carbona also told Judge Dunne that several of the witnesses in the case had lied because they feared harassment by sheriff's policemen. She said two sheriff's police investigators, Willard Staar and Howard Anderson, had threatened and gotten her fired from two jobs. She said the two policemen "said they'd get me even if you (Judge Dunne) didn't sentence me to jail."

SHE SAID ANOTHER sheriff's policeman, Glenn Richert, who testified in her behalf during the trial, had been transferred by sheriff's police several times since the trial and his assigned squad car had been taken away.

"He was my husband's best friend and he (Richert) knew how much he (Carbona) drank," she said.

Before imposing sentence yesterday, Judge Dunne said it was a "difficult decision" because Mrs. Carbona's young daughter and son would be deprived of their mother. But he noted that both children had testified that Carbona had been a good stepfather to them and that they loved him.

Judge Dunne allowed the two children, an 11-year-old girl and a 10-year-old boy, to see their mother briefly yesterday before she was sent to jail. The judge said the Mount Prospect woman's prison term began when she entered Cook County Jail May 9. On that date, a jury of seven women and five men found Mrs. Carbona guilty of shooting her husband in the back on the stairs of their home as he was attempting to leave her.

Defense attorney Sheldon Sorosky reiterated the defense's intention to appeal the case. Sorosky argued that jurors in the case believed they were finding Mrs. Carbona guilty of "a lesser charge" than "first-degree murder" in their verdict.

Sorosky argued motions for a new trial and for an arrested judgment before the sentencing, but Judge Dunne denied both motions.

Assistant State's Atty. Terrence Sullivan had asked the judge to impose a sentence of 30 to 90 years on Mrs. Carbona, while Sorosky had asked for the minimum 14-year sentence.

Arrest defendant's mother for 'harassment of juror'

Cook County Sheriff's Police arrested the mother of Ruthe Carbona yesterday outside the courtroom where Mrs. Carbona had been sentenced for murdering her husband.

Police arrested Ruth Kuba of Glenview for harassing one of the jurors who found her daughter guilty of murder. The charges relate to Mrs. Kuba visiting the home of a juror, Jane Florczak, 2525 Oak St., Northbrook, on May 23.

Police said Mrs. Kuba caused Mrs. Florczak "mental anguish and emotional distress."

Mrs. Kuba was to appear in court last night to have bond set on the charge. Assistant State's Atty. Terrence Sullivan said Mrs. Kuba had contacted several of the women on the jury since the trial.

Both Mrs. Kuba and Mrs. Carbona yesterday testified about the meeting with the juror in an attempt to have the judge approve a motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Kuba said she talked to Mrs. Florczak and asked the juror to write to the judge or come to court. She said the juror had told her the jury believed they were returning a verdict that was similar to manslaughter because of the wording of the murder verdict.

She said the juror believed Mrs. Carbona probably would be sentenced only to probation. She said Mrs. Florczak had been "friendly" and said the juror spoke to her "freely and voluntarily."

Labor strike settlement to increase home prices

Potential home buyers will find bigger price tags on new homes started this month and later on in the summer as a result of new construction trade settlements recently hammered out in Chicago

This projection by industry experts follows the announcement that construction workers are back on the job at most major Chicago area construction sites. A settlement between striking laborers and major area contractors, announced Tuesday night, ended a five-day laborers strike and one-day lockout by employers.

THE PROJECTION by home building representatives follows yesterday's announcement of details in the new two-year contract for laborers. A ratification vote by delegates in the laborers Chicago District Council was expected last night.

The laborers' new contract calls for a 40 cents an hour increase effective immediately; 40 cents an hour effective June 1, 1974; and 20 cents an hour to be added Dec. 1, 1974. The base pay for laborers is now $6.50 an hour in wages plus 65 cents in pension and 47 cents in health and welfare benefits. A 1 cent an hour industry promotion fee also will be paid by contractors under the agreement.

The contract was announced jointly by Joseph Spingola, president of the Construction and General Laborers District Council; and Robert W. Pancoe, chairman of the employer bargaining committee.

THE UNION BEGAN its strike and picketing last Friday in the dispute involving wages and work rules. Their contract, along with a number of other area construction trades, expired May 31. The union originally sought a 65 cents an hour increase in wages in a one-year contract.

The lockout by MARBA members began Tuesday morning. More than 15,000 laborers were affected by the strike, as well as more than 100,000 construction workers who honored their picket lines. An estimated $2 billion in residential, commercial, industrial and road building projects were closed during the dispute.

Construction was halted at many sites in Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane, Kendal, McHenry, Will and Boone counties. The smaller Marble Setters Union, which also called a strike last Friday, was reported close to a settlement on Wednesday.

TED DOUFEXIS, executive director of the Residential Construction Employers Council said the settlements with bricklayers and teamsters in all eight counties and the carpenters in Will County have not been resolved. RCEC is among the contractor associations represented in MARBA, the contractor bargaining group.

"We've made some settlments we think are fairly satisfactory," he said of new contract work involving ironworkers, laborers, cement finishers and other trades. The public will have to absorb the higher costs of labor and other, he said.

"In some contracts it was a 5.5 per cent increase," said Doufexis. "In other contracts, there were cost savings in work rules, so the public will have to absorb something less than that."

"What it means is that everybody's costing department has to figure out what this will cost in terms of the number of hours for each trade spent on a house," he continued. Doufexis estimated that price boost for new housing may run "from $500 on a 'cheaple house' to $1,000 and more on a more expensive house."

ROBERT ROSNER, president of the Hoffman Estates based Hoffman-Rosner Corp., said Wednesday that no definite price increases have been figured out by his firm. Prices will have to be raised to reflect rising labor and other costs, he added.

At the company's Westlake development of single-family and multi-family units in Bloomingdale, prices were raised about $1,000 a unit earlier this spring. A similar price hike could be effected in the near future as a result of the new labor contracts, he said. Prices range from $18,000 to $19,000 on single-family units at Westlake and $24,000 to $39,000 on multi-family units.

Lumber prices have skyrocketed in the past year, Rosner said, in some cases increasing by 60 per cent. Land and improvements costs are also rising. Poor weather conditions have delayed construction work and added to the problem, he said.

"Rising prices always cut some people out of the market," Rosner said. He predicts that condominiums and other multi-family units will continue to gain in popularity as an alternative to more expensive single family homes. The use of more efficient floor plans and metal rather than wood materials in some components of home construction can cut the cost of new housing, he said.

All construction industry contracts must be approved by the federal Construction Industry Stabilization Committee. The administration guideline of 5.5 per cent annual pay increases is "as much of a hindrance as a help," commented one industry negotiator.

Palatine could profit from building stadium for hockey

by JULIA BAUER
A news analysis

When it was learned yesterday that Palatine officials are considering buying land and building a professional sports stadium on Northwest Highway, the big question was why.

Publicly-owned sports stadiums are springing up around the country, and they generally have one thing in common: they're successful.

And success to the government that runs such a stadium means a healthy income from ticket sales, concessions and rentals. Such income is far greater than the government would get from property taxes on a privately-run stadium built on the same property.

Walter and Jordan Kaiser, part owners of the Chicago Cougar professional hockey team, have been eyeing a 40-acre site just north of Arlington Park Race Track in Palatine for more than a year. Last month, the Kaisers approached Palatine village officials, asking them if they would be interested in purchasing the site already owned by the Kaisers, northeast of the Northwest Highway-Rte. 53 intersection.

The Kaisers have been planning to move the Cougars to a new stadium in the Northwest suburbs for months. The Palatine location, near an ice rink and tennis facility already owned by the Kaisers, is accessible from both the Rte. 53 freeway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station at Arlington Park Race Track, across the street from the site.

The proposed stadium would cost between $20 million and $25 million, with an 18,000 seat capacity. The Cougars now play in the International Amphitheater, where the lease expires in two years. It is expected to take almost two years to build the stadium.

All discussions so far have been behind closed doors. An initial meeting between Kaiser and Palatine board members resulted in Village Mgr. Berton Braun investigating ways that the village could finance the project. He and Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be looking into the legal, policy and local impacts of the village buying the land and possibly constructing the stadium itself.

"We'll make sure that it's mutually beneficial to both the Kaisers and the village," Village Pres. Wendell Jones said yesterday. Two more closed sessions are planned in the next 10 days. On June 14, village trustees will meet to rehash the discussion of last Tuesday, then on June 18, Jones and the rest of the board will talk again with the Kaisers. Between now and then, the village will "be doing its homework," Jones said.

Palatine has an impressive lineup of alternatives if it does plunge into the sports arena business. Three different sports centers in this county all house professional hockey teams, and each has a different way of running its arena.

City officials in Bloomington, Richfield, and Minneapolis, Minn., allied in the early 1950's to buy a large site in Bloomington and convert it into a baseball field and parking lot. That move was a successful effort to lure the Washington Senators to Minnesota. They're now the Minnesota Twins.

THEN SIX years ago, the three-town commission decided to get football and hockey into the act. Since the cities already owned enough land for the second structure, they allowed a private corporation to build the ice facility at the other end of the parking lot for the Minnesota North Stars.

For the corporation, the big drawback to building on public land was that it couldn't mortgage any of the land to finance the construction of the $6 million building, according to stadium controller Orrin Wichelmann.

The towns receive no rent from the building. But each month, Bloomington gets credited for a certain percentage of the income on events in the arena. When the village's "account" totals the corporation's cost of building the rink, the structure will become village property.

"We expect that it will take 22 to 24 years before we reach that amount," Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 undtr the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.

First OK for 'senior' units

An 80-unit apartment project for senior citizens passed its first hurdle when the Wheeling Zoning Board recommended granting apartment zoning for the property at 628 McHenry Rd.

Zoning board members, however, asked that the village board investigate whether the 2.76 acres in question are located in a flood plain. The North Cook County Water and Soil Conservation District has recommended denying the zoning request if the property is in the plain.

BILL BIEBER, director of building and zoning, told the board that the property is no longer in the flood plain. He said the channel of Buffalo Creek, which borders the southern edge of the property, was moved when the Hollywood Ridge subdivision was developed some years ago.

According to Bieber, the conservation district is still using flood plain maps from 1957 which do not show the creek changes.

The project, proposed by contract purchaser Charles Petrungaro, would consist of 60 one-bedroom apartments and 20 efficiency units. Petrungaro and his associate Nick Phillips are also seeking reductions in the floor space required by village codes.

PETRUNGARO TOLD the board Tuesday night these reductions were needed to keep the rental rates at a level that senior citizens can afford. "We want smaller units at a rent structure that these people can afford," he said.

The developer said the project would have one building divided into four sections by courtyards and canopies. He said this design was necessitated by the sloping elevation of the property. He said each section of the two-story building would be built on a separate terrace.

Petrungaro said that although water retention is not required because the property is under five acres, he plans to build a one-acre retention pond on the southern part of the site.

The project also requires a reduced lot area, according to developers. "We are trying to relate the land costs to the building costs and get a few more units on the property to justify the construction costs," Petrungaro said.

A FOURTH variation requested by Petrungaro would reduce the required parking spaces from two per unit to 1½ per unit. The developer said that because the project was being designed for senior citizens, there would be fewer cars used by the occupants than normally estimated.

"We could provide more parking," Petrungaro said. "But we would have to reduce the landscaping." The developer said he thought the landscaping was important because of the need for terracing and because the property would be used by senior citizens.

Petrungaro said he anticipates charging $165 rent for the one-bedroom units and $145 rent for the efficiency units. He said the occupants would pay their own electric bills.

When asked whether people other than senor citizens would be allowed to rent apartments, Petrungaro said they would. He noted, however, that the apartments would be too small to attract young married couples, and said two unmarried people would not be allowed to share apartments.

PETRUNGARO SAID that at a similar project in Franklin Park, 45 per cent of the units are occupied by persons over 62 years old with most of the other tenants ranging from 45 to 55 years in age.

The developer said he preferred to build projects for senior citizens because they cause fewer problems. "You don't have the hustle and bustle you have with the young people," he said. He also noted that many older tenants like to do minor repairs themselves instead of relying on the janitor.

Petrungaro said he had contacted both the school district and park district about the project. He said neither objected to the project, but a more detailed presentation will be made to both groups in the near future.

The zoning board unanimously recommended granting both the apartment zoning and requested variations. Zoning board member Alan Martin was absent from the meeting.

Riley PTA to assist handicapped

Riley School PTA in Arlington Heights is helping handicapped children in School Dist. 21 get a head start on school.

The group recently donated $35 to be used to purchase supplies for children with language development problems. These children attend special preschool classes in the district.

The class is one of several provided free by the district to children within its boundaries who have mental or physical handicaps that prevent them from attending regular preschools.

Dist. 21 serves Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and portions of Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights.

A TEAM of specialists, including a psychologist, social worker, nurse and speech therapist is available to interview and test local children who might be eligible for special preschool classes.

Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 psychologist has said it is sometimes possible for handicapped children who attend the special preschool classes to later join regular classes. He has said the earlier children with disabilities receive special attention, the greater the chance that they will be able to overcome their problems.

Wynn recommends parents of a handicapped child in Dist. 21 contact the Special Services office as soon as possible to have the child tested in order to enroll the child in classes next fall. The office, at 999 W. Dundee Rd. in Wheeling, will be open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. throughout the summer.

Based on the results of the screening, the evaluation team will recommend what type of preschool training will be best for each child. Classes are conducted at Kirk Center in Palatine, Clearbrook Center in Rolling Meadows and other schools for handicapped children in the Northwest suburbs.

Dist. 21 is partially reimbursed for the cost of providing preschool training for local children with disabilities by the state. The district will also pay the cost of transporting students.

Fun fair Saturday at Alcott School

Alcott PTA will sponsor a fun fair Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, 530 Bernard Dr. in Buffalo Grove.

Several games will be featured, including a shooting gallery, bean bag, fish pond, shoot the chute, pick a ticket, hi striker and bumper car.

Refreshments will be cotton candy, snow cones, hot dogs and soft drinks.

Proceeds from the fair will be used to purchase equipment for the school.

School news notes

LAURIE RAY, fifth grade student in Sue Harris' class at Kilmer School recently received the citizen-of-the-month award.

The sixth grade student who was honored at the same time was Chelle Hall, a student in Jeanine Belliston's class.

FIRST GRADERS in Betsy Szabo's class at Hawthorne School recently compiled a booklet of poems about beauty of spring.

Some of the selections included are Steven Proksa's "I Like to Look at the Lovely Flowers and to Play, Too;" Carrie Sitko's "I Like Spring" and Louis Tenore's "Tulips Are Lovely."

BARBARA KLEIN'S fourth, fifth and sixth grade students at Hawthorne School recently developed their own unit on pollution as part of the environmental education studies.

Several of the students designed stop pollution posters and put them up around the building. A group of boys also created a 2½-foot model of a "garbage gobbler" and placed it near the school entrance to be used to collect litter.

With the help of Ray Hoffman, an intern teacher, three of Mrs. Klein's students prepared a lesson on pollution which they will teach to their classmates.

Another group of boys did their share in promoting pollution control by cleaning litter from the school playground.

At the end of the study unit, Mrs. Klein's students took a field trip to a forest preserve to assess the amount of litter, water, air and noise pollution in our local recreational facilities.

Florida singing group to perform today

"The Spokesmen," a singing group from Florida Bible College in Hollywood Beach, Fla., will present a concert at the Wheeling High School theater today at 7:30 p.m.

"The Spokesmen" is a group of five singers and two accompanists, who have traveled in the United States and Canada presenting concerts in high schools and colleges. They have released three albums, and their latest was released last fall. This will be their only concert in the Chicago area.

Appearing with "The Spokesmen" will be the "Bold Generation," another singing group from the college.

Admission is free and the public is invited.

Nightmare in an elevator: driver trapped 40 minutes

A United Parcel Service driver was trapped for 40 minutes yesterday in a downtown Des Plaines elevator.

Herbert Harbison, 23, of Evanston, was freed about 11:30 a.m. from the two-floor elevator at the Mandas Building, 770 Lee St. by Fire Prevention Bureau officials.

"Boy, am I glad that's over," said Harbison, a daily delivery man at the building. "From now on I'm going to walk the stairs. I won't take any chances."

Harbison was caught between floors about 10:50 a.m. when the elevator "started thumping ... boom, boom, boom. It just wouldn't go anywhere."

Employes in the building called police and fire officials when Harbison sounded the emergency alarm in the elevator.

AN EMERGENCY fire-police key was missing from its storage box near the elevator. Inspection of the building found no emergency exits from the elevator.

"It's a completely closed system," firemen told fire prevention bureau officials who arrived about 11:20 a.m. "There's no way in or out other than the door."

"You're not holding the 'stop' button?" one of the firemen asked the trapped driver.

"Jump around in there — maybe it will come unstuck," another suggested.

While firemen searched for the elevator power source, building owner Peter Mandas approached the closed doors with a hedge trimmer.

"Pete, you'll do more damage than good trying to pry those doors open," firemen said.

"Damage is damage. We've got to get him out," Mandas said.

THE ELEVATOR doors popped after fire officials switched the power on and off, resetting the opening system. Smiling Harbison was sitting on the elevator floor.

Harbison was cheered by the information that "we called your office. They'll pay you for the time."

"I'm about an hour behind schedule. That means overtime at $9 an hour. Maybe there's some profit in this after all," he said while completing his delivery — via the building stairs.

Village to get new fence, recreation zoning laws

The Wheeling Village Board has directed the village attorney to draw up two zoning ordinances. One will allow recreational facilities to come under industrial zoning, while the other clarifies the village code on fences.

The ordinance alowing recreational facilities under industrial zoning was requested by Bill Bieber, director of building and zoning. Bieber said that if the ordinance was changed, the village might be able to attract developers of recreational clubs and facilities.

Bieber also requested the change in the village fence ordinance so it will be easier for residents to understand. The ordinance would allow four-foot chain fences from the front of the house to the front property line. All other fences in front of the house could not exceed three feet.

Currently all fences from the front of the building to the front property line can be only three feet. Bieber said this is not high enough to keep small children or dogs from jumping the fence.

Under the new ordinance, all types of fences from the front building line to the rear property line could exceed six feet. This part of the ordinance will not be changed in substance, but the wording will be simplified for easier understanding.

IN OTHER business, the village board approved the second payment of $2,470.50 to the M-W Construction Co. for work on the Anthony Road storm sewer.

It also passed an ordinance praising the Wheeling Jaycees for their work in the community. Following regular board business, the trustees met in closed session to discuss litigation and personnel.

ROTC awards parade tonight at Wheeling High

Ex-POW, Lt. Cmdr. Joseph Charles Plumb Jr., will serve as reviewing officer tonight at the annual Naval Junior ROTC awards parade at Wheeling High School.

The ceremonies are to begin at 7 p.m. in the football stadium. The ROTC Parents Association will host a reception in the school cafeteria after the parade.

Lt. Cmdr. Plumb, a naval aviator, was shot down while on a combat mission over North Vietnam in May of 1967. He was flying an F-4 Phantom jet of Fighter Squadron 114, operating from the aircraft carrier, Kitty Hawk. He was released by the North Vietnamese earlier this year.

A 1964 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Lt. Cmdr. Plumb was on his first duty assignment when he was shot down. He is a native of Gary, Ind.

Lt. Cmdr. Plumb will present various awards to cadets, including the Distinguished Cadet, Honor Cadet and aptitude awards.

Also included in the ceremonies will be the unit change of command. Cadet Lt. Cmdr. Vincent Mastandria has served as unit commander the past year. He will be relieved by Cadet Ensign Paul Scheffel, who served as public affairs officer this year.

THE HERSEY HIGH SCHOOL campsite last week was the front lawn of the school as students in the social science department's "Mind-Expanding Soul-Expression Co-Educational Alternative School," practiced their tenting skills.

'Alternative school' mind expanding

by WANDALYN RICE

The last few weeks of school when the sun is out and graduation is in sight are usually near torture for high school students.

But at Hersey High School for the last 2½ weeks, 350 juniors and seniors taking psychology and sociology classes have been part of a "Mind-Expanding Soul-Expression Co-Educational Alternative School."

The alternative school developed after student Joe Shephard went up to teacher Robert Hannon and said he dared him to make school interesting for three weeks.

"I was getting tired of school," Shephard explained last week, as students went in and out of the room that serves as the alternative school's headquarters on their way to camping, dance, chess and knitting classes.

THE ALTERNATIVE school was planned by a group of students with the help of Hannon and fellow teachers Jim Allen and Chuck Birch. Other psychology and sociology teachers agreed to allow students in their sections to participate until all but two classes were involved, the teachers said.

The students had been studying educational systems in sociology class, Birch explained, and tried to use what they knew to create the new school.

"We decided we weren't satisfied with the school as it is now," Jeff Samaras, one of the planners, said. "It doesn't teach you practical things you can use in life. It teaches things like algebra equations."

The basis of the alternative school is that students sign up to teach things they are interested in and other students can then ask to be taught. On a recent afternoon, tents were set up on the school lawn for a camping class taught by one of the teachers; students listened to a folk singer in a large classroom and other students were taking part in other activities.

Students who didn't want to take part in those kinds of activities may do independent study or stay in a traditional classroom. As one student explained, "Students don't have to take part. You can't force it on anyone."

PARENTS ALSO have been notified of the program, Birch said, and many have been very interested in it. The mother of one student is teaching the knitting class.

Birch and his students agreed the most important things being taught in the alternative school had little to do with the subject matter of the particular classes, however.

"One student was teaching me art," Birch said, "and as he talked, he was talking pure psychology."

Students said other discussions have gone on during various classes on topics ranging from religion to sex. "Before I just talked to the few kids who were my friends," Samaras said. "Now you can talk to everyone and get everyone's ideas."

Birch added, "Over a game of chess, I've had a dialog with kids that wouldn't have occurred in a regular class."

THE FIRST few days of the alternative school weren't easy, however, because students weren't sure what to do or how far the teachers really would allow them to go, Birch said.

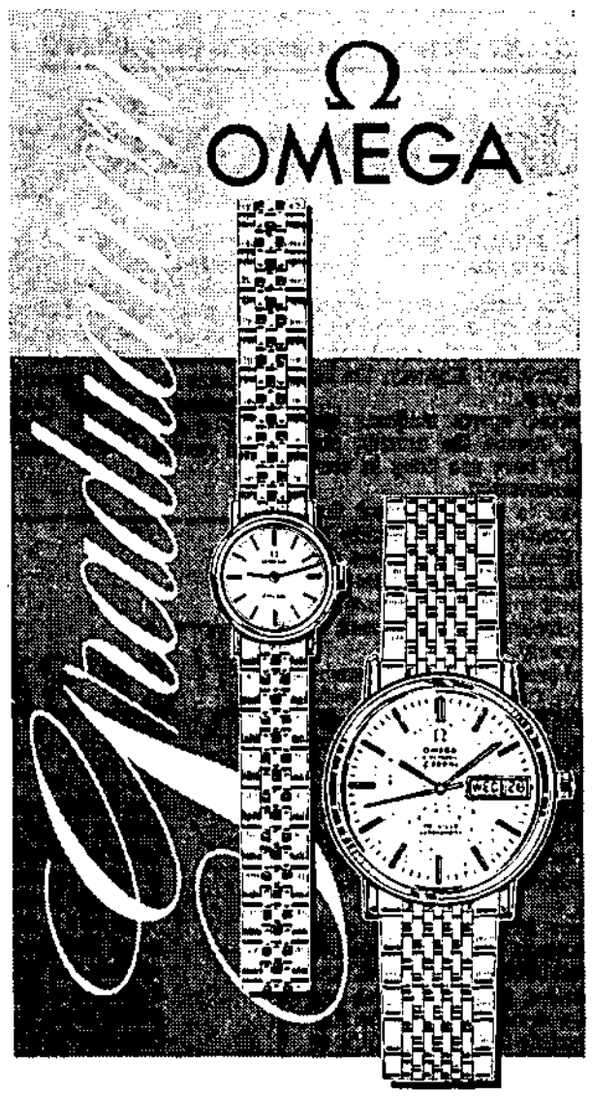

Joyce Bruzzini, another student planner, explained, "We're so used to being tied down that when freedom was given we didn't know what to do. Things were really tense at first."

The students also agree that attending the alternative school during their social science classes and free periods means there is a jolt of readjustment when they return to regular classes in subjects like math and science.

"It's really hard to make the adjustment back," one boy said, "because in other classes you're forced into things."

Hersey's administrators have been cooperative with the program, the teachers said, and Dist. 214 Supt. Edward Gilbert has come over to see the alternative school in operation.

SETTING UP A TENT on the front lawn of Hersey High School was one of the activities undertaken by the camping class being offered through the "Mind-Expanding Soul-Expression Co-Educational Alternative School." The "school" has been offered for and by students in the sociology and psychology classes for the last three weeks of the year.

Sen. Charles H. Percy

Spiro T. Agnew

Nelson Rockefeller

Percy an 8-1 shot, Greek says

STATELINE, Nev. — Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, though ranked fifth among Republicans as a possible Republican presidential nominee, is now rated third by Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder.

Snyder rates Percy an 8-1 contender behind Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

The oddsmaker considers Agnew the clear favorite, rating him at 1-3, while listing Rockefeller at 3-1.

He puts California Gov. Ronald Reagan at 20-1, but did not rate White House consultant John Connally of Texas, newly converted Democrat.

Snyder also predicted that Reagan would forego an attempt at the nomination to support Agnew.

He figured a race between Agnew and any Democrat "a tossup bet."

House OKs bill to bypass indictments

A bill eliminating the requirement for grand jury indictments before trying an accused felon has been passed by the Illinois House of Representatives.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, would not bar the use of grand juries. But it would give prosecuting attorneys the option of proceeding against accused criminals without an indictment, if a court rules following a preliminary hearing that there is probable cause for prosecution.

Duff estimated that prosecutors would use the preliminary hearing method in more than 90 per cent of criminal cases.

"The taxpayers," Duff said, "will save a great deal of money under this system. Even more important, the defendant who cannot raise bail will not have to languish in jail while awaiting trial since the new system expedites the judicial process."

The bill, now before the Senate, passed the House by a vote of 139-3, with one voting present.

Duff has noted in the past that an extremely high percentage of cases presented to grand juries result in indictment and that the grand jury system is subject to great abuse by prosecutors.

He said discouraging the use of the grand jury would end some of these abuses.

Duff also pointed out that 25 of the 50 states have abolished grand juries altogether or adopted systems similar to that proposed in his bill.

Rep. Brian Duff

The bill also would give prosecuting attorneys the option of issuing summonses instead of arrest warrants "in what he feels are marginal cases . . . and the prosecutor is solicitous for the defendant's reputation."

Crane urges haste on Salt Creek plan

Quick action on a proposal to reduce flood damage along the Upper Salt Creek Watershed has been urged by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, in a letter to Director Roy Ash of the U.S. Office of Management and Budget.

Plans for the project call for 1.6 miles of channel improvement in Rolling Meadows, immediately north of Ill. Rte. 58; construction of five floodwater retarding structures in Palatine Township; and development of a 261-acre facility for flood prevention and recreation in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

Cost of the project, being developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is estimated at $25 million, with $12 million to come from federal funds.

The project would encompass a 52-square-mile area in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties, and Crane called it "essential if flood damage is to be curtailed . . . in the future."

In his letter to Ash, he said flood damage in the area will average over $850,000 annually until the project is completed. The Department of Agriculture has estimated the project will take nine years after it receives congressional approval.

He said approximately 1,940 acres in the watershed are now subject to flooding. Sponsors of the plan include Elk Grove Village; the Village of Schaumburg; the City of Rolling Meadows; the Village of Palatine; the Palatine, Schaumburg, Salt Creek and Elk Grove park districts; the State of Illinois; the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago; the Cook County Forest Preserve District, and the North Cook Soil and Water Conservation District.

Flood damage may cut assessments

Illinois residents whose property was damaged by severe flood this spring have been encouraged by the Illinois Department of Local Government Affairs to apply for reduced property assessments.

Property damaged by floodwaters may be assessed at the value as of the date that areas of Cook and other counties were declared a disaster area, according to Frank A. Kirk, director of the department.

Portions of 47 counties were included in the disaster declaration, qualifying property owners there for possible tax relief.

Owners of damaged property must apply to the county supervisor of assessments to be eligible for the reduced assessments.

The Lone Ranger—he's Mr. America

by BARRY SIGALE

There he was, by golly, as big as life. The Lone Ranger, himself

Sporting a powder-blue Wild West outfit replete with sleek black boots, snappy red scarf, pure white hat, powerful twin single-action Colt 45s and the crowning glory, the symbol of the great champion of justice and all that is decent and good in America . . . a pair of sunglasses?

Ugh. Kemo Sabay! A pair of everyday, everybody's-got-'em - even-the-bad-guys-and you-know-what-can-happen-to-the-country now shades. Could it be that suddenly the Masked Rider of the plains had been demasked? Then who would protect us from the evil in men's minds?

There's a happy ending, of course, especially for any children who might have read this and believed the Lone Ranger is in trouble and for adults who still are convinced television's greatest hero really did exist.

THE ORIGINAL, all time good guy in a white hat has stepped right out of his television reruns into the zany and sometimes hokey world of advertising and commercials. And while making a personal appearance at a Dodge Corp. dealership in Morton Grove last Friday he wore the sunglasses until someone could find his mask

Times have changed, no doubt. They're not making Lone Ranger episodes anymore and until the recent surge by nostalgia buffs there hasn't been a need for the super law-and-order man to do his thing.

Now, the Lone Ranger is endorsing everything from after-shave lotion to pizza rolls to pickup trucks in a masterful campaign to equate products with the air-tight, do-good image that Clayton Moore has projected as the man behind the mask

You may be able to take Clayton Moore out of the Lone Ranger but you can't take the Lone Ranger out of Clayton Moore For 24 years, Moore has been the Lone Ranger, upholding the image of patriotism for which the character stands Indeed, he has not accepted another role since he became the television hero

EVER SINCE six Texas Rangers set out to round up the notorious Hole-in-the-Wall gang of Butch Cavendish only to get ambushed, the Lone Ranger has been a huge success Only one man survived the onslaught and the Lone Ranger was born

The ranger awoke from the battle and found himself in a cave being attended to by an Indian. The Indian explained how he had rescued the ranger and buried his dead companions. Finally, he identified himself.

"Me, Tonto," the Indian said.

"What of the other Rangers?" asked the ranger. "They were all my friends. One was my brother."

"Other Texas Rangers all dead," replied Tonto. "You only Ranger left. You lone ranger now."

Invariably, the Lone Ranger, who fashioned his mask from the vest of his brother, killed in the ambush, was regarded by the people he was to help as a bad guy.

In last Sunday's television rerun, the Larabee brothers, seeking wealth in the lucrative West, felt the Lone Ranger was out to rob them of their riches. But in the end, the masked man and justice won out, the Lone Ranger defeated the bad guy, Hard Rock and rode off into the sunset on his horse, Silver, and faithful Indian companion, Tonto.

THE SERIAL was a huge success on radio and was brought to television in 1949. The show ran through 1956 but the character still lives on.

Moore is so wrapped up in his part that soon it is obvious to tell he is a God, motherhood and apple pie pusher. He came blazing into the Golfview Dodge showroom last Friday with exuberance and was both serious and kidding in his role.

Sunglasses and all, the Lone Ranger drew his guns on several salesmen. Being rusty, (giving him the benefit of the doubt) he dropped one of the guns on the floor. Quickly he drew the other gun to protect himself while he picked up the first weapon.

All the while, the salesmen acted amused. Some of them even giggled although, in fairness, it was a hot day and there weren't any customers, just some kids waiting with their parents to see the Lone Ranger.

A LONE car sat in the middle of the showroom while a photographer set up his equipment at one end. They were taking pictures of anyone wanting to pose with the Lone Ranger. The pictures were free, compliments of Golfview Dodge.

"There'll be no pictures without my mask," the Lone Ranger said in that familiar voice that stretches an octave higher than the average voice. "My identity must remain a secret."

Then he tugged and tapped on the children waiting to see him. "Hello, pal, how's school?" he would say. "Have you been brushing your teeth? Good luck in school and study hard." To other youngsters he would say, "Hi, Kemo Sabay" and, with feeling, "Who is that masked man?" and "Hi-Yo, Silver, Awa-a-ay!" You could just hear William Tell's Overture in the background. For everyone there were autographed pictures and what passed for silver bullets.

BUT, WHO IS THAT masked man, anyway?

"The Long Ranger stands for morality, fair play, honesty, Americana, law and order," said the Lone Ranger. "His image has never changed. He's still the good guy in the white hat."

Doesn't the image become tarnished because of the commercials?

About the Aqua Velva spots the Lone Ranger said, "Whenever the Lone Ranger goes after outlaws he must be clean of body and clean of mind. You must never ridicule or go after the Lone Ranger. It's too serious to me and Jay Silverheels (Tonto)." The Lone Ranger said the Jeno's Pizza Rolls commercial was harmless and, of course, the Dodge Boys are good guys in white hats, too.

WHY HAS THE television show remained so popular all these years?

"Outside of being Americana it's the goodness of the program," the Lone Ranger said. "For example, the Lone Ranger never jumps on an outlaw when he's down. The Lone Ranger never shoots to kill, only to wound or disarm."

Just then, the Lone Ranger noticed a boy walking to the picture-taking area with a holster and guns and said, "Look at that gunbelt on that kid. That's young America. He'll make this country safe some day." Then he added, "Anybody can be a Lone Ranger. A good guy, a good-doer, anybody who likes people is a Lone Ranger."

Is television too violent?

"Yes. And there aren't enough heroes anymore," the Lone Ranger said. "We need more of the good guys back again. We have talked about coming back again to television but it's only in the talking stages."

How old are you?

"The Lone Ranger is ageless. He'll go on year after year, God willing."

Well then, how do you keep in good health?

"I jog, swim, eat vegetables and brush my teeth."

MOORE GOT THE Lone Ranger part when he was picked from about 200 actors. "I was proud to accept the role and I'm a better person for it," he said. Except for 26 shows in 1953 when he had contract problems and the deeper-voiced Jon Hart took over, Moore made more than 200 shows and two full-length motion pictures of the Lone Ranger.

Moore is a former Chicagoan now living with his wife and 14-year-old daughter in Lake Tahoe. He began his showbusiness career as a trapeze artist in a circus, worked as a model, made many motion pictures such as "Jesse James Rides Again," "The Son of Monte Cristo," "The Son of Geronimo," "Buffalo Bill," "The Ghost of Zorro" and many others. He has played with such actors as Gene Autry and Roy Rogers, Basil Rathbone, George Brent and James Arness. Most of the time he played a bad guy. Then he became the Lone Ranger.

That has been a big responsibility. Subtly, the show's creators set out to teach children patriotism, tolerance, fairness and a sympathetic understanding of fellow men and their rights and privileges.

Indeed, the opening of the show sets the stage for many heroics. After a string of gunshots and the Lone Ranger, atop his horse, bellowing, "Hi-Yo Silver!" the announcer would chorus, "A cloud of dust, a galloping horse with the speed of light, a hearty Hi-Yo Silver — The Lone Ranger!"

Then, "With his faithful Indian companion, Tonto, the daring and resourceful Masked Rider of the plains led the fight for law and order in the early West. Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear! From out of the past, come the thundering hoofbeats of the great horse, Silver! The Lone Ranger rides again!"

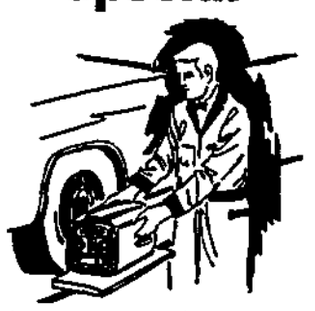

THE LONE RANGER, who has kept himself in shape all these years by eating vegetables and brushing his teeth, is the symbol of Americana, motherhood, apple pie, etc. Clayton Moore is the man behind the mask. For several television years, the Lone Ranger blazed across the west to fight for justice and to avenge his brother's death.

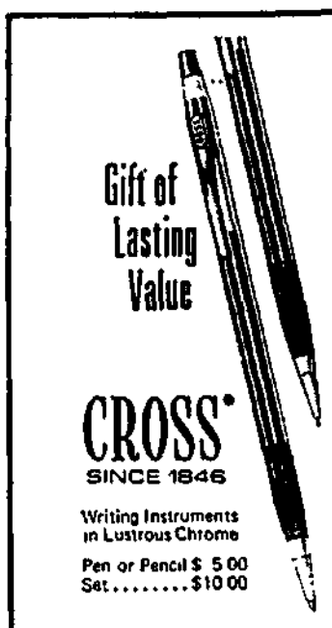

"HI, KEMO SABAY, have you been a good boy?" The Lone Ranger himself, a hero to millions of children for three decades, made a personal appearance last weekend at Golfview Dodge in Morton Grove. As the original good guy in a white hat, the Lone Ranger is doing commercials for Dodge dealers.

A 'salute' from Roosevelt

Classes to be held at Naval Air Station

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Students entering the newest extension campus of Roosevelt University will receive a friendly salute from a military man.

Undergraduate and graduate courses from Roosevelt will be offered for the first time this fall at the Glenview Naval Air Station, Lake Street and Greenwood Avenue in Glenview. The announcement was made Tuesday by Rolf A. Weil, president of Roosevelt and Capt. P. G. Merchant, commanding officer of the air station.

Two college programs will be offered this fall, Weil said. The undergraduate program, bachelor of general studies will be offered in the daytime and is designed for adults, over age 25, who want to continue their education past high school.

THE GLENVIEW program should be of particular interest to women in the north and Northwest suburbs because day care services will be provided by the professional nursery staff at the station, said Weil.

The graduate program, toward a master's degree in business administration, will hold classes at night and in the afternoon. Child care facilities will also be provided for those students, said Merchant.

Counselors will interview students at the station June 19 and 20 said Lawrence Silverman, Roosevelt dean of students, and applications for admission to both programs will be accepted beginning then.

REGISTRATION for the programs also will be held at the air station Sept. 5 from 7 to 9 p.m., Sept. 7 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sept. 8 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuition for the graduate program is $73 per semester hour of college credit and the undergraduate program is $67 per semester hour. An enrollment of about 100 students is expected for both programs this fall, Weil said.

Officers at the air station have been very cooperative, Weil said, and have agreed to open the station to both military personnel and civilians who want to enroll in Roosevelt courses.

The university will use the facilities rent free, paying minor charges for utilities, said Silverman. Roosevelt also has extension campuses at the Ft. Sheridan Army post, Great Lakes Naval Training Base and Waukegan High School. The university home campus is in downtown Chicago.

The Glenview extension will provide "a major educational service to this entire suburban area," said Weil.

"We are not in competition with the community colleges in the area," said Silverman. Unlike community college programs, courses on the extension campus are part of four-year undergraduate programs and two-year graduate programs.

THE DAY program is "one of the nontraditional degree programh called bachelor of general studies," said Weil, designed for students whose education has been interrupted. Many housewives are expected to enroll in the program for training for a full or part-time job. "Many more opportunities have opened up for women in many fields," Weil said and "having a college degree is going to make a great deal of difference."

The bachelor og general studies program is a four-year program broken into five stages. The initial course includes six hours of college credit designed to reorient adults to the academic world. Students will renew their reading, writing and classroom discussion skills and evaluate their past academic achievement.

College-level examination program tests will be given to students during the first weeks of class. The tests will measure the amount of education the student has learned formally in school and informally from reading, television, newspaper or on-the-job experience. Students who score well on the tests can skip classes in the degree program and graduate early.

The second phase of the program, subject concentration, is similar to a major-minor sequence in traditional degree programs. The student specializes in a particular subject that interests him. A few of these subjects now offered by Roosevewt are art, anthropology, history, interior design, languages, computer science, medical technology, urban problems, music and public administration.

AT GLENVIEW, Roosevelt will offer a youth services program with courses in sociology, psychology, political science and education. As the new extension program at Glenview grows, other areas of concentration will probably be added, Weil said.

The next stage of the bachelor of general studies program consists of three seminars worth six hours of credit each studying man's social, cultural and physical environment, Weil said. The final stage is internship in the community. The student will work at a job related to his subject concentration earning three semester hours of college credit.

The evening program, master's in business administration, is a traditional two-year graduate program including classes in financial management. A total of 45 credits are needed to complete the course but some of the credits may be waived if a student has experience in business administration. To enroll in the program a student must have an undergraduate gradepoint average of 2.7 based on a scale of four and score at least 450 on the university admission test for graduate study in business.

MSD project in Fulton County makes 'top 10'

The Metropolitan Sanitary District's land reclamation project in Fulton County recently was cited among 10 outstanding engineering achievements in the U.S. by the National Society of Professional Engineers.

The NSPE presented an award to the MSD and to the Fulton County Board of Supervisors for the 11,000-acre Prairie Plan project. The organization said the Prairie Plan, "offers an opportunity not only for the utilization of wastewater solids, but also for the reintegration of man back into the natural environment in an ecologically sound manner. The Prairie Plan thus provides an opportunity for multiple-use benefits including reclamation, agriculture, development, recreation, conservation, wildlife preservation and natural science education."

Besides the Prairie Plan project, the nine other engineering achievements selected by the NSPE were: the North Cascades Highway in Washington; a comprehensive plan for the development of southeastern Wisconsin; the Kansas City International Airport; and the Geysers Power Plant north of San Francisco. Also the wastewater system in Muskegon County, Mich.; the Personal Rapid Transit System in Morgantown, W. Va.; the Houston Ship Channel in Texas; the new baggage handling system and central control facility at Sea-Tac International Airport, Washington, and General Electric Co.'s oilwater separator for improved water pollution control in Pittsfield, Mass.

Salesmanship seminar slated at Harper

A management seminar on June 14 at Harper College will deal with a new approach using sales skills needed in today's competitive markets.

During "The Counselor Salesman" seminar, four strategies will be presented which are designed to cope with the changing market.

The seminar will be led by Don Beveridge, who has developed management training and executive programs for one of the five largest corporations in the industry. Beveridge received his education in business management at Princeton University and the University of Illinois.

The seminar is recommended for sales managers and account executives. Fee for the 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. session is $45.

Reservations may be made through the Harper College Community Services office, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine. Telephone is 397-3000, extension 248.

Obituaries

Sidney P. Mulley

Funeral services for Sidney Percival Mulley, 86, of 306 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, will be held at 1 p.m. today in the chapel of Lauterburg and Ochler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Officiating will be the Rev. William H. Herman of Community Church of Rolling Meadows. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Mr. Mulley, a retired optometrist, and a resident of Arlington Heights for 25 years, died Tuesday in Maple Hill Nursing Home, Long Grove. He was born April 17, 1887, in London, England.

Preceded in death by his wife, Vera, and a son, Norman, survivors include a son, Sidney P. Jr. of Kokomo, Ind.; three grandchildren; five great-grandchildren, and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jean Mulley of Rolling Meadows.

Boat parade to mark 'Clean Water Month'

A parade of boats down the Chicago River is the metropolitan Sanitary District's way of celebrating "Clean Water Month" this month.

The parade at noon June 13 will feature music played by the 81st U.S. Army Band, and boats representing the Illinois Department of Public Works, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Chicago Department of Environmental Control, the Chicago Police Department, the Chicago Fire Department, and Material Service Corp.

The parade will also include privately owned boats and the sanitary district will hold a small ceremony and distribute clean water volunteer certificates and pins.

Municipalities, organizations or individuals who would like to enter boats in the parade are asked to contact Ed Logelin at FI 6-9611.

Clean Water Month is a new observance this year, originated by the sanitary district to encourage local residents to participate in removing debris from waterways and to promote public and private action to clean our waters.

Mary C. Rooney

Mrs. Mary C. Rooney, 38, nee Reid, of 925 S. Walnut Ave., Arlington Heights, died yesterday morning in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after an extended illness. She was born May 18, 1935, in Chicago.

Visitation is today from 3 to 10 p.m. in Lauterburg and Ochler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Surviving are her husband, Patrick; four sons, Patrick Jr., Daniel, David and Michael; two daughters, Kathleen and Jeanne Ann, all at home; parents, William and Cathryn Reid of New Jersey; five brothers, William and Michael Reid, both of New Jersey, Daniel Reid of Malaysia, John Reid of Worth, Ill., and Thomas Reid of Chicago, and a sister, Mrs. Patricia Morrissey of Worth, Ill.

Prayers will be said at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home. Then the body will be taken to Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, 432 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, where a funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Ogilvie may be headed for Washington as EPA chief

by LEA TONKIN

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON could be former Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, rumored as one of four top names in the hopper for the new director of the federal Environmental Protection Agency. According to a spokesman at the regional EPA office in Chicago this week, Ogilvie's "fairly good environmental record" during his stint as governor speaks well of his chances for the post.

No inside information is available, the spokesman said, but the top EPA spot may be filled soon. The post has been empty since William Ruckelshaus resigned at the end of April to become acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Other possible nominees mentioned for the EPA job are John Quarles, acting deputy EPA administrator; Henry Diamond, chairman of the President's advisory council on environmental quality, and Oregon Gov. Tom McCall.

CLEANUP CONFUSION: frequent flip-flops in the federal and state water quality standards are causing some consternation at the local level.

This week, the state Environmental Protection Agency is sorting out complaints and comments at a series of hearings, with the last session to be held in Chicago tomorrow.

It seems the changes in federal funding and presidential impoundment of funds have altered the game plan, as explained by acting state EPA director Jack Marco. The old program provided for 55 per cent funding of eligible construction costs for sewage treatment plants required under the federal and state water quality rules.

This was augmented by a 25 per cent contribution from state antipollution bond funds, leaving a 20 per cent contribution to be paid by local government.

But the local government share of this funding is now boosted to 25 per cent. This is due to revised federal regulations which now call for mandatory 75 per cent funding, or fewer projects financed with the same amount of money.

The state EPA says it will provide 75 per cent state funding, only to those plants which do not qualify for federal assistance as a result of the change. This in effect boosts the local share to 25 per cent, Marco said.

PREHISTORIC PUPFISH, hardy survivors from the Ice Age living in the waters of Devil's Hole in Death Valley, Nev., won a water rights battle with a millionaire rancher this week.

U.S. District Court Judge Roger Foley ordered Francis Cappaert, owner of a 12,000-acre desert ranch, to limit the use of eight wells nearby Devil's Hole until the water level in the pupfish habitat raises more than four inches.

Cappaert, whose worth is estimated at $100 million, recently began ranching in the area near Death Valley. Pumping at his wells lowered the water level in Devil's Hole to a point which imperiled the pupfish species survival, said government attorneys.

ENVIRONMENTAL HAZARDS abound at the proposed Oakley dam and reservoir project near Decatur, charged the Environmental Lawyers Clinic (ELC) in an amended complaint filed this week. Governor Walker's Administration and the University of Illinois would be guilty of violating the Illinois constitution's guarantee of a healthful environment if the project is built, the complaint charges.

The amended complaint was filed in Piatt County Circuit Court on behalf of six farmers. ELC asks that the court enjoin the state from taking further action until all environmental issues have been resolved.

Hazards cited in the petition include degradation of Sangamon River water quality; some 1,100 acres of the 1,400-acre Allerton Park could be flooded and destroyed; waters in the reservoir will exceed state standards for fecal coliform and bacteria and phosphorus; nitrogen levels will surpass allowable state limits, and contract construction of the dam will cause excessive algae growth in Lake Decatur.

CLEAN WASTE resulting from storms, floods and other disasters could be burned with the issuance of a permit from the state environmental protection agency, under a proposed amendment to the open burning regulations of Illinois Pollution Control Board. The board has scheduled hearings on the proposed changes, to be held June 25 at the Rock Island City Hall in Rock Island and June 26 at the Quincy City Hall in Quincy.

The proposed regulation would restrict open burning of debris to areas declared major disaster areas. Localized problems could be handled through the board's variance procedures.

"HANG ON TIGHTLY. You'll be in the 21st Century in 16 seconds." With this introduction, women from the Chicago area will soon begin tackling the problems of allocating the energy resources while protecting the environment and minimizing pollution.

It's part of the electronic simulation workshops on energy and environmental problems, planned next week at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

The program is one of a series prepared and sponsored by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. Three-hour programs will be conducted twice daily, beginning at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Lecture demonstrations in the museum's little theater will be followed by experiments in the mobile atomic energy laboratory. Games conducted on the Energy-Environment Simulator, illustrating the balance of energy production consumption and pollution and a round table discussion complete the program. Additional information on the sessions is available by calling MU 4-1414.

GADGET FREAKS may get a kick out of this one: the federal Environmental Protection Agency just came out with some new regulations that would require auto manufacturers to equip 1975 and later model cars with buzzers or warning lights to alert motorists if the exhaust gas recirculation system on their car fails.

These dashboard warnings would also indicate any problems with a catalytic converter, a pollution control device which is supposed to curtail hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions. If the pollution control systems are proven reliable over 50,000 miles by the EPA, auto makers may avoid installation of the warning devices.

House passes two Chapman bills

Two education bills sponsored by State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, were passed by the Illinois House last week.

One bill will allow part-time college students to receive financial aid through the Illinois State Scholarship Commission. Mrs. Chapman said the bill is needed because "part-time students are among the most needy of our students and should be eligible for state scholarships."

The second bill provides that local school districts can use existing tax revenue to provide programs for pre-kindergarten-age children. The bill would not require any school district to run nursery schools, but would provide that they would be given state aid at the same rate as for kindergarten students if they chose to have a nursery school program.

Both bills now go to the Illinois Senate for consideration.

Full Senate to consider open leaf-burning bill

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A bill aimed at legalizing open leaf-burning in Illinois has won the approval of a Senate committee and is now in the hands of the full Senate.

After a brief hearing, the Senate Agriculture Committee voted 7-3 to approve the bill, sponsored by Rep. Pete Pappas, R-Rock Island. The bill already has cleared the House

Under the bill, the Illinois Pollution Control Board would be required to lift a statewide ban on open leaf-burning now in force for communities over 2,500 population

John Roberts, manager of the division of air pollution in the Environmental Protection Agency, speaking against the bill, said smoke from burning leaves poses a health threat to persons suffering from lung ailments.

He said about 15 per cent of all children suffer from some form of asthma which, he said, is aggravated by leaf smoke. He said at least one member in one out of five families has some form of respiratory disease.

But Sen. Tom Merritt, R-Hoopeston, called the bill "a people's bill" that would preserve "a part of our heritage."

"You are taking something away from the old ladies in my district who enjoy raking their yards and visiting over the back fence while they burn their leaves," Merritt told Roberts. "It's a part of our heritage. This is a people's bill and it's about time we stood up for the people."

Several similar measures have been introduced into the General Assembly this session, but only one other bill remains alive. That bill, sponsored by Rep. Webber Borchers, R-Decatur, is at passage stage in the Senate.

John Young didn't fail us

It seems as if the ugly aftermath of the Viet Nam war refuses to go away; indeed, it now seems we cannot let this war be swept away into history without more reminders that our national suffering over this conflict touches everyone and everything.

At first we thought if there was to be a point of celebration over the end of the war, the point would be the homecoming of the prisoners of war. More sought after than astronauts, more honored even than the men who fought that war but were not captured, these returning POWs seemed to represent the war and to be its focal point.

It seemed in the later stages of the bombing that we were no longer fighting for the Vietnamese, but for our own prisoners and a way to bring them home. Their return from Hanoi was like a signal to the country that yes, the war was finally over — no matter for the time being whether it had been won or lost.

But Viet Nam will not go away and now even the former prisoners of war are involved in their own controversy over their conduct while in enemy hands.

Eight men — all enlisted members of the Army and Marine Corps — are now charged with aiding their enemy captors while being held in North Viet Nam. The allegations have not been proven, but the eight men are branded nevertheless and they must live with the charges until their cases are ajudicated or dropped.

An Air Force colonel, Theodore Guy, himself a prisoner and the ranking member of the group, has made the ugly charges of collusion with the North Vietnamese. Such charges have been brought against Americans before, particularly in Korea.

But still they come as more unpleasant news if only to confirm that the prisoners were as fragmented as the nation which sent them to fight the war.

For us in the Northwest suburbs, the news of the charges against the enlisted prisoners was sharply felt. Staff Sergeant John Young, who now lives in Arlington Heights and who calls nearby Grayslake his home, was one of those men fingered by Col. Guy.

John Young was the man the Herald interviewed for a page one Memorial Day story this year, largely because he, more than any veteran of any other war, seemed to speak to us directly of the times in which we live. He is of a new and different generation of veterans and we, who have lived such different lives, must learn to understand them.

Now we are told John Young may be guilty of violating the strict military version of prison camp behavior. As in other wars, other places, a colonel has said sergeants and privates failed him — and us.

S/Sgt. John Young

For what it is worth here and now, we want to say we do not believe John Young failed us or his country. The facts about John Young and his conduct overseas may emerge very harshly, or they may emerge as evidence of a man who was a prisoner for five years and who, in his isolation, may have felt the same turmoil this country was feeling.

We will await the verdict of John Young and the other prisoners indicted by Col. Guy in the hope that this last remnant of the Viet Nam episode will end for the good.

Maybe John Young said it best last week when the charges were publicly brought against him. He was asked by Herald Staff Writer Steve Brown if he still planned to address the students of Conant High School in Hoffman Estates the next day.

"I will," John Young said. "If they will have me."

Fence post letters to the editor

He hits township official

The Fence Post has of late been the vehicle for some rhetorical exchanges between myself, Larry Pahl, and Mr. Richard Hall, recently elected supervisor of Elk Grove Township. As is the nature of political battles, both of us write as if we are individually on the side of right and justice. Behind this apparent Mexican stand-off, unbeknownst to the reader, lies one simple fact: I am telling the whole truth and Mr. Hall is not.

Mr. Hall begins his May 9 Fence Post letter by telling of an old political trick with which he makes it plain he is quite familiar — "repeating false charges over and over hoping people will begin to believe they are true." Mr. Hall knows the trick well because he is a master at it.

Mr. Hall, in campaign literature sent to members of his party organization, consistently repeated the charges that 1) I was a Democrat, 2) a McGovern supporter, 3), a radical out to destroy, and 4), that I knew nothing of township government. Let me set the record straight:

• As a previous letter from myself to Mr. Hall printed in these pages made clear, I am NOT a member of the Democratic Party, but an independent. Mr. Hall, nevertheless, continued to make the charge.

2) I was not a McGovern supporter or worker, a fact which Mr. Hall did not check into, but was content to use as a political lie over and over.

3) I was only out to utilize constitutionally prescribed means to eliminate the township government. If this is destruction I will have to assume Mr. Hall holds a certain disdain for the U.S. and Illinois Constitutions. If there is any destruction going on, I say it is Mr. Hall's destructive instinct toward me.

4) I would say that I know more about township government than 99 per cent of the people of the township, yet Mr. Hall continued and continues to spread the lie that I know nothing of it.

These are small matters. But there is more. I continue to insist that the $28,000 budgeted for the assessor's office, an amount Mr. Hall calls "nominal," is a scandalously high figure to run that office. Until Charles Hodlmair, the present assessor, goes on public record as working a 40 hour week, and shows in what ways he is saving the taxpayers "hundreds of thousands of dollars," I will continue to insist that the high budget for that office is a slap at the public's integrity and a flagrant misuse of tax money.

I continue to insist that it is an unhealthy situation when every working member of the township government is a member of the same political party.

I continue to insist that I wanted very badly to engage in public debate with Mr. Hall and the other Republicans. It is they who precluded the debate's possibility. I once said to Mr. Hall over the phone that I was sick of communicating through the editorial pages and over the phone lines. Anyone, I said, can be brave over the phone lines. Mr. Hall promptly responded by hanging up the phone. The truth stings.

I continue to insist that there were times when I was met within the confines of the township hall with arrogance and unfriendliness. I do not invent such things. Mr. Hall's rather fascistic statement, "the fact is — they were met with courtesy and cooperation," sounds like a husband in an argument with his wife yelling at the top his lungs, "I am NOT raising my voice!"

I continue to strongly insist that Mr. Charles Hodlmair used his position as assessor to give some of his own property special assessments. I am as positive as a young man can be about this, and will stand up to any man or woman of the township with this charge.

I continue to insist that the vast majority of the citizens of the township would be aided by the elimination of the township government, and I also continue to insist that its elimination would be a tax-lowering move. Mr. Hall's flippant statement that our "suggested changes would increase taxes anywhere from 200 to 2,000 per cent" is an erroneous political ploy intended to bolster the life of this dying government. (Mr. Hall and his associates have already said in private that the township government will probably be eliminated in 15 years.) As evidence to my claim of tax-lowering, when Cook County took over the function of collecting taxes that used to be performed by the township they were able to cut costs!! Hardly a 2,000 per cent increase!

I continue to insist that Mr. Hall as supervisor does not merit the 57 per cent increased salary of $11,000. But if he wants to earn some of that money, why doesn't he work to have the position of highway commissioner become an appointed one? If it is such a "professional position," why are there no stipulations on who can run for it?

Mr. Hall implies that I am rather foolish for saying all these things when they are an "attack against the expressed will of the majority of the people." I would like to remind Mr. Hall that the will of "the people" was hardly expressed in the election which he won. It was the will of a handful of his party's loyal organization members. But still, as is obvious, Mr. Hall was elected and I was not. My hat goes off to him. In a democracy, especially one grown lethargic and apathetic, the people get what they deserve.

Dist. 207 'surprising'

Recently I had occasion to attend a Dist. 207 School Board meeting at the Maine East High School. Not being a regular at these functions, I was quite surprised and appalled as to what transpired during the evening.

The meeting room was rather crowded with predominantly concerned Maine North parents, and an equally large number of teachers from the district. A Mr. Nidetz, representing the parents' view of Maine North students, was the first to address the board, and did an admirable job. He spoke mainly of the physical shortages of the new school and the broken promises to rectify these shortages. Mr. Nidetz received tremendous support from the audience-at-large throughout his entire speech.

The school board then made their comments regarding the problems of Maine North and the criticism of the board. The meeting slowly continued, and after the board's report on the negotiations between the teachers and the board, someone in the audience (who I later learned is the president of the Teachers' Association) asked if he could address the board. The board seemed to be completely unanimous in refusing this request in a most abrupt manner. This, to me, was shameful and appalling. As a concerned parent, I am also interested in hearing the problems of the teachers as well as the problems of the students and parents. What better place could there be than an open school board meeting for an airing of some of these problems?

Maine Township schools enjoy a tremendous reputation across the nation for their scholastic ratings and I certainly hope and pray they will continue to enjoy this reputation. However, if we close our ears to those who have made this well-earned reputation possible, we and our children will suffer.

I am well acquainted with some of the teachers at Maine East and know of their dedication. As a concerned parent, I encourage the board to let the teachers have their say. If there are differences let's resolve them at the conference table. Our most important raw material is at stake — the youth of America.

Police help praised

Dear Chief O'Connell, Hoffman Estates Police Dept.:

As you may recall, on May 22, our brown standard poodle "Brandy" accidentally escaped from our yard. We informed the Hoffman Police and spent the next two days looking for her, but to no avail. Because our family is quite attached to our dog I distributed a typewritten plea among the local police departments (Hoffman, Schaumburg, etc.) for help. We wish, at this time, to express our sincere thanks to you and your men for your exemplary efforts in our behalf.

In particular, we would like to thank Officer Pye (Badge 205) for his extraordinary efforts and interest. We well know that much more urgent duties take precedence and it is for this reason we feel he acted in a most extraordinary manner. He personally took time out to call me at work after he spotted our dog and offered to go back to the area again and meet me. In addition, he called me at home that night to inquire about the dog's health. We found this most touching and can only say that the residents of Hoffman Estates are indeed fortunate.

Again our most sincere and grateful thanks to all of you.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Kilcrece
Hoffman Estates

Bob Lahey

If you vote, scholarship cut

Why are people fed up with government?

Watergate. Sure.

Gov. Dan Walker firing his own appointee without explanation after the man had announced his intention to investigate another Walker colleague for questionable campaign contributions. Sure.

But there are other causes, some so minor as to be hardly worth trifling with, except they add up to a sum which equals disgust.

A case in point.

Illinois legislators for many years have enjoyed the privilege of awarding four-year scholarships to two students in their district each year. Recently the Illinois House passed a bill which would allow the legislators to break down those scholarships into one-year allowances. They thus could award eight one-year scholarships, four two-year scholarships, etc.

The purpose of the bill was to give students who elect to attend junior colleges a crack at the largesse dispensed by representatives and senators in their district.

So far, so good.

Then the bill went to the Senate, where an amendment was attached to it. The amendment dictates that a student who registers to vote in his university community would forfeit his scholarship.

Now, the logic behind that is so obvious as to be painful.

Anyone who remembers the furor in the legislature last year over the terrible specter of all those newly enfranchised 18-year-olds getting together for their nefarious purposes and electing hippies and potheads and commie pinkos in respectable towns like Champaign-Urbana and DeKalb and Carbondale can see the wisdom of taking away the scholarship of any student who dares to exercise his franchise in the way that the courts have said he is entitled to.

A couple of things about it are not so obvious. One is why the amendment was sponsored by Sen. David J. Regner,

Bob Lahey

R-Mount Prospect. At this writing, I have been unable to reach Regner, who is a hard-working and generally conscientious senator.

It is the knowledge of his busy workload, among other things, which makes me curious as to why he lent his name and effort to what, when you come down to it, is a piddling amendment.

At present, legislators may award a total of 472 scholarships each year. In a statewide student population which I would estimate at approximately 150,000, forcing 472 of those students to return home to vote is hardly going to halt the rebellion of the teen-agers, if that is what the Senate envisions.

The thing might have made sense had it come from Sen. Stanley Weaver, R-Urbana, or representatives Charles Clabaugh or John Hirschfeld, two Champaign Republicans, all of whom represent the largest university community in the state and all of whom could be considered leading contenders for the title of Mr. Conservative in the Illinois legislature.

The second mystery in this amendment concerns the students who would be denied the privilege of voting in their college communities.

Who are these scholarship holders?

Well, a goodly number of legislators give their scholarships to kids selected by school and community leaders on the basis of such things as academic achievement, community involvement, moral character, and other traits which could well be emulated by some of the givers of the scholarships.

Others give them to their kids.

Charlie Clabaugh put his kids through college that way and he will tell you bluntly he doesn't give a damn who likes it.

I wonder how Charlie would have liked it if someone had told him his kids couldn't vote because he gave them a scholarship.

Word a day

Business Today

by EDWARD S. LECHTZIN

DETROIT — Last February's one-day walkout against the Penn Central Railroad illustrates how important reliable transportation — especially the railroad — is to automakers.

In that one day General Motors lost the production of about 17,000 cars and trucks. If the stoppage had lasted three days, some 92,000 GM employes would have been idled. A 12-day strike virtually would have shut down the auto industry.

TRANSPORTATION is essential in each step of making and delivering an automobile. The smooth operation of mass assembly rests with the ability to bring materials together as scheduled to build the automobiles for which sales research has been projected months in advance.

"Actually, the movement of materials and products is considered an extension of our production lines," said Victor A. Long, director of logistics operations for GM. "If the materials don't get there as scheduled, parts machining and sub assembly and assembly lines stop, and there is no product available for marketing."

The extent to which GM relies on transportation can be seen with the ordering of a single Chevrolet Impala four-door sedan in Manchester, N.H.

The vehicle would be assembled at Tarrytown, N.Y., approximately two weeks after the order was placed, only because most of the component parts are already moving within the total GM system. The engine would be made in New York, the axles in Michigan, the frame in Pennsylvania, the transmission and steering wheel in Ohio, the alternator in Indiana and the carpeting in North Carolina.

THESE ARE only a few of the 14,000 parts which go into each automobile. They must be engineered, ordered, scheduled and produced weeks or even months in advance of dealer orders.

GM pioneered the use of "unit trains" in which component parts are grouped into single trains. They run on tightly controlled schedules and operate on a run-through basis, bypassing often crowded switching yards.

Six such "unit trains" now move components from Michigan area suppliers to outlying assembly plants. Parts and subassemblies must flow continuously between the many sources and locations and finished vehicles must be moved away from the final assembly points without delay.

TWENTY-SIX assembly plant locations in the United States and Canada build 127 different model cars and trucks. More than 28,000 vehicles are shipped every working day, requiring more than 1,000 rail cars and 2,500 trucks.

Railroads are developing enclosed cars as a means of halting vandalism. GM has more than 400 "Vert-A-Pac" railcars which have virtually eliminated loss and damage to Chevrolet Vegas.

The "Vert-A-Pac" sides are lowered to serve as loading and unloading ramps and the Vegas are hung nose down. They're fully enclosed and protected from theft, vandalism and damage.

GM also is developing containerization for larger cars — a "Stac-Pac" in which vehicles are stacked in separate compartments one above the other in a large container. Four of these containers are loaded onto a single railcar.

Arlington Plating will build plant

Officials of the Arlington Plating Co. Inc. at 154 W. Wilson Street in Palatine are negotiating for a new plant facility in the Northwest suburban area, plant manager James Costello said.

Costello confirmed the company's search for a new facility and said the plating firm has hired engineers to design pollution control equipment for the new plant.

Costello also said the new location would be within the boundaries of the Metropolitan Sanitary District. The MSD and Arlington Plating are currently involved in a lawsuit concerning water pollution resulting from the plant's plating process.

Circuit Court Judge Charles Barrett last month continued the trial of the suit until June 26 after learning that Arlington Plating was seeking a new facility.

THE COMPANY has also filed required reports with the MSD on test samples of the water discharged from the Palatine plant, a court order said.

The sanitary district, which filed the suit against the local company in January, failed to appear at the May 25 court hearing in the case, the court order said.

The Sanitary District suit charged the local company with discharging nickel, cadmium, total chromium and cyanide into the sewer system and sought an injunction as well as fines for violations of MSD ordinances.

At an April court hearing in the case, Arlington Plating Co. attorney Betram A. Stone said the company was doing everything possible to comply with the MSD requirements, but was hampered by the fact that equipment has not been invented that can successfully control pollution from plating processes. Stone told Judge Barrett at that hearing that the company merely needed time to have equipment for the plant designed and installed.

Bell installing towers for new 'pager' system

Illinois Bell Telephone is installing 19 antenna towers at strategic telephone office locations throughout Chicago and the suburbs. These 118 foot transmitter towers are the forerunners of a new service the company will offer in the metropolitan area later this year.

The service, called Bellboy Personal Signaling Service, can alert its user that an important telephone call is waiting for him, even if he's miles from his home or office. The pager is a small, light-weight pocket unit which emits a tone to let the user know his home or his office has a message for him. He then goes to the closest telephone and calls in. The paging unit does not carry voice messages and can be used for one-way signaling only.

To reach a Bellboy user, a caller first dials a central computer number, and then the individual's page number. The computer transmits a signal to transmitter towers serving the area, which activates the proper Bellboy signal. In the event the called party doesn't wish to be disturbed he can switch the unit on memory and the pager will hold the signal until the unit is switched back on.

Illinois Bell Manager Dennis Collins said early trials indicate a market for the Bellboy unit among physicians, salesmen, real estate dealers, truckers, contractors and others who spend a good part of the day away from their offices. "It is especially useful for doctors who must be reached in emergencies," Collins said.

Bellboy service will cost users $20 per month, including the page unit. Those who have other compatible receiving units may use them instead of renting the Bellboy receiver and pay a lower rate. In addition, since Touch-Tone signals are the only ones that can be used to activate the system, a Bellboy caller must have a Touch-Tone phone which costs another $1.50 a month. The Bellboy operates on a 9-volt, transistor battery that will last about a month.

Collins said the transmitters will not cause any interference with radio or television reception.

Addressograph

Addressograph Multigraph Corp. reported sales of $130.5 million for its third quarter ended April 30, an increase of nearly eight per cent over the $121.3 million of the comparable year-ago period. Earnings in the quarter just ended were $4.2 million, or 80 cents a share after accounting for an additional provision for allowances and doubtful accounts receivable made late in the quarter. That action, taken and disclosed April 25, increased AM's receivables reserve by $6.5 million, creating an after-tax impact of $3.25 million or approximately 40 cents a share. Earnings in last year's third quarter were $6 million or 74 cents a share. Earnings in the quarter just ended would have exceeded slightly those of a year ago except for the impact of the receivables reserve action. Earnings in the period just ended also included an extraordinary gain of $304,000 or five cents per share as a result of devaluation of the U.S. dollar. AM's sales in the nine months just ended amounted to $351.2 million, an increase of approximately 10 per cent over the $319 million in revenues during the first three quarters of fiscal 1972. Earnings for the nine months were $8.8 million, or $1.09 a share, compared with $10.5 million or $1.30 a share, for the comparable year-ago period. Nine-month earnings include an extraordinary gain of ten cents per share from the sale of a surplus plant in the first quarter in addition to the five-cent-per-share extraordinary gain in the quarter just ended.

$242 million paid to policyholders

The Prudential Insurance Co. reported recently that more than $242 million was paid to its Illinois policyowners and beneficiaries during 1972.

The record disbursement — compared with over $232 million during 1971 — included all kinds of claim payments, dividends, annuities and other insurance benefits.

More than 75 per cent of the total — or $182 million — went to living policyowners. The balance went to beneficiaries.

THIS COULD BE either their wedding (they're getting married Saturday) or Air Force portrait (they're being sworn in Friday) as David English of Rolling Meadows and Tara Willer of Palatine prepare for an eventful weekend. Saturday they become Mr. and Mrs. at 2 p.m. after both becoming airmen the day before. They will be the first married couple from the Northwest suburbs to join the U.S. Air Force. Also pictured is Air Force recruiter Staff Sgt. Robert Hill.

Does absence make the heart grow fonder?

First the Air Force, then marriage

by BARRY SIGALE

If it's true that absence makes the heart grow fonder then Mr. and Mrs. David English will be madly in love with each other by the first of next year.

Before the couple takes their marriage vows Saturday at 2 p.m. in a small, simple ceremony at St. Mark Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect, they will both be sworn into the United States Air Force.

Though they'll be Airman and Mrs. David English, the bride and groom will be either too busy or too far apart for the first six months of their new careers that they won't have time for a normal married life.

But David, 18, of 2200 Adams St., Rolling Meadows, and his wife-to-be, Tara Willer, also 18, of 845 Lanark, Palatine, have decided they will put up with the separation in hopes of being stationed together next year.

UNDER THE Air Force Delayed Enlistment Program, the couple will be sworn in Friday at 10:30 a.m. but will not leave for basic training until August. They will be assigned to Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex. for six weeks.

During that time, David and Tara, the first married couple from the Northwest suburbs to join the Air Force, will live in separate dormitories and will only have telephone contact with each other for the first two weeks. For the final four weeks the couple still will not be able to live together but will see each other because they will have more free time.

After six weeks, it's on to technical school. But because they will be pursuing training for different jobs they will be separated for another three months to a year.

Scores on his aptitude test showed David should attempt a career in mechanics. That would mean he'd go to school at either Chanute Air Force Base in Rantoul or Shepherd Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, Tex.

Tara's high score was in electronics. But the training in that area is given at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, Miss., or Lowry Air Force Base in Denver. Thus the split.

ACCORDING TO Air Force Staff Sgt. Robert Hill of the Des Plaines recruiting station, the couple finally will be able to live together when they are assigned to their first permanent bases next year.

He said the majority of airmen request and receive the bases they will be assigned to permanently. In David and Tara's situation, he said, it's not a package deal but married couples in the air force do receive more privileges than others.

He said the two will be able to combine a career with a starting salary of more than $800 a month with additional benefits included, get an education and still be married.

David and Tara both attended Fremd High School in Palatine. David didn't finish school but quit and worked at a service station in Palatine. Tara graduated from Fremd. The couple decided last year to be married and agreed on their future plans.

"DAVID HAS WANTED to go into the service for a long time," said Tara. "He asked me how I'd feel about living at a base. I always wanted to be a nurse. We looked into the Air Force for both of us. The Air Force has good advantages. We can pick where we want to go."

Sgt. Hill said it is becoming increasingly common for married couples and women to join the Air Force but that few girls score as high as Tara.

"She almost aced her electronics test," Sgt. Hill said. "She's super-qualified. In fact," he added, "Tara got some scores better than David."

Harper alumni honored at Southern Eight alumni of Harper College in Palatine were honored recently at Southern Illinois University for high scholastic achievement.

Each of those honored have maintained at least a 4.25 grade point average.

They are Larry Clark, Glenview; Wayne Fuhlbrugge, Des Plaines; Steve Jaworski, Schaumburg; Michael Kraft, Des Plaines; Mark Lownds, Des Plaines; Peter Paluch, Park Ridge; David R. Smith, Arlington Heights, and Scott Webb, Barrington.

Clark and Smith attended Harper one year; the remainder received two-year associate degrees.

Recognition came during the Scholastic Honors Day Convocation at the university.

The Enduring English Mansard

The overall tone of this unique home style is set by the graceful Mansard roof styling which reflects a warm, friendly way of living reminiscent of the country village attitude of the past.

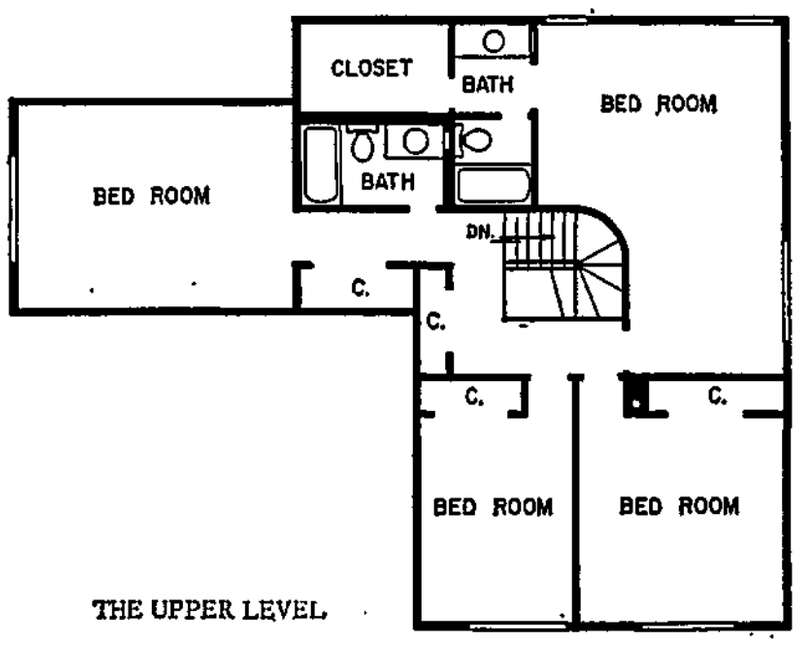

An unusually massive living room window offers a sweeping view of the landscape and adds a fashionable touch of brilliance to the exterior lines.

Inside, the Mansard offers numerous advantages for today's life styles. The rooms are cheerful, well lighted by high latticed windows and a brick, raised hearth is a "must" to capture the friendliness and flavor of the entire home atmosphere, with a generous double door entry that symbolizes a warm invitation to guests.

The spectacular roof also projects an artistic foreground for surrounding trees and shrubs that further highlight the overall charm of this memorable home design.

Health club set for office building

A unique and highly innovative new office building, Northwest O'Hare Office Park, at 2151 W. Dempster street in Des Plaines, will feature, among other things, a completely outfitted health club including a professional-size handball court, available to all tenants and guests!

Plans are now being completed for an open house at the site June 15, including complimentary cocktails and hors-d'oeuvres from 2 p.m. Guided tours of the building, including sample office layouts, will also be conducted for brokers and prospective tenants.

"Our basic objective," says Theodore J. Theodore, building architect, "is to provide a health facility for the enjoyment and well-being of those in the complex. We think that this atmosphere will promote better and more effective work-through better health. The end result will be to aid the tenants in the promotion of their business activities as well as the added accommodation to their customers."

His partner, Thomas Burbulis, a suburban real-estate man and builder emphasizes that, to his knowledge, Northwest O'Hare Office Park is the first office building in the area to feature a handball court and/or full health club facilities.

"So many of our friends who play handball and like to exercise during lunch and mid-afternoon, before returning to work, stimulated us to go ahead with it," says Burbulis, who indicates with a smile that he plans to maintain an office in the building himself, as will Theodore.

THE HEALTH club area will also include massages, exercise room and ultra-violet sun rooms.

Electric heat and sun-resistant thermopane windows, air conditioning, carpeting, sound conditioning, positive humidity control, automatic elevators and free parking are but a few of the features being offered in the four-story, reinforced steel and concrete structure, which will be located a block east of the Tri-State Tollway, 10 minutes from O'Hare International Airport and 30 minutes from Chicago's Loop. An in-house eating service is also included.

"We've done everything possible," says Burbulis, "to create a quiet, peaceful atmosphere conducive to relaxation and improved health. We selected our site with this in mind — a location out of the traffic pattern of incoming or outgoing flights from the airport. The entire concept is our dream come true — an office building that combines as many of the features as possible which help to insure high employe morale, pleasant working conditions and a maximum climate for work productivity."

IT IS THE hope of the two men that many out-of-town firms, who office locally, will encourage their executives to rent space in such a work-producing atmosphere. According to Burbulis, the building has already received numerous inquiries and his list of tenants will be an impressive one.

"We believe," summarizes Theodore, "that this building will revolutionize office space for the executive who yearns to get away from daily business pressures or shrink an expanding waistline, without taking a two-hour lunch break of having to fight city traffic to get to a recreational facility. It's all right there, within easy reach. You never have to leave the premises."

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Prospect Hts. woman joins realty firm

Arlington Realty has announced the appointment of Loretta "Larry" LeForge as sales associate with the firm's North

Loretta LeForge

Arlington Heights office at 550 W. Northwest Hwy.

Mrs. LeForge resides in Prospect Heights where she has lived with her family for 17 years.

She is a graduate of the Real Estate Education Corp. school and recently received her Real Estate Salesman license from the State of Illinois.

"Larry" LeForge spent 13 years with Tupperware Home Parties, the past 10 in a managerial capacity. She and her husband have been active in various community affairs.

Herb Carl, North Office manager says, "We are delighted to have Mrs. LeForge with our staff. Her interest in helping people coupled with her broad business experience, make her ideal for residential real estate. She will initially concentrate on the listing and selling of single family homes in our Northwest Suburban area."

Arlington Realty is a 23-year-old realty firm. They are charter members of MAP Multiple Listing Service and the National Association of Realtors. They are the exclusive representatives for Homerica, the Nation's oldest and largest executive homefinding service.

The firm has four offices in the Northwest Suburban area including two in Arlington Heights and one each in Palatine and the Hoffman-Schaumburg area. Arlington Realty has established several sales records already this year, and recently announced a 97 per cent increase in home sales for the past two years. House headaches? Here are some handy hints

NEW YORK (UPI) — The proverbial "stitch in time" can save the homeowner many a headache — and repair bill.

Preventive maintenance — giving your house regular checkups and taking prompt action at the first sign of trouble — not only will keep a house in top shape, but will keep repair bills to a minimum.

"Don't let the roof leak before you repair it. Don't let a hairline crack in the mortar become a gap. And don't think a brand new house takes care of itself," advises First National City Bank of New York in a consumer views pamphlet for homeowners.

Citibank advises the homeowner to work out a schedule of points to check both inside and outside the house, and stick to it systematically, spreading the work over the year.

IT RECOMMENDS that every homeowner buy a practical manual of home improvement, maintenance and repairs, become acquainted with a well-stocked hardware store, where the employees are knowledgeable and helpful and, where possible, familiarize himself with the plans for his house. The plans tell you where switches, drains, circuits and pipes are located; they give dimensions, list the materials already used in the house and other data.

Lacking the plans, a homeowner can gradually build up a chart, or file, of information about the house as he becomes familiar with it

Familiarity with your house is important. Whether you take care of repairs yourself — many are so minor it pays to do so — or call in a specialist, Citibank advises, be sure to do your own checkups.

It is the best way to arm yourself against rackets or unnecessary repairs. When you know your house, no one can sell you a new roof or major repair unless you need it.

WHEN YOU DO need a specialist, a carpenter, plumber, electrician, roofer, furnace man, Citibank stresses, always ask for recommendations in your neighborhood and get more than one price estimate.

For your year-round home maintenance check list, Citibank offers the following suggested plan to help you work out an individual schedule:

Spring

- Storm windows — clean, repair, paint and store.
- Put up screens.
- Treat window boxes for rust, and paint them.
- Clean and repair outside faucets.
- Hunt for termite traces. Call exterminator if found.
- Inspect and repair roof, chimney, outside walls; drains and downspouts; driveways, walks, terraces.

Summer

- Furnace — clean annually.
- Chimneys — clean every third summer.
- Radiators — check for leaks; repair broken valves; check filters.
- Garage — put in order and paint cement floor if needed.

Fall

- Paint the exterior every three to five years. May be done in spring or fall. Do-it-yourselfers may want to adopt a schedule of painting a portion of the house every year so the job never becomes a major one.
- Drain and turn off outside faucets.
- Clean, repair and put away screens.
- Put up storm windows.
- Clean, repair, paint and store awnings.
- Inspect weather stripping and repair or replace if necessary.
- Hunt for termite traces; call exterminator if any found.
- Fences — repair and paint.
- Inspect and repair: roof, chimney, outside walls; drains and downspouts; driveways, walks, terraces, outdoor stairs; foundation, crawlspace, cellar, attic; windows and doors.

Winter

- Paint interior as needed, at least every three years.
- Air conditioning — inspect and clean equipment, check filters, have necessary repairs done in off-season.
- Screens — clean and repair if not done in fall.
- Outdoor furniture — clean and paint.
- Hoses — clean and repair.
- Tools — clean and repair.
- Tools — clean, replace handles if needed; have lawn mower readied for spring.
- Inspect and repair: inside walls and floors; stairs.

All Year

- Water heater — every few months, drain off one or two buckets.
- Sinks and faucets — check, repair, drain and install washers as needed.
- Wiring — keep a sharp eye out for frays, other problems; call licensed electrician to make needed repairs immediately.

Here are some zany things you can do with the 47 foot balconies that come with the luxurious condominiums at

Baybrook Park

- Jog 106 lengths every morning before breakfast and tell everybody you jogged a mile (well, you did!)
- Watch an exquisite sunset with 87 of your most intimate friends.
- Set up 10 empty milk cartons and bowl. (Please make sure they're empty . . . the guy under you has a 47 foot balcony, too!)
- Stage an intimate dinner for two. And invite all the relatives to watch.
- Give the first Easter Egg roll on a balcony. (Hard-boiled eggs, please.)
- Place an unendangered species animal at one end of the balcony, six khaki outfitted friends at the other, and have a safari. (Water pistols only)

Come to Baybrook Park and take a stroll on a 47-foot balcony. (Every one is attached to a great condominium home, which is attached to a great community.) Read on:

At Baybrook Park, each fully carpeted condominium has exceptionally spacious, marvelous closets, dream kitchens with large window, dishwasher, automatic disposal, double door refrigerator, self-cleaning oven. There's a complete laundry room on every floor. Outside, a 30 acre park, a sparkling lake, your own private Clubhouse with heated pool, sundeck, sauna, game rooms. The Northwest Highway is right at hand, route 53 close by. The Loop less than 40 minutes away. Fabulous Woodfield Mall and Randhurst shopping centers are near to you. All this and a 47 foot balcony! Zounds! Baybrook Park: The luxury 1 and 2 bedroom condominiums with unbelievable space. Inside and out. From $24,900.

Baybrook Park . . . Palatine Rd. at first stoplight 3 blocks west of Route 53 OR Northwest Tollway (90) or Northwest Highway (14) to Route 53 Exit, North to Palatine Rd. Exit, West 3 blocks to first stoplight

Start improvements outside when working with a home

When thinking about improving your home, consider the exterior first. Too many times home exteriors are wrongfully overlooked for the more dramatic interior work.

It must be remembered that it is more than likely that unsightly interiors resulted from inadequate care given to the outside of the home.

Interior water damage can be prevented with care being given to the exterior. Consultation with a reliable home improvement contractor can lead to preserving the interior as well as exterior of the home.

One of the new revelations in home exterior sidewall cover is solid vinyl siding.

This siding is impervious to damaging weather conditions and the ravages of time.

Solid vinyl siding cannot rot, blister, peel or decay like wood; and never, never needs paint. The color of this new plastic siding material goes all the way through it. The siding comes in an array of colors most compatible to exterior decor: white, gray, green and yellow.

IN ADDITION TO virtually eliminating maintenance and the need for outside painting, solid vinyl siding will not support or spread flame. It cannot conduct electricity, and thusly, does not need to be grounded. Furthermore, it will not interfere with radio or television reception.

Solid vinyl building products, because of their nature are becoming the byword of leisure. Environmentalists say that the insulating properties and the very low maintenance feature of these products are giving homeowners a new dimension in comfort and leisure hours.

In addition to sidings, there are also companion building products of solid vinyl which give the exterior of the home overall protection from damaging climatic conditions. These products of solid vinly include gutters, downspouts, shutters, soffit and fascia systems and roof edgings

Vinyl is warm to the touch because of its being a very poor thermal conductor — the prime requirement for superior insulating materials. As an insulation, it minimizes heat penetration in summer and cold in winter. The siding also helps reduce the outside noise level in buildings.

BEFORE THE application of solid vinyl siding and trim accessories, homes require periodic painting and sometimes extensive maintenance. Exterior appearances become unsightly, shoddy and show evidence of needed repairs. Solid vinyl building products eliminate the need for further painting and maintenance.

AFTER THE application of solid vinyl siding and trim accessories and shutters, homes are restored to their original beauty; a beauty that will endure and require little or no maintenance.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

"Why shouldn't I sell my house myself?"

This is a question very often brought up by people who are contemplating selling their home. In the interest of public information, MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service helps answer the question with the following information.

Thru the years, a Real Estate Broker has acquired the contacts, the legal experience, and a knowledge of the market that the private citizen has never taken the time to learn.

If you sell your home without the services of a Real Estate Broker, you may find you've entered a situation that demands constant, time-consuming attention. And if you are not acquainted with the seemingly infinite details of a property transaction, you may be overwhelmed by the maze of responsibilities.

Are you able to find the market value of your house? Many owners don't know what a fair price might be. Frequently the owner asks too high a price and has difficulty finding a buyer. Worse yet, he may be asking a price that is considerably below the value, in which case he would be losing money he might have gained.

A Real Estate Broker is in contact with the market in your neighborhood. He would be able to make an accurate estimate of the value of your house in the market. His experience would help assure you of a fair sales price in a reasonable period of time.

Are you prepared to secure a mortgage for potential buyers? To whom would you go, and what would you do? What kinds of financing are available? Your Real Estate Broker is well acquainted with the financial aspects of transactions. He knows the people to deal with, and he knows the options available.

RENDERING OF Hinswood Park Condominium homes by REALCOA in Darien, Ill., one block north on Cass Avenue exit from the Stevenson Expressway (I-55).

Project features a recreational park

It isn't every day you can own a condominium that comes with its own 19-acre recreational park, yet that's exactly what you can do at Hinswood Park Condominiums, a new community being developed in west suburban Darien, (Realty Company of America).

REALCOA, noted for building totally-planned communities, has designed its Hinswood Park Condominiums with a 19-acre private park complete with swimming pool, clubhouse, baseball and football fields, tennis and basketball courts, private sun-bathing deck and bicycle and walking paths. The park even has year 'round recreation for children.

The three-bedroom Hinswood Park home provides many features, spacious rooms, plus its own patio or balcony, depending on whether it is located on the first or second floor of the two-story Hinswood Park Condominiums buildings.

YOU ENTER the home through a foyer, which leads to a large 19 by 12-foot living room. Adjacent is a complete dining room.

A fully-equipped, large kitchen comes with fine wood cabinets, a 14-cubic foot refrigerator, under-counter dishwasher, an eye-level double oven and range with swing-out hood, and waste disposer.

There's a spacious master bedroom suite with distinctive double door entry seldom found in any condominium, and private adjoining full bath. A second full bath is conveniently located near the second and third bedrooms

As with all Hinswood Park Condominium homes, there is abundant closet space. Additional storage space for each owner is provided in the building.

Besides the substantial tax advantages of being a condominium home owner, Hinswood Park Condominiums home owners have a closed-circuit TV security monitoring system in the lobby of their building, individual central air conditioning and heating, reserved parking, insulated glass patio and balcony doors with screen door, full carpeting, sound retardant common walls, tiled kitchen and ceramic bathroom including a large vanity with cultured marble tops and roomy cabinets. Each apartment has its own tiled laundry area. Fire retardant devices are strategically located throughout each home.

ALL MAINTENANCE of grounds and interior common areas is taken care of by a professional maintenance crew.

The choice location of Hinswood Park Condominiums is another important asset to home buyers. Fast commuter transportation, seconds from expressways, convenient shopping, fine schools and churches are only minutes away. Oak Brook and Yorktown shopping centers are nearby.

Hinswood Park Condominiums may be reached by taking the Stevenson Expressway (I-55) to the Cass Avenue exit and then proceeding one block north on Cass Avenue.

One, two and three-bedroom Hinswood Park Condominium Homes start at $28,990 Models are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Interest, mortgage stabilization seen

According to the DuPage Realtor, the flow of funds between savers and borrowers will be more orderly than at any time in the recent past and, with mortgage credit more readily accessible, interest rates should remain at current levels.

Home buyers seeking conventional loans will continue to find a broad range of terms available and a greater opportunity to match long term mortgage commitments more closely to their financial position

In some areas financing for income property may be more difficult. Though funds are available, higher rental vacancies are making lenders more cautious. In these areas lenders will be more selective and more prone to confine lending activity to very well-situated buildings.

Competitive demand for long term funds portends well for the mortgage market While personal savings have declined from a year ago, thrift institutions have been receiving a greater share of the savings dollar. During the first ten months of this year the net savings inflow to S&L's was up $4.1 billion, a 17 2 per cent increase.

Record cash flows in the business sector will minimize their need to borrow in the capital markets. Greater reliance on internal sources of funds is already evident. Corporate borrowing of long-term funds during the first three quarters of 1972 was well below the level for the same period a year ago, while corporate holdings of financial assets reached a new peak, nearly $7 billion higher than last year.

State and local government bond issues have declined by 4 per cent during the first ten months of this year. These governments are experiencing less budgetary strain because of increased tax revenues, declines in school construction needs, and benefits from the new Federal revenue-sharing program. If the Federal government is successful in holding its budget deficit to this year's level, we can expect an adequate supply of long-term credit at least through 1973.

Want to move furniture the easy way? Use casters

A famous make refrigerator is advertising as one of the features of its top model that it is equipped with wheels so the housewife can move it easily when she cleans.

It's an ancient device, the wheel, but it isn't used nearly enough. If it were, there would be fewer sore muscles and bad backs.

Even though you are comfortably settled in a house or apartment it isn't likely that your furniture is. Furniture gets moved short distances for cleaning and all over the place simply because someone wants to rearrange the room.

Heavy pieces of furniture are simple to move if equipped with casters. Some items, of course, you wouldn't consider having casters on. Sofa for example.

For those heavy items that don't have permanent casters, get yourself some temporary wheels. They are called three-wheel caster dollies and they are not cheap. But they are worth every penny if you can avoid a pulled muscle or a wrenched back.

A CASTER DOLLY is a triangular-shaped metal plate with a dip in the middle and a wheel on each corner. The leg of the object you are moving fits into that dip. If it has no leg, the entire corner can rest flat on the top surface of the dolly. They are built low and you can slip one under the corner of a heavy object without too much difficult. Get yourself a set of four.

A heavy chest, a stove or a refrigerator without wheels can be moved from one spot to another with them.

Permanent casters are available in a wider variety than you might imagine. They are made of wood, metal, rubber and plastic. They are attractive, made to be seen as well as used.

One type isn't a wheel at all. This is the ball caster, the type in which a metal ball revolves in a socket. There's no question of a fixed direction with these — they move smoothly in any direction.

SOMETIMES mobility is something you want only now and then. The rest of the time you want the object to remain rigid. Power tools are an example. For this there are locking casters so that you can move the tool where you want it, then lock the wheels so that the tool remains rigid.

When you buy casters, figure first how they will be mounted.

For furniture with slender legs, use a stem caster. The caster comes with a metal socket. Drill a hole large enough for the socket, deep enough for the stem. The socket at the wide end has a turned-up lip with teeth that bite into the base of the leg and hold it in place.

PLATE CASTERS are casters mounted on a metal plate for use on a flat base. There are holes in the plate for screws.

Some casters have threaded stems. Others have a bolt head that will take a nut.

Use the pointed, threaded stem on a leg too thin to take a socket. For thin, flat stock use the nut and bolt stem caster.

Try to get casters that swivel rather than those with a fixed wheel. You'll be happier when you have to change directions.

Consider buying a home

To many if not most single people, renting is a way of life. They wouldn't think of buying a home; that's only for couples and families.

But is it? Under some circumstances, owning a home makes more sense for a single person living alone than renting, according to Howard Kagay, sales manager of the Arlington Heights, 220 E. Northwest Hwy., office of Baird & Warner, Inc., and Michael J. Del Re, sales manager of the Mount Prospect office at 21 E. Prospect.

"For one thing, owning doesn't mean strictly owning a house," they said. "It can also mean owning a condominium apartment or townhouse, which can be smaller and more suited to a single person's needs."

If the new home comes with maintenance features, including lawn care, exterior painting, leaf removal, and snow shoveling, the owner has no more cares on this score in his home than he did in an apartment. This feature is important to a single person who wants a care-free lifestyle.

Another advantage is the tax saving, which can be more for a single person than a married couple because a single person is taxed at a higher rate to begin with.

"There's also the possible rise in the value of the property through appreciation and inflation," they said. "The trend in recent years in the Chicago area has been for sellers of real estate to get more than what they paid for the home."

"TRUE, INFLATION also pushes up taxes and utility costs for the owner, but very likely the increase is less than the rise in rent which the apartment dweller pays for a residence of a similar quality."

While all of these advantages make sense to the single person, before he commits himself to buying a house, townhouse, or condominium apartment he should consider the following, the Baird & Warner executives suggest:

—Are you committed to the area and to your job? If you are likely to move or change jobs soon, owning a home may not be the best thing.

—Are you willing to put up with the responsibilities for interior maintenance that go with ownership? You won't have a janitor at your beck and call to take care of dripping faucets and the like; these are things you'll have to arrange for on your own.

—Can you find a home with features and amenities that appeal to you such as a swimming pool, game room, tennis courts, and other meeting places that are important to many singles? These features are typical of many condominiums and townhouse developments.

—Finally, can you commit yourself to the permanence that ownership implies? It's generally easier to move from a rented apartment at the end of the lease period than it is to sell a home when you tire of it. So if ramblin' on is more your style, ownership may not be for you.

Quality in bath fixtures important

Surveys show that remodeling or adding a new bathroom are among the top five home modernization jobs planned by homeowners this year. If you're planning a new bathroom, it's wise to remember that it pays to buy quality fixtures. They get a lot of hard use, and you'll want your new bathroom to last a lifetime.

Do you know how to tell quality fixtures from the "cheapies?" Here are some tips: The best fixtures retain their luster and are easy to keep clean. The top quality water closet is the siphon jet, which has a strong flushing action and is quiet at the same time.

A lavatory bowl of generous size doesn't cost too much more than a small one but its added convenience is great. If you have tall people in your family or enjoy luxuriating in long soak, it will be worth your while to get a tub that's a little longer and deeper than the average.

More and more homeowners are including a bidet in their new bathrooms, having been exposed to this hygienic device in their European travels.

LARRY HAM, director of training for Kole Real Estate, Ltd., is shown conducting a typical training session at the main headquarters of Kole in Mount Prospect. Note the camera at the right, used for videotaping all course sessions for closed circuit television. The next seven-week course begins on June 19. The principles and techniques of real estate will be covered.

You can work 'magic' on your home

Recalling the words of an old song that admonished "you must accent the positive and eliminate the negative," homeowners can work magic on the exterior of their homes. The magic can be done easily and inexpensively with paint.

Many times a simple decorative treatment, such as painting the masonry foundation to match the body of the house, or painting steps and doors in one color will give the entire house a fresh, custom look.

Sometimes houses appear small or chopped-up because additions have been made with woods, masonry and roofs of various textures. Use of one color body paint and one color roof and trim paint will harmonize and unite additions and give the house a large, proportioned appearance.

Ideas, such as these and many more are available in the new "Ideas For Exteriors" booklet prepared by the painting experts at Sherwin-Williams. To illustrate the ideas, Sherwin-Williams remodeled an existing house with gloss latex house and trim paint. Included are before photographs illustrating the problems along with after photographs and step-by-step instructions telling how the problems were solved.

ALSO, FEATURED are suggestions for back yard decorating. Painting a reclaimed wheelbarrow to become a flower container, freshing of outdoor furniture and barbecue grills, and decorating trash containers with decals.

The decorating experts at Sherwin-Williams suggest that you review your house with special attention to the appearance of the back of the house. During the warm months many family gatherings are held in the backyard and the back of your house and its appearance is viewed by family and friends alike.

Most exterior remodeling with paint can easily be done on weekends. Projects should be carefully planned to fit-in with other activities.

The "Ideas For Exteriors" booklet is available at no charge at Sherwin-Williams stores.

"Principles of Real Estate," a seven-week course on the basic principles and sales techniques of the real estate field, will begin June 19.

Sponsored by Kole Real Estate, Ltd., the course will be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening for the seven weeks, from 7 to 10 p.m.

The classes will be held at the training headquarters of Kole Real Estate at 1000 E. Northwest Highway in Mount Prospect. The training classroom provides the latest teaching facilities, and utilizes video taping of all sessions via closed circuit television.

Larry Ham, director of training for Kole Real Estate, Ltd. will be one of the instructors in the course, as will Robert A. Kole, president of the rapidly growing real estate firm which bears his name.

VARIOUS GUEST speakers will also share their experiences with the students, states Ham, who himself has had many years of experience in real estate sales.

The only cost for the course is $35 per person for the books which everyone receives as an essential part of the training.

Basically, the course, is divided into three weeks of principles and four weeks of salesmanship. Depending upon the subject matter, each session will include three one-hour periods consisting of a 45-minute lecture, 12 minutes of reading, followed by a mini-test. "This gives every student several stimulating periods for utilizing his hearing, his sight, and his reasoning skills," asserts Ham.

Casette television is used in the course so that persons who miss a class will be able to make it up by seeing the session on closed-circuit television the following evening.

Subjects to be covered during the seven weeks include concept of home ownership, real estate brokerage, real estate selling and advertising, title to real estate, contracts, real estate financing, lease, appraising, ethics, and closing the real estate deal, among others.

Additional information regarding the course can be obtained by calling Larry Ham at 394-0900.

THE TEN MILLIONTH color television was recently produced at the Zenith Radio Corp west side plant at 1900 N. Austin, Chicago. Receiving congratulations at recent ceremonies for achieving this milestone from Zenith board chairman Joseph S. Wright and president John J. Nevin, was John Budwick of Elk Grove Village, plant manager.

"More significant than the fact of producing 10 million color receivers is that all 10 million Zenith color sets have been made in the United States by a work force that has made a real contribution to the company's reputation for quality and reliability," said Wright.

IF YOU have a mortgage on your home, chances are it is an amortized loan, says the U. S. Savings and Loan League. This is a loan which requires periodic, usually monthly, payments which are used to reduce the principal so that the loan will be repaid in full on a predetermined date. If we did not have amortized loans, interest would be paid yearly and the loan could be called at any time.

Chicago Aetna office gets highest award

The Chicago regional office of Aetna Insurance Co. has received the highest honor that the company presents to its field offices — the 1972 "Superior Achievement Award."

The office, headed by LeRoy H. Stoehr, of 1702 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, manager, and located at 5735 E. River Rd., is one of five among "Little" Aetna's 29 regional offices throughout the United States and Canada to achieve the award for excellence in all phases of operations, including underwriting, sales, agency development, expense administration and service to producers and policyholders.

This is the second time that the Chicago regional office has earned this distinction under Stoehr's direction. He has been manager of the office since 1969, and has been a resident of Arlington Heights for 20 years.

Condo boom builds on a strong market

Rather than displacing single-family sales, the current condominium boom actually complements the marketing of traditional homes.

Ned Simon, president of The Simon/R-Group, views the increasing popularity of condos as an outgrowth of the public's contentment with single-family living.

"Just because people are flocking to buy the new townhomes and garden condo apartments does not necessarily mean that they're rejecting the single-family lifestyle," Simon pointed out. "They want the feel and financial advantages of ownership, yet today's high land costs often put traditional single-family units out of many buyers' price range."

The Simon firm developed the highly successful Portals at Grant Place townhomes in Lincoln Park, presently is building Atrium, a $22 million planned unit development of townhomes and condo apartments in Elmhurst and has begun Spring Mill, a 200 townhome community in Hoffman Estates.

With empty nesters 45 and over accounting for 40 per cent of the nation's condo sales, Simon emphasized the importance of a strong single-family market. At least in Chicago, healthy sales of existing homes indicate that there are plenty of takers for the homes vacated by families seeking the condo life.

CURRENTLY, existing home sales in the metropolitan area are running 10 per cent ahead of last year with most demand for close-in locations. New single-family construction also accounts for about 60 per cent of area housing starts, according to Simon.

This great demand for the single-family unit comes at a time of phenomenal condominium activity. "Five years ago condos accounted for only five per cent of all new housing starts," Simon said. "Now that proportion has increased to a third and is still on the upswing."

Nationally, condos represented about 30 per cent of all for-sale housing starts in 1972. Simon pointed to federal income tax deductions for mortgage interest and real estate taxes, equity build-up and freedom from maintenance as prime drawing cards for condos.

"But although he's seeking these advantages, the condo buyer very definitely does not want a rental-type unit," Simon said. "The empty nester, particularly, has grown accustomed to the privacy and comfort that goes with the single-family lifestyle. If the condo he looks at doesn't offer some of the feel of single-family living, he's not likely to buy."

SIMON'S OBSERVATIONS are verified in actual builder experiences nationwide. He cited recent findings reported in "Urban Land" magazine which ranked low-density townhomes as the most popular of condo units.

Townhomes, Simon feels, can best approximate the single-family life style. But to achieve this, the units must offer such features as fireplaces, patios, large basements, family rooms and carports or garages.

"Site planning and open space are especially important," Simon emphasized. "Clustering a few units around a central, well-landscaped courtyard is particularly effective because it opens up the land between clusters and breaks down monotony."

Simon adopted this approach for Atrium. The development features clusters of two-story townhomes of solid masonry. The units are built around quarter-acre courtyards. The 27½-acre site, with $500,000 in landscaping also will include six-story condo apartment buildings and a full recreational complex. With only six acres devoted to residential structures, the development combines the open feeling usually associated with single-family ownership with a maintenance-free lifestyle.

Enclose under-stair storage for efficiency

Under-stair storage will be more efficient and sightly if the area is enclosed.

To begin, install notched 2x4 studs on the near side of stairwell. Against the wall forming far side of the closet, mount 1x2 inch furring as the base for interior lining with versatile peg-board panels.

Cover studs on the near side with any one of the attractive woodgrained hardboard panels available. Use a matching panel to build a swing-out door on a frame of 2x2-inch lumber with cross-pieces 16" apart.

If additional storage space is wanted, add peg-board panels to the near side of closet. It can be installed on this wall following same procedure used before.

Open sales center for development

A 65-year-old barn has been converted into a sales center and was officially opened June 2, with a pregrand opening sales program at The Crossings, announced Arthur B. Gingold, president of The Richards Group of Illinois, a subsidiary of The Richards Group, Inc., a joint venture with Gulf and Western Industries, Inc.

The Crossings is a $30 million 120-acre townhome and garden condominium planned community in Buffalo Grove. The five furnished models are scheduled for completion early this summer, according to Gingold. In the meantime, buyers can examine blueprints and become acquainted with The Crossings at the sales center.

"The old barn was on the property when we purchased it," said Gingold, "and rather than simply demolishing it, we renovated it because it epitomizes the character of the development — one of rural charm," he said. The Richards Group brought in Hank Gluckman & Associates, Inc., from Detroit and Otis Associates from Northbrook for the rehabilitation job.

"We found the structure to be basically sound and were able to save the fundamental architecture and all of the exposed timbers inside. We then installed much larger windows, a new natural wood floor and central air conditioning," he said.

Outside the developer has given the old barn a new look by adding red cedar siding. To top it off the developer designed and built a cupola.

"The result of our renovation will be a unique 200-square-foot sales center with a high 12-foot beamed ceiling that we hope will provide a pleasant setting for our buyers," said Gingold.

THE FIRST construction phase at The Crossings will have 106 two and three-bedroom townhomes with garages, ranging in price from $35,990 to $51,500. The price will include use of all amenities such as a swimming pool, lighted tennis courts, children's playground, day-care center, wading pool, bicycle paths and several man-made lakes the largest of which will be used for boating.

The community clubhouse will include a fully-equipped kitchen, game room, formal ballroom, teen room, exercise room, locker rooms, men's and women's saunas and a resident lounge with bar and sundeck overlooking the pool and tennis courts. The Crossings will also offer a 14-acre convenience shopping center.

Architect and planner for The Crossings are Otis Associates; landscape architect and general contractor, Theodore Brickman Co., Long Grove; and interior design of models, Childs-Dreyfus, Inc., Chicago.

To visit The Crossings, take the Northwest Tollway to Route 53 (Rohlwing Road) north to Dundee Road, and follow signs for Route 53 north five miles to Route 83. The development's name indicates its location at the crossing of Routes 83 and 53. The sales center will be open seven days a week from 10 a.m. until dark and on Saturdays and Sundays, until 6 p.m.

What's washed most?

Is it dishes? Silverware? Vegetables? Guess again. It's hands!

Recent studies conducted by kitchen research planners reveal the average American homemaker washes her hands at the kitchen sink 12 times a day. Dad uses the kitchen faucet at least twice and the kids about three times.

Baird & Warner realty trust posts earnings

Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors (OTC), Chicago-based real estate investment trust, has reported net earnings of $517,297, or 49 cents per share, for the third quarter ended April 30, 1973.

Earnings in the year-ago quarter, which was the trust's first full year of operation, were $331,557, or 41 cents per share.

John W. Baird, president, reported the earnings increase was achieved despite the loss of interest income on a delinquent loan which was foreclosed during the quarter.

Net earnings for the first nine months of the current fiscal year are $1,386,636, or $1.47 per share compared to $863,597 or $1.10 per share in the year-ago period.

Loan commitments increased to $66,640,000 at April 30, 1973, compared with $67,837,000 at the same time last year. The total represented an increase of $3,952,000 from $62,688,000 on Jan. 31, the end of the second quarter. Total assets at the end of the current quarter amounted to $62,707,000 as against $40,589,000 a year ago.

50 minutes from LaSalle Street

Inverness is an "island" in the suburbs where for the past 33 years business and professional leaders have found a delightful way of life. Where each residence is on a gently rolling homesite of at least an acre. Where residents enjoy privacy without isolation. Where deed restrictions protect your investment and preserve the present character of the Village.

We invite you to visit and appraise the advantages of living in this incomparable area of quiet dignity and serenity with its private 18-hole Inverness Golf Course and other recreational facilities. Churches and fine schools are just minutes away. Excellent commuter rail transportation via the C&NW to the City, plus quick access to the Tollway.

Acre or larger homesites start at $14,500. Due to executive transfers, we also have a portfolio of $60,000 to $120,000 homes for sale. Send for a free brochure or drive out now. Our historic 4-Silo Office, open daily, is on Baldwin Rd. just west of Northwest Hwy. (Rte. 14) between Palatine and Barrington. Convenient to Northwest Tollway (north from Rte. 53 exit).

RHODA COKEE and EARL SIEGEL, vice presidents of MGM Realtors, received new cars from Robert B. Green, president of MGM. They received the cars for their outstanding service to the company, according to Green.

MGM realty vice-presidents given new cars for service

Mrs. Rhoda Cokee and Earl Siegel, vice presidents of MGM Realtors, will enjoy the sunshine this summer in the new cars they received from Robert B. Green, president of MGM. Mrs. Cokee's car has a sun-roof and Siegel's is a convertible.

Siegel, manager of the MGM Chicago office, 2704 W. Peterson Ave., and Mrs. Cokee, vice president in charge of administration of all four MGM offices, received the cars for their outstanding service to the company, according to Green. Because of a 33 per cent increase in business, Siegel's office was expanded this month (May) to double its size.

The cars were presented by Green after a staff seminar Friday, May 18, at the MGM Skokie office.

Mrs. Cokee lives in Des Plaines.

Transferees consider different home values

Families looking for new houses because of job transfers consider slightly different values than do other prospective homebuyers, according to a preliminary survey conducted by RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service.

But both transferees and "other buyers" include four factors — schools, location, price and size of home — among the five most important considerations, according to Robert Starck, of Robert W. Starck and Co., Realtors.

Members of RELO's market research committee were asked to list separately what they have found to be the five most important house-hunting values, transferees vs. "other buyers," Starck said. The committee is a cross-section of RELO's more than 600 members who serve more than 6,000 communities in the U.S. and overseas. Robert W. Starck & Co. represents RELO in the Northwest suburban area.

"An area's schools were of first importance among transferees, with location of next importance," Starck said. "Among other buyers, location came first, followed by schools."

PRICE WAS considered of third importance for both groups. Although resale potential was given fourth priority among transferees, it was listed ninth in the "other buyers" group. Size of home was of fourth most importance for "other buyers," and fifth for transferees.

For transferred home-buyers, respondents to RELO's survey listed the following additional factors: Neighborhood, sixth; availability of new construction, taxes and distance to job, tied for seventh; financing and terms, 10th, and date of possession, 11th.

Financing was indicated as the fifth most important concern evidenced by "other buyers." Additional factors for "other buyers": Taxes, sixth; distance to job, seventh; neighborhood, eighth, and possession date, 10th.

"RELO members help home-seekers find the answers to these and other concerns," Starck pointed out. "When an about-to-move family lists its house for sale with a RELO member, family housing needs and questions are referred to a RELO member in the community to which the people are moving.

"By providing information about the new community and selecting homes that will fulfill a family's requirements, prior to first house-hunting trips, RELO's referral service can save a family both time and money."

NIREB to present management courses

"Successful sales associates are made, not born," contends the instructor for "Obtaining, Training and Retaining Sales Associates," which will be presented in Chicago, June 26-28. The event, presented by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (NIREB) will take place at the Lake Shore Club.

The instructor goes on to explain that Management Course II is a three-day session aimed at selecting and inspiring the new sales associate, with emphasis on effective interviewing techniques, company-oriented training programs, possible incentive plans, characteristics shared by successful sellers and creating stimulating sales meetings. Management Course II is open to all those who have successfully completed Management Course I — "How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully."

Registration for Course II may be made through the NIREB registration coordinator, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Real Estate Office Management Course II is one of many educational events offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. With 25,000 members, NIREB is the largest professional organization affiliated with the National Association of Real Estate Boards and acts as its educational arm for Realtors and sales associates.

Promote Helbling at Peoples Gas

An Arlington Heights man, Don E. Helbling, of 702 E. Marion St., has been named to the newly created post of director of Industrial Relations of Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, transmission subsidiary of Peoples Gas Co. In that position, he will have responsibility for the claims, employe relations, and safety and training departments at Natural.

Don E. Helbling

Helbling joined another Peoples Gas system company, The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co. in 1949. He served in a number of engineering positions and in 1964 he became assistant superintendent of Chicago District Pipeline Co., then a subsidiary of Peoples Gas Light. Chicago District Pipeline was purchased by Natural in 1965, and Helbling served as assistant general superintendent in that division and in the transmission area. In 1971, he moved to employe relations as executive planning coordinator, the post he held until this promotion.

Helbling received a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology in 1946, and a master of science degree in gas technology from IIT in 1949.

Hilliard appointed AMSCO sr. salesman

D. W. Hilliard of Elk Grove Village has been appointed senior salesman for the Chicago and Northern Indiana sales territory of AMSCO Division, Union Oil Company of California. He will be responsible for marketing the complete line of AMSCO aliphatic and aromatic solvents, hot melt adhesives, waxes and polymer emulsions throughout the area.

A graduate of Roosevelt University in Chicago, Hilliard was formerly an AMSCO Barge sales representative.

D.W. Hilliard

Named representative for fraternal group

Donald Heggem of 1468 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine, has been appointed a district representative for Lutheran Brotherhood, Minneapolis-based fraternal insurance society.

Heggem graduated from Kelvyn Park High School, Chicago and he attends Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine

He is a member of the Harry Siemon Agency, headquartered in Addison.

McChesney to receive Prudential citation

John McChesney, 521 S. Harvard, Arlington Heights, will receive a Prudential president's citation for outstanding accomplishments in 1972. McChesney is an agent in the company's Northwest suburban district agency, located in Park Ridge at 747 Devon Ave.

John McChesney

In announcing the award, senior vice president William Ingram, who is in charge of Prudential's Mid-America operations, said that citations are awarded only to the highest-ranking representatives in the United States.

For the 16th time in the past 17 years, the Chicago-based Mid-America home office ranked first in sales and service among Prudential's nine regional home offices and was awarded the president's trophy.

Home Insurance Co. names personnel chief

The Home Insurance Co. has announced the appointment of Herbert E. Merritt as personnel manager of the Chicago Service Center of the company.

Merritt, who resides in Palatine, began his insurance career with The Home in Chicago in 1949. He subsequently served in various capacities in Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania before assuming his new duties.

Schulte, Wilber apply for patents

Donald L. Schulte, 179 N. Harvey, Oak Park, and John A. Wilber, 99 Shelly Ct., Elk Grove Village, of the advanced switching laboratory of GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake, have applied for two United States patents.

They are co-inventors of computer features in the TSPS (traffic service position system) built and installed by GTE Automatic Electric. Their inventions include:

A system for reconfiguring central processor and instruction storage combinations, and a recovery control circuit for the central processor of a digital communication system.

Relo Inter-City reports gains

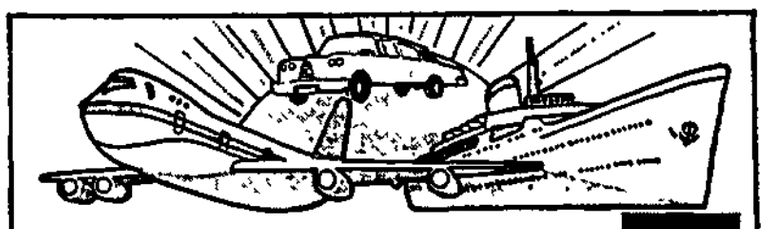

RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization, completed the first half of its 1973 fiscal year with solid gains in all phases of its business.

Buoyed by a 40.14 per cent increase in the number of people referred from one member to another for house-hunting help in April compared with the same 1972 month, RELO finished the November, 1972-April, 1973 period with a 32 41 per cent increase in referrals.

Number of houses sold and dollar volume of referral transactions showed even greater increases over fiscal 1972, RELO's previous record year.

In April, 1973, RELO's 625 members whose sales forces cover about 7,000 key residential markets in the U. S. and overseas sold 53.5 per cent more houses through the referral program than they did in April, 1972. For the first half of the fiscal year, ending April 30, the number of transactions was 37.54 per cent ahead of the comparable period a year ago.

In dollar volume, RELO members' referral sales showed an increase of 42.72 per cent, the first half of fiscal 1973 compared with the November, 1971-April, 1972 period.

The Renter's Revenge:
$1,250 down, $172* a month, and it's yours.

Investing in a Bright Oaks townhome can be a financial move towards a larger home a few years away. In the meantime, you can enjoy your well-designed villa, set among rolling open spaces with native oak trees. While we mow the lawn and maintain your townhome's exterior, you and your guests can take advantage of the private tennis courts and swimming pool.

Kennedy Brothers are the people behind Bright Oaks. Having custom built homes on Chicago's north shore, they know how to design living space, detail by detail, to make you more comfortable.

So begin to see your way out of the renter's rut. Look over Bright Oaks real soon.

you're not only losing a landlord, you're gaining equity.

Bright Oaks is located on Three Oaks Road, ½ mile north of downtown Cary. Take the Northwest Tollway (I 90) to Barrington Road Drive north to Northwest Highway (Rt. 14). Take Rt. 14 west to Three Oaks Road Go east on Three Oaks to models and display area Open 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. Phone (312) 639-5555.

COME IN AND have fun is clearly the invitation from this cheerful family room. Once a grimy garage, it was converted into a recreation area. The dining table and chairs serve couble duty when bridge is in order. The warm dark finish on the buffet and hutch offers a pleasing contrast to the crisp white wall.

Home should 'grow' with family

As children progress from toddlers to teens, more elbow room is needed for family activities and entertainment.

Parents often consider adding a family room to their present home, rather than face the mental strain and expense of moving. Yet a recent national survey estimates that it costs between $18 and $30 per square foot to add a room at ground level, not including interior decorating. This totals $3,210 to $5,400 for building costs alone for a 12 x 15 foot family room.

This expense is eliminated by converting an attached garage into a recreation area.

To prove how easily the metamorphosis can take place, a family room was designed in a 21 x 19 foot two-car garage, which demonstrates that a warm, inviting, "come in and have fun" room is feasible on a limited budget.

CONVERTING A garage into a family room requires careful planning to utilize available space for maximum family enjoyment. There should be room for energy-releasing activities like table tennis, bumper pool or shuffle board, as well as quiet games like chess, checkers and backgammon.

Teens consider a stereo center a "must," and Dad needs a portable TV to keep up with his favorite teams, plus a comfortable couch where he can stretch out and relax.

Providing a wide range of activities in one room requires compact, functional furniture with ample storage potential. Contemporary campaign designs offer a multi purpose answer to the storage dilemma in dazzling shades of green, yellow, white and blue.

Open-ended cubes, for example, stack to form a stereo center, with lots of room for records and speakers, and bunch to serve "coffee and" in front of an inviting electric fireplace. Or they can stand alone as sofa end tables, with handy storage shelves for books and magazines.

Chests team up to form a convenient TV perch, in which an assortment of games and cards may be stashed with ease. Back-to-back desks are ideal for chess and checker matches, letter-writing or scrabble for two.

Another hardboard siding featuring a look of stucco with a skip-trowel texture was installed on the other walls for a pleasing contrast in color, texture and design.

Convenience is also a top priority in family room planning. Including a dining table, serving facilities and an inexpensive portable refrigerator will save Mom countless trips back and forth from the kitchen. A 42-inch round dining table takes little floor space and doubles as a bridge table.

Memories of the room's other life as an oil-oil-stained parking lot quickly fade the moment family members and guests enter the area through a brightly striped canopy. Thoughtful arrangement of eye-appealing, functional furniture allows a wide range of activities — from quiet chats in front of the fireplace to rousing bumper pool contests.

There's a family room hidden in many homes. Garages, porches and seldom used dining rooms are all potential recreation areas. With today's dazzling array of budget priced furniture and inexpensive and durable wall panelings, creative decorating need not be costly. The priceless ingredient is imagination.

Annen & Busse salesmen take selling course

Annen and Busse Realtors have announced the following seven newest sales associates who have completed Annen and Busse's sales orientation course. They are: Joe Gibbons, Fyrne Gran, Rose Marie Gullans, Phyllis Raufelsen, Mary Lou Shepherd, Bill Uher and Don Wendell.

Annen and Busse are pioneers in the field of offering sales training for new associates as they join the firm. The course consists of ten sessions held semi-weekly, conducted by the office sales managers of the four Annen and Busse locations, including vice presidents Donald G. Heidorn, general sales manager; and Wallace E. Busse.

Instruction is supplemented with visual and audio aids in the form of film studies, tapes, and written materials. The course includes not only specifics involved with an association with Annen and Busse, Inc., but also general real estate sales information not always covered in classes the associate attends before licensing.

Combined with this, the associate is educated along the lines of sales motivation, personal time management and advance selling techniques.

Associates attending the course have found it invaluable; so much so that many of the experienced associates return and retake specific sessions for the purpose of review.

75% lot loans opening new lending area

Government authorization to grant 75 per cent lot loans has opened a new lending area for two major savings and loan associations.

They are $140-million Lincoln Federal of Berwyn and near-$100 million Chicago Savings, 6245 S. Western Ave.

Both institutions find homesite borrowers, generally, to be young couples looking toward construction of their first home.

President Philomena Pakel has found Chicago Savings lot loan customers to be in their 20s or early 30s.

Lack of borrower's years in no way seems to determine purchase price of lot or amount of loan.

Lincoln reports lot prices of from $9,000 to $15,000. Chicago Savings' spread was greater, from $8,800 to $28,000.

"Usually," says Lincoln's president Frank J. Kinst, "a buyer plans to spend three to four times as much for his house as for his lot." This would indicate eventual house and lot investments from $36,000 to $140,000.

Nearly all borrowers at the two institutions are taking advantage of five-year balloon note loans, which permit paying off as little as 40 per cent of the principal during the first 59 months.

THE REMAINING 60 per cent becomes due with the 60th payment and can be retired in a lump amount or with proceeds from construction loans.

Although several borrowers at Chicago Savings converted to construction mortgages during the first year of their lot loan, Mrs. Pakel pointed out:

"One-fourth of our lot borrowers choose to pay off the mortgage in 60 equal payments. Seventy-five per cent, however, preferred paying 40 per cent for 59 months."

Kinst noted that all of Lincoln's loans were based on the 60th month balloon payment. He remarked:

"Young people acquiring choice land today have every reason to expect an increase in value due to inflation. As the homesite appreciates, so does the owners equity in the eventual home-lot package.

"Most young buyers anticipate an escalation in earnings while they are paying off their loan. And, with a concurrent increase in the value of their vacant property, they are in a position to build a better home and justify a larger mortgage obligation."

Dominion Golf & Country Club

Condominium Homes Incomparable.

Incomparable Plaza One, the first of the Plazas at Dominion Golf and Country Club, presents a dramatic new concept in condominium living. The Plaza is designed as a community with its own distinctive character, offering a varied selection of homes. Elegant plaza homes surround three striking towers housing spacious high-rise homes and magnificent two-story penthouses. At the heart of the plaza is a recreation center with a wide variety of leisure time activities. Outside, there are facilities for swimming, tennis, ice skating, badminton, volleyball and shuffleboard. Inside the recreation building, there are rooms for indoor sports, as well as fully equipped rooms for crafts and hobbies, including a ceramics studio and a woodworking shop. Dominion's recreation complex is a place for you and your neighbors to gather and enjoy your leisure time to the fullest.

The Incomparable Dominion Golf and Country Club is a private club with charter golf or social membership offered to Dominion homeowners. The elegantly appointed three million dollar country club includes a full array of facilities for dining, hosting social activities or just relaxing in the lounge, clubroom or saunas. The cost of operating and maintaining the club is not a part of your monthly condominium charge.

An incomparable 18-hole championship golf course surrounds Plaza One, for the exclusive use of Dominion Golf and Country Club members. It is designed to be a challenging test of golf for the low-handicapper, as well as an enjoyable course for the average weekend golfer. In addition, it provides magnificent vistas from the adjacent patios and balconies of Plaza One's high-rise homes and plaza homes.

An Incomparable selection of homes for every lifestyle.

St. Viator High School students win scholarships

James Bristol, Mount Prospect, was presented the Erdmann award Saturday at a St. Viator High School pregraduation breakfast in the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

The Erdmann award, contributed by Mr. and Mrs. George Erdmann in memory of their son, Christopher, has been presented annually to the St. Viator High School graduate who most typifies the school's ideals. Christopher, who would have graduated from the school in 1968, died of leukemia the year before.

For the award members of the senior class and school officials select the student who "best exemplifies the ancient legend of St. Christopher and the living tradition of St. Viator."

BRISTOL, WHO WAS vice president of the senior class, was active in both football and track for three years. He has been named to the honor roll, the National Honor Society and has been selected one of the "Outstanding Teenagers of America."

Nominated to the U.S. Air Force Academy, Bristol received Illinois State and Marquette University scholarships. He plans to attend Marquette in the fall.

Daniel Janik, Arlington Heights, was presented with the good citizen award sponsored by the Ell Skinner Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Janik is a member of the National Honor Society. An Illinois State Scholar, Janik was recently appointed to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

OTHER SCHOLARSHIP winners were announced at the breakfast. They were: Stanley Bobowski and Stephen O'Neil, University of Notre Dame; Kurt Heerdegen, Lake Forest College; David Karpinsky, Bradley University; Sean Reilly, University of Southern California; Terrance Baker, Marian College; Thomas Klein, Illinois General Assembly; Edward Marcolino, Memco; Gregory Romanello, Ripon College and Philip Weirich, Harper College.

All the above students also received Illinois State scholarspips.

Other scholarship winners were: Peter Breen, Allyn Foundation; Thomas Chapman, Carroll College; Francis Cliggett and William McShea, St. Norbert's; Michael Cook, University of Southern California; George Karavas, McMurray College; William Kastner, Purdue University; Michael McGeady, Harper College; James McPherrin, Cornell College; Andrew Michuda, University of Wisconsin and Michael Salerno, Southern Illinois University.

OTHER ST. VIATOR seniors receiving Illinois State scholarships are John Andejeski, Robert Blandford, Ralph Bosch, Michael Brickley, John Brinkworth, William Carley, Mark Carroll, Brian Clifton, Lawrence Coha, Steve Coppoletta, Michael Cullen, Lawrence Deger, Timothy Deger, Ernest DeLord, Andrew Dorner, Christopher Dress, William Ellsworth, William Grabowski, John Hoppe, Michael Horvath, David Jarzemsky, John Kane and John Leahy.

High school class leaders are honored

Valedictorians and salutatorians from seven Dist. 214 high schools were honored at a reception at High School yesterday.

Certificates were presented to each student by members of the Board of Education in recognition of their outstanding academic achievement.

This year's valedictorians are: Kathy A. Blackberg, Joyce A. Conway, Peter G. Harper, Jr., and Karen A. Klein, Arlington High School; Douglas Grilliaert, Carol Ann Hughes, and Linda J. Sealy, Elk Grove High School; Susan Basnik, Forest View High School; James J. Cox, Paula L. Godwin, Ellen K. Hines, Debra Lee Ray, and Debra Katherine Willow, Hersey High School; Renee Plesche, Prospect High School; Debra Elizabeth Smith, Rolling Meadows High School; Carol B. Griffith, Wheeling High School.

Salutatorians are: Arlington, Jody B. Petersen; Elk Grove, Susan L. Gennuso, Wallace Lee Glaub, and Barbara J. Panczak; Forest View, Randy L. Plant; Hersey, Suzanne Joy Sandlund, Carol Ann Shoemaker, and Jean Marie Siciliano; Prospect, Douglas Klaus; Rolling Meadows, Gail Kuthe, and Wheeling, Janet L. Ferguson and Philip J. Toffion.

YOUR MONEY

Probably the most important need for a planned program of savings for the average family is something most of us don't like to talk or even think about — and that is an unexpected accident or other disaster that costs money.

This might be called "disaster savings." It may be needed for an accident or illness causing high medical bills (not all of which are covered by insurance in most cases). It might be the fund you have to fall back on in the case of losing a job or other loss of expected income. Unfortunately, "disaster" wears many faces, and it has a habit of striking when least expected.

That's what "disaster savings" are for. They prevent a financial blow from being crippling. They enable you to weather it, and build again for the future.

Start your essential protective savings plan with us today. We make it easy for you to save, pleasant to visit us . . . and profitable too!

Big top coming to Des Plaines

'The greatest show on earth'

LEAPING AND stunt-performing Dalmatians from Willy Necker's Dog Training School north of Wheeling are featured in this year's Apollo International Circus, to be held next Thursday through Sunday at the Holy Family Hospital grounds, Golf and River roads, Des Plaines. Eight two-hour shows will be presented.

The Big Top will be filled with animal acts and daredevil performers as the Apollo International Circus comes to the Northwest suburbs for four days this month.

Beginning next Thursday, June 14, on the Holy Family Hospital grounds, Golf and River roads, Des Plaines, through Sunday night, June 17, the circus will present 18 acts in each of eight two-hour shows.

The one-ring European-style circus will feature Baron Von Uhl's "Fighting Lions and Tigers." Also included are two aerial acts, an elephant act, Dalmatian and chimpanzee animal acts plus jugglers, trampoline performers and clowns.

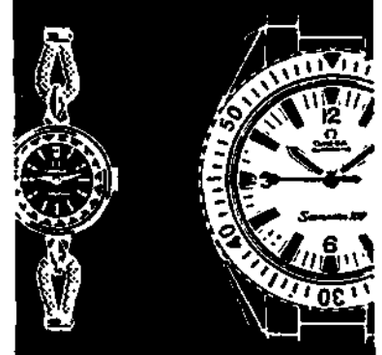

The circus is being sponsored by Holy Family Hospital employes in cooperation with the Lay Advisory Board, the hospital auxiliary and cheerl-aides.

Funds raised by the hospital will be used to purchase equipment for a trauma center to comply with the Illinois Hospital Association Statewide Emergency Radio Network.

Tickets for the circus are $2 and can be purchased at the hospital, Endler Pharmacy, First National Bank of Des Plaines, Kuhn's Delicatessen and Spiegler's, all in Des Plaines; Arleens Pharmacy and Mayberry's Ice Cream Shop in Arlington Heights; Keefer's Pharmacy in Mount Prospect; and the Woodfield Bank.

Performances will be given at 2 and 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 and 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Bits of June history in Illinois . . .

SPRINGFIELD — The assassination of the Mormon leaders Joseph and Hyrum Smith in 1844 was the blackest mark ever put on the record of any June in Illinois history. But the month did have its triumphs: Abraham Lincoln delivered his famous "House Divided" speech June 16, 1858 and June has recorded other events of major importance.

The Mormons came to Illinois in the winter and spring of 1839 and purchased the swampy site of a town called Commerce at a big bend in the Mississippi River. They changed the name to Nauvoo, drained the swamp, and within a few years built a city of 20,000 — the largest in the state (the 1840 population of Chicago was 4,470). Nauvoo had sawmills, gristmills, newspapers, breweries, stores, and other businesses. Its more prosperous citizens lived in brick homes while most of the rest of the state was still housed in log cabins.

BUT THERE WAS a growing anti-Mormon sentiment that threatened to develop into mob action. The anti-Mormons published a newspaper attacking the church leaders and Joseph Smith ordered the newspaper shop destroyed. (One of the three known copies of this paper, the Nauvoo Expositor, is now in the Illinois State Historical Library, Springfield.)

Charged with wrecking the newspaper shop, the Smith brothers surrendered to Gov. Thomas Ford after receiving the governor's assurances of their safety. They were confined in the little two-story limestone jail in Carthage, the Hancock County seat, under guard of an Illinois militia unit, the Carthage Greys.

On June 27, while the governor was on an inspection trip to Nauvoo, members of another militia unit made up a mob, stormed the jail (with the cooperation of the Greys), and killed the Smith brothers. Hyrum Smith died in the first round of firing. Joseph was shot at the second floor window and fell to the ground where he was shot several more times. A visitor, John Taylor, was severely wounded but recovered. A second visitor, Willard Richards, suffered only a slight wound.

EVEN THOUGH the leaders were dead, the attacks continued. The Mormons were forced to abandon their Illinois homes. Their exodus and long trek to Utah under Brigham Young began Feb. 4, 1846.

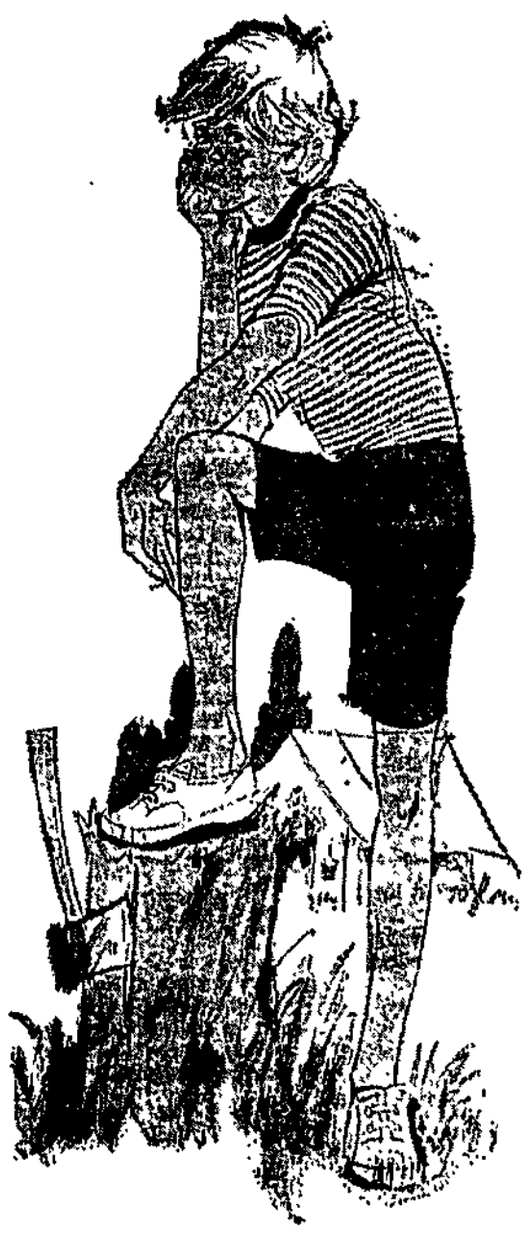

Lincoln's address in which he said, " 'A house divided against itself cannot stand.' I believe this government cannot endure, permanently, half slave and half free," was delivered in what is now Springfield's Old State Capitol. Earlier in the day Lincoln had been named "the first and only choice of the Republicans of Illinois for the United States Senate." The Lincoln-Douglas Debates followed. Although Douglas was re-elected by the legislature, Lincoln became nationally known.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

8-cent issue to commemorate colonial post rider

The colonial post rider will be commemorated on an 8-cent U.S. stamp to be released June 22 at Rochester, N.Y., in conjunction with a meeting of the Society of Philatelic Americans.

This is the third in a series of four stamps marking "The Rise of the Spirit of Independence" honoring the Bicentennial of the American Revolution.

Colonial America's mounted letter carriers, the post riders, were expected to cover the 250-mile Boston Post Road from New York to Boston within one month. The first inter-colonies mail left New York on Jan. 22, 1673 and arrived in Boston about Feb. 5 where the rider received congratulations on the success of his journey.

Colonial mails however were slow and expensive. Letters cost so much per mile and there was considerable wrangling between letter writers and the post office about estimated distances.

Benjamin Franklin, who managed the postal operations in the north (William Hunter was his southern counterpart), put an end to the disputing when, in 1753, he rode the Boston Post Road with an odometer to measure the miles. After each mile, a member of the entourage would alight and place a stone next to the road. These milestones were a considerable help in regulating postal rates.

The post rider stamp was designed by William A. Smith of Pineville, Pa. and will be printed 50 stamps to a pane (with one plate number) by the Giori press.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Post Rider Stamps, Postmaster, Rochester, N.Y. 14601" enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

TO JIM S. OF Arlington Heights: I'm not exactly sure what kind of "stamp addresses" you're looking for but if you wish to buy stamps from dealers, I suggest you obtain a copy of one of the stamp newspapers (Mekeel's, Linn's, etc.). Many, many dealers advertise their wares through the newspaper columns and most are listed by the country or countries they specialize in. You might also visit one of the local stamp dealers, or one of the weekend stamp bourses in the area, where you can look over the stamps and the dealer can answer any questions you might have.

If this hasn't helped you, write again and I'll try and do better next time.

THE U.S. POSTAL Service will issue, late this year, a 1973 Mini-Album with 33 stamps, including the complete Postal People issue.

The albums will sell for $3 each and will be available at most post offices.

Further details on this collectors' piece will be published later.

Collecting Coins...by Mort Reed

How many coins should honor 200th anniversary?

Shall we have six new coin designs to celebrate our 200th anniversary in 1976; should we have just two coin reverses devoted to the occasion, or should we simply ignore our birthday completely and leave our coins just as they are? This is a question that must be answered soon if any changes are to be made in so much as a single side of one coin.

The question has been under heated debate for several days and the pros and cons are just as far apart now as they have ever been and the situation is beginning to involve some rather important congressional personalities. Some, of course, are against anything over and above the token commemoration suggested for the reverse of the Kennedy half-dollar and Eisenhower dollar. Others seem to favor a total conversion of a six coin designs to a bicentennial motif.

THE CELEBRATION date is two and one-half years away, but the decision as to whether we will or will not have: 1) Six new circulating coins, 2) One commemorative silver dollar or half-dollar, and 3) One gold commemorative coin of a denomination to be determined, must be made within the next few weeks.

We have prepared a ballot showing all six of our present coins with space provided to show the reader's choice with room for suggestions pertaining to suggested subject matter. These ballots will be turned over to the House Banking and Currency Committee chaired by Rep. Wright Patman, (D-Tex.) and the subcommittee on consumer affairs, presided over by Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan (D-Mo.)

One ballot will be mailed immediately to each person sending in one stamped, self-addressed 10-inch business envelope to:

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

One major difference between an expert and an average player is that the expert sees all sorts of possibilities that the average player overlooks.

The average player would look over dummy; see that there was no apparent way to avoid the loss of a heart trick. Then he would draw trumps; lead his queen of hearts and hope that West would hold the king and not cover.

The expert would see two legitimate ways to make the grand slam. The way it works this time is for South to play a few rounds of trumps; cash dummy's ace of hearts; run off all his black cards and eventually make his 13th trick with his queen of hearts or one of dummy's small diamonds, depending on what poor East, who was dealt five diamonds and the king of hearts, is holding onto at the finish.

The way that doesn't work is for South to play dummy's ace and king of diamonds ruff a third diamond and then run off his black cards in the same manner. This play would have worked if West held the king of hearts and at least four diamonds.

Which line of play is the better one? The one that works, because it will bring home the contract against five diamonds and the king of hearts in either the East or West hand. The other line can only squeeze West.

Band concert slated at Prospect High

The Prospect High School spring band concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. today. The program will include selections by the symphonic and concert bands.

Special features will be a piano solo, Chopin's "Ballade in G Minor" by senior John Kallimani and senior Douglas Dederich's French horn solo "Mozart French Horn Concerto 2."

The John Philip Sousa award and the outstanding senior award will be presented during the program according to band director Ralph Wilder.

Hersey marching band wins top awards

The Hersey High School marching band won two first place awards in the annual Harvard Milk Festival parade Saturday.

The band received recognition as "outstanding band of the day" and first place in their division. Bands from Illinois and Wisconsin participated in the festival at Harvard, Ill.

DuBrow on TV . . . by Rick DuBrow

Watergate tearjerker gets a 'female lead'

HOLLYWOOD — The televised Senate Watergate hearings that resumed Tuesday got the feminine touch when Sally Harmony, former secretary of Gordon Liddy, answered questions from the Senate committee in the telecast carried by NBC. She had a summery look and a poised manner.

A light-haired woman, wearing an outfit of dark blue with white polka dots, and a thin necklace, Mrs. Harmony, sitting at a table next to her lawyer, retained her aplomb throughout the session.

For the most part, she seemed to be treated in a courtly manner by the questioners. Her attitude reminded one at times of a schoolmarm who had efficiency as well as looks.

Occasionally she put on dark-framed glasses to glance at material. Sometimes she gestured with her hands in replying to questions. At times she smiled politely, and a few times, when some genuine humor in the proceedings brought forth laughs from others, she joined in.

THE QUESTIONING of Mrs. Harmony was, in effect, part of the Senate committee's careful, nondramatic investigatory process, and at times, even apparently while the proceedings were continuing, video inserted some commercials. But, despite the low-key nature of the exchanges between the committee and Mrs. Harmony, the feminine touch did alter the tone of the goings-on to a degree.

Whether this tone had anything to do with the results of the ratings that NBC-TV distributed shortly after Tuesday's session wound up is a matter of conjecture — but, according to the network, the ratings were better than expected by many in the video industry.

Tuesday was the start of the experiment in which the three major commercial television networks, rather than simultaneously covering the hearings live, began a rotation process in which each takes turns on succeeding days.

Some video observers feel that the two networks not broadcasting the hearings on a given day will, with their regular daytime lineups of soap operas and game shows, invariably outpoint the video Senate sessions in the ratings by a considerable margin.

BUT NBC-TV SAYS that was not the case Tuesday in the spot statistics recorded for New York City and Los Angeles. According to the network, it had a 3.7 rating and 19 share in New York as opposed to ABC-TV's 3.0 and 19 share and CBS-TV's 5.0 and 26 share.

And in Los Angeles, says NBC-TV, it recorded a 9.5 and 41 share as opposed to CBS-TV's 2.1 and nine share and ABC-TV's 4.6 and 20 share.

It should be noted that the hearings start at 10 a.m. New York time and 7 a.m. in Los Angeles, which means that competitive programming is stronger in the East than in the Far West when the Senate proceedings get under way.

Another possible variable is the name value of those being questioned, and NBC-TV says it is surprised at its Tuesday ratings because those who appeared before the committee were not the best known figures in the case.

At any rate, it is also possible that the women who compose the majority of television's daytime audience felt a little more at home with what they saw on the video screen when a woman took the spotlight at the Senate hearings and held it for a long time.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

When man becomes extinct, will his budget balance?

WASHINGTON — Stress is the father of eloquence. Which is why so many famous quotations have emerged from military men under fire.

Examples abound. "Fustest with the mostest." "We have just begun to fight." "Don't shoot, colonel, I'll come down." Etc.

It was, I believe, also a military man, Commodore Claus von Frigate, who uttered the immortal line: "If you can't lick it, tax it."

NO OTHER old saying, military or civilian, is more valid or relevant today.

What happened when environmental pollution suddenly loomed as a threat to life on this planet and nobody seemed to have any clear idea of how to cope with it?

I'll tell you what happened: Several members of Congress introduced bills to tax pollution.

The philosophical motivation for this type of legislation appears to be: If we cannot prevent the human race from becoming extinct, at least let us fade into oblivion with a balanced budget.

AND NOW THE von Frigate precept is operative once again with respect to the energy crisis.

Nobody in charge having come up with a feasible plan for overcoming the current gasoline shortage, there is a move afoot to tax it.

The administration, we are told, is considering asking Congress to raise gasoline taxes by as much as $7 billion a year.

Such a move would not make any more motor fuel available — except to motorists rich enough to continue to buy gasoline. But it would have the beneficial effect of reducing the federal deficit.

WHEN YOU meditate upon this situation for a spell, you are likely to conclude there is no national problem presently outstanding that couldn't be taxed.

For instance, what remedial action springs to mind in connection with the Watergate scandal? Swearing off bugging? Don't be unrealistic!

Electronic eavesdropping is far too deeply ingrained in American life to give it up now.

But a good, stiff wiretap tax — aha! now you're getting somewhere!

DESPITE YEARS of research there is still no cure for the common cold. Tax it!

Birth control continues to be a source of great controversy. Tax it! And simultaneously enact a pregnancy tax too.

Fortunately, our supply of unsolved problems is so abundant we may eventually be able to wipe out the national debt.

As the old saying goes, "it's all ill wind that sometimes makes the best windfall."

Social Security and You

Q. I've been getting monthly social security disability benefits since 1967, and I know I'll be eligible for Medicare coverage starting in July. Will my minor children, who also get monthly checks as my dependents, be able to get Medicare coverage too?

A. No. The recent change in the law extends Medicare coverage only to disabled workers like you, and to disabled widows and widowers 50 to 65, people 18 and over who receive social security benefits because they became disabled before 22, and certain other disabled people. Minor children are not included.

Q. Over the years I've accumulated 51 quarters of coverage under social security. However, for the last two years and until I retire in six more years, I'll be working at a civil service job and won't be getting social security coverage. My brother recently told me that he thinks I have to be working under social security at the time I retire in order to get monthly benefits. Is my brother right?

A. No. The amount of work (quarters of coverage) you need under social security to be eligible for monthly payments is determined by your date of birth, but no workers needs more than 40 quarters of coverage to be insured for life. Since you have 51 quarters of coverage, you are already insured and will be eligible for monthly benefits when you reach retirement age.

The amount of your monthly check, however, is not based on quarters, but on your average yearly earnings covered by social security over a period of years.

Q. I'll be 72 in August. I sighed up for Medicare when I was 65, but I couldn't get monthly retirement benefits because I was working and earning too much. After I'm 72, however, I understand I can keep right on working and still get my full benefits. Should I apply for payments after my 72nd birthday?

A. You won't have to. Your payments will start automatically with the month of your 72nd birthday. And because you continued to work without getting benefits after 65, and you can now get special delayed retirement credits. This increases your benefits amount 1 per cent for each year after 1970 that you worked and didn't get monthly social security payments. If you have any questions about this, call any social security office.

Veterans' news

Vietnam-era GI bill cutoff doesn't affect job training

Although GI Bill education benefits for thousands of Vietnam Era veterans will expire May 31, 1974, the Veterans Administration has emphasized that the May, 1974 expiration date does not affect GI Bill job or farm cooperative training, apprenticeship or flight training benefits for these veterans.

This clarification was made by Joseph J. Mulone, director of the VA regional office in Chicago. He pointed out that most education benefits for those discharged prior to June 1, 1966, would expire on May 31, 1974, the eighth anniversary of the current GI Bill.

The 1966 law allows each veteran eight years to complete his training. The time is computed from the individual's date of discharge or from the date of the law, whichever is later.

Mulone explained that the original bill did not include flight, apprenticeship, on-the-job and farm-cooperative training, so eligibility for these benefits will not expire for Post Korean veterans until Aug. 30, 1975, which is eight years after the date they were authorized by law.

THE DIRECTOR noted that 1.4 million, or 33 per cent, of 4.1 million veterans made eligible by the 1966 law have used all or part of their education benefits.

The current GI Bill provided eligibility to all veterans discharged since Jan. 31, 1955, many of whom had been out of service several years before they became eligible, the VA director pointed out.

The over-all participation rate for Vietnam Era veterans is about 46 per cent.

VA pays veterans (with no dependents) $220 monthly if they are full-time trainees, with higher rates for those with dependents. On-job trainees with no dependents are paid a starting allowance of $160 monthly — larger checks go to those with dependents. Employers also pay the veteran-trainee wages, which are increased on a regular schedule during the training period.

Veterans whose benefits may soon expire, or any eligible veteran interested in GI Bill benefits, are urged to contact any VA office or representatives of local veterans service organizations.

Faces of Watergate

MAURICE STANS, former Commerce secretary, is under indictment in New York, accused of obstructing a federal investigation and lying to a grand jury. The accusation relates to a secret contribution to the Nixon campaign.

UNDER INDICTMENT in New York is John Mitchell, former Attorney General, accused in the secret $200,000 contribution to the Nixon campaign. He faces charges of obstructing a federal investigation and lying to a grand jury.

REORGANIZATION at the White House finds J. Fred Buzhardt moving there as presidential counselor. He has been general counsel at the Pentagon.

CHARLES COLSON was a special counsel to President Nixon in the pre-Watergate days. He hired E. Howard Hunt, former CIA man and convicted Watergate conspirator.

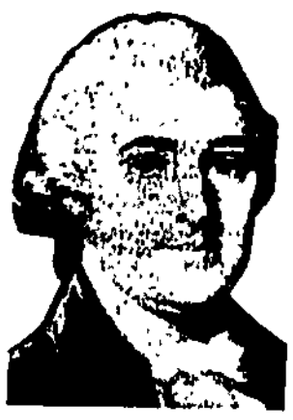

IT WAS EGIL Krogh Jr. who allegedly authorized the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. Krogh is a former Ehrlichman aide at the White House.

A WATERGATE witness, Sally Jackson Harmony is former secretary to G. Gordon Liddy, convicted in the conspiracy.

A lot of talk, but will anything come of it?

WILLIAM BLOUNT

"If it were shown that he was in on this (Watergate), there's no question that there would be impeachment proceedings."
— Barry Goldwater

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — Only the truly flinthearted have ever relished the idea of impeaching government officers. When Constitution framers argued the matter of how to throw rascals out of office, indeed how to prove that they deserved same, an honorable gentleman of the time said it for many when he observed:

"If (an official) is reelected, that will be sufficient proof of his innocence."

Yet, sentiment aside, what's there to do with an official who cannot be reelected? If he's guilty of misconduct, Senator Goldwater has said it. So have a good many others in official Washington these days.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has called either for President Nixon's resignation or impeachment. Martha Mitchell is one of a line of lesser luminaries who've suggested he resign. Reps. John E. Moss, D-Calif., and Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., say they want the House of Representatives to become part of the Watergate investigations by setting up a select committee to determine whether impeachment is warranted — "and then act accordingly if it is."

NOT IN MODERN memory has speaking the unspeakable been so popular. The Washington Afro-American newspaper recently ran a lead story concerning what effects an impeachment would have on the Black community. Some area teachers have been asked by students to explain what impeachment means. The Library of Congress has been so deluged with requests for impeachment material, its legislative branch has compiled an informational kit to meet demand.

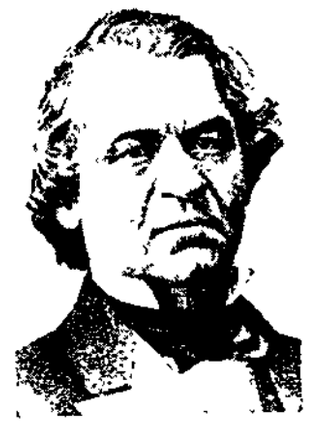

It's all preliminary and no progress, however. Says a Republican aide: "Actually, I don't even think there's been an Impeach Nixon Committee formed yet. There was one in Lyndon Johnson's time, you know. Personally I think it's mostly garbage. People who've hated Nixon for years are getting the chance to drop hints of impeachment with somber faces and political impunity. But I can't blame them. Giant titillations like this don't happen very often."

INDEED NOT. Though most administrations, not to say most presidents, have suffered occasional talk of impeachment, the procedure has come around about as often as Halley's Comet. According to one Library of Congress report, only 11 such trials — one one of a president — have taken place in U. S. history.

The procedure, which is rooted in seven-century-old English law, is fraught with legislative movement and laden with tapestry. Constitutionally, any officer of the government may be impeached (a term from Latin which means to investigate, not to remove) for conviction of "Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors." The procedure is initiated by charges made on the floor of the House by a member who, traditionally, intones: "I do impeach such and such of the following high crime or misdemeanor. First . . . Second . . . Etc."

The resolution is then referred to committee, which conducts hearings. If hearings indicate impeachment is necessary, that charges are indeed supported by facts, the resolution is sent back to the House for vote. A simple majority is sufficient.

BOTH THE SENATE and the impeachment subject are then notified. The Senate takes charge of the actual proceedings, with the chief justice of the United States presiding. The rest of the activity would be much like a court trial — attorneys, witnesses, etc. On completion of the trial, members of the Senate would vote on specific charges. A two-thirds vote against the defense (on any charge) would result in conviction and removal from office.

ANDREW JOHNSON

In the 177 years since the first impeachment trial (against Sen. William Blount of Tennessee, for hanky-panky with an Indian agent), only four officials have been convicted and removed from office — all judges. One president (Andrew Johnson), and one cabinet member (secretary of War William Belknap, in 1876) were tried; Johnson, who has come to be known as a patriot who served reasonably well in trying times, was acquitted by one vote; Belknap resigned before his acquittal.

In practical terms, the cumbersome impeachment authority has been an ineffective means of removing wrongdoers from federal office. Surely, says a cynic, "We must have had more than four dishonest federal officers in nearly 200 years." Scholars have maintained that one reason such proceedings have been so few is that they are archaic, a bit like drumming a man out of the corps, "thus one uses the trial only for the extreme."

THERE ARE those who believe the time of extreme is here again. But not necessarily for Richard Nixon. U. S. Court of Appeals Judge Otto Kerner may be a more likely candidate. He, the former governor of Illinois, has been convicted of bribery and perjury — but maintains his innocence, retains his judgeship and continues to draw a $42,500 salary. He says he won't quit. In such cases, if Congress agrees, there is only a constitutional remedy — impeachment followed by a forced exit.

As for President Nixon, he's been accused of much, convicted of nothing. And many citizens in Washington, vacationing here from across the land, say talk of congressional trial at this time is vicious, vengeful and wrong. "I believe in my President," says a tourist from Wisconsin, "and that's that, period."

Yet many others believe, as did U. S. Justice David Brewer at the turn of the century, that open debate in a free place is good and proper. Said he:

"The time is past in history when any living man . . . can be set on a pedestal and decorated with a halo. True, many criticisms may be, like their authors, devoid of good taste, but better all sorts of criticisms than no criticism at all."

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE:
he had a little list

In British politics, it's honor where honor is due . . .

(Providing the price is right)

EDWARD HEATH:
for services rendered

by TOM CULLEN

LONDON — The British are taking a "holier-than-thou" attitude towards the Watergate affair, but they have no cause to throw up their hands in horror.

If one accepts that corrupt methods of raising campaign funds are included in the scandals that are rocking the Nixon administration, then American politicians have nothing to teach their British cousins.

British political campaigns have been financed by dubious methods for as far back as anyone can remember.

The teamsters union may have contributed their mite to President Nixon's campaign for re-election, but here the British Labor party is subsidized outright by the trade unions, which make a political levy on their members for this purpose.

The Conservative party, in turn, gets sizable contributions from big business.

ALTHOUGH IT isn't discussed openly, both parties have raised money by selling peerages and other royal honors in the past, and no doubt they will resort to this means in the future.

Worst offender in this respect was David Lloyd George, Britain's prime minister during World War I, who raised an estimated $15 million by flogging knighthoods and baronetcies to the highest bidders. The slush fund, incidentally, was in his name and not in that of the Coalition Liberal party which he headed.

"If Lloyd George chooses to fritter away the entire $15 million at the roulette tables of Monte Carlo he has a perfect right to do so legally," an eminent British lawyer ruled at the time.

LLOYD GEORGE, in turn, defended the sale of royal honors as being far cleaner than the methods American politicians employed.

"In America," he told one of his cronies, "the steel trusts support one political party, and the cotton people support another. This places political parties under the domination of great financial interests and trusts."

"Here," he pointed out, "a man gives 40,000 pounds (about $200,000) to the party and gets a baronetcy. If he comes to the leader of the party and says, I subscribe largely to the party funds, you must do this or that, we can tell him to go to hell."

Lloyd George was not the first British prime minister to sell titles, but he was the first to establish a price scale.

Knighthoods, which are not hereditary, sold for $50,000; baronetcies, which can be handed on from father to son, for $175,000 to $200,000; peerages fetched as much as $500,000, because they entitled the holder to a seat in the House of Lords.

Barons are the lowest rung on the glittering ladder of the peerage, followed by viscounts, earls, marquesses and dukes. No one has ever suggested that Lloyd George sold dukedoms (only one dukedom has been offered this century, and that was to Winston Churchill, who turned it down). However, Lloyd George did a brisk business in baronies, and some of the viscountcies he created are suspect.

LLOYD GEORGE also broke new ground by distributing honors to ex-convicts, and using them to bribe the press. In fact, the whole honors system became so debased under his administration that writers like Thomas Hardy, Bernard Shaw, Arnold Bennett and H. G. Wells refused titles.

Harold Wilson, Britain's Labor prime minister from 1964 to 1970, broke with tradition when he announced that henceforth honors would be given for public service irrespective of political party. However, in his six years in office he created no fewer than 140 life peers, increasing the membership of the House of Lords by 12 per cent.

BREAKING HIS own rule, Wilson doled out knighthoods to his press secretary and to his doctor, among others.

When Edward Heath, the Conservative party prime minister, came to power in 1970 he restored the practice of awarding honors for political services rendered. Thus in January, 1972 he recommended for a knighthood a prominent industrialist who had contributed $1.5 million to the European Movement, a pro-Common Market cause that is dear to Heath's heart.

A cynic sums up the situation thus: "Politics are financed in Britain much the same as in America, only our methods are less crude."

The Doctor Says...by Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Back and chest pains may be digestive

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you help me? For four years now I have gone to several doctors and even had X-rays for my problem. They either say I'm too young for my symptoms, or they don't know what it is that's wrong. And the last one said he thought I was out of my mind.

For the past four years I have had severe chest pains. My age is 22 and I have had four children. I have been awakened with my chest aching. It felt like it was being crushed and I had a hard time breathing. It seemed to start down in my back and work its way up into my chest and ache clear into my back. The pain is so severe that I sometimes had to get a shot for the pain. The longest it has lasted is about five hours.

I also have trouble in swallowing my food. I take small bites and chew it up as well as possible, it feels like sandpaper going down. The pain is located where my ribs come together. I have also had X-rays for this. I drank some chalky fluid and the doctor said he found nothing. This started about four years ago too. I have a lot of trouble with gas and acid. Doctor, I just don't think I can go through this much longer. I hope and pray you can help me. Thank you.

Dear Reader — Every chest pain is not a sign of heart disease. From your symptoms alone I would be inclined to think that you do not have heart disease at your age.

Heart pain does not cause pain in the back and it is not associated with difficulty in swallowing. More likely you are having spasms of your digestive tract, including the esophagus. This can cause severe chest pain mimicking the pain of a heart attack. Muscles in the esophagus tube clamp down and act like a muscle cramp.

You have a history of a lot of digestive disturbances and since you've already had X-rays, I would presume that you don't have any major obstruction. Anyone who has difficulty in swallowing certainly must have a complete medical examination. Having done that, the best advice I can give you is to change your diet completely.

ELIMINATE all milk and all milk products, including cheese, buttermilk or any foods that are made from milk, coffee, caffeinated or decaffeinated, tea, do not smoke, eliminate all alcoholic beverages if you use them, try to eat a diet made of very lean meat, such as baked chicken, broiled lean beef or broiled fish. Avoid excess use of breads. You can use some Jello, avoid spicy foods, and if you respond well to this procedure, later on you can add more cereals to your diet.

If this regimen helps you a great deal I would suspect that you might have intolerance to some of these foods and you'll have to be careful about which ones you use. High on the list of aggravating factors in your case may well be milk, milk products and coffee. I feel fairly confident that your problem is not heart disease and that most of it originates with difficulties in your digestive tract.

Stress and tension may also be an important factor. Try to minimize the amount of daily stress you have.

Alcoholic must stop drinking

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

This is the third in a series of columns on Alcoholism.

• • • •

The alcoholic must stop drinking in order to recover from his illness. He must give up the very crutch he has hobbled along with through many years of his life.

The Forest Hospital alcoholism treatment program helps the alcoholic learn to walk again. The program helps him understand why he stumbled and fell and how he can keep from drinking again.

The combination in-patient (hospitalized) and outpatient (non-hospitalized) program facilitates the alcoholic's return and commitment to a life of permanent sobriety. The program helps the alcoholic understand his drinking problem — why he drinks; the emotional stresses of his daily life and how to cope with them and how his drinking effects him and his family. In other words the Forest Hospital alcoholism treatment program works with an individual and his alcohol problem within the context of his personality and his life.

Run under the direction of Dr. Robert Simon, director of medical services at Forest Hospital; Joe Troiani, clinical director; and Pat Sweetman, alcoholism therapist and counselor, the program deals first with the medical management of an alcoholic's disease. The patient is medically helped through his alcohol withdrawal process.

BECAUSE the nature of the disease is such that the person may be suffering from any one of a number of physiological complications, the newly admitted patient undergoes a thorough medical examination. He is placed on a highly nutritious diet and on a schedule of limited activity and much rest. This is to insure against further complications resulting from his alcohol withdrawal.

The alcoholic patient at Forest Hospital is involved in various types of therapy and education sessions to help him better understand his disease, its causes and ways he can cope with alcoholism.

Patients meet individually with their therapists and they also meet in group sessions — that is all of the patients hospitalized for alcoholism. They also meet in family sessions. In this way they can concentrate not only on their individual problems but their problems as family members and as people relating to their peers. In sum the alcohol patient learns more about himself and consequently not only better understands his actions but also learns how to be more comfortable with them.

THE OUTPATIENT is one who has stopped drinking but comes to the hospital three or four times a week for individual counseling, family therapy and educational seminars. Through these activities he finds support for his actions thereby making it easier for him to "stay sober."

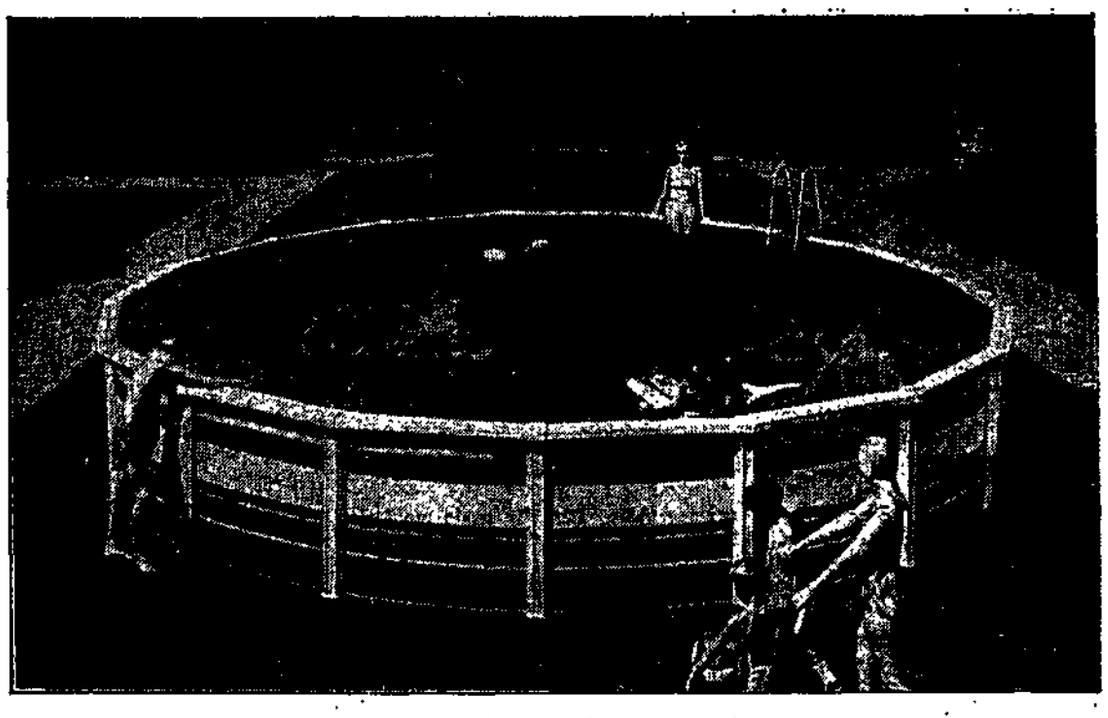

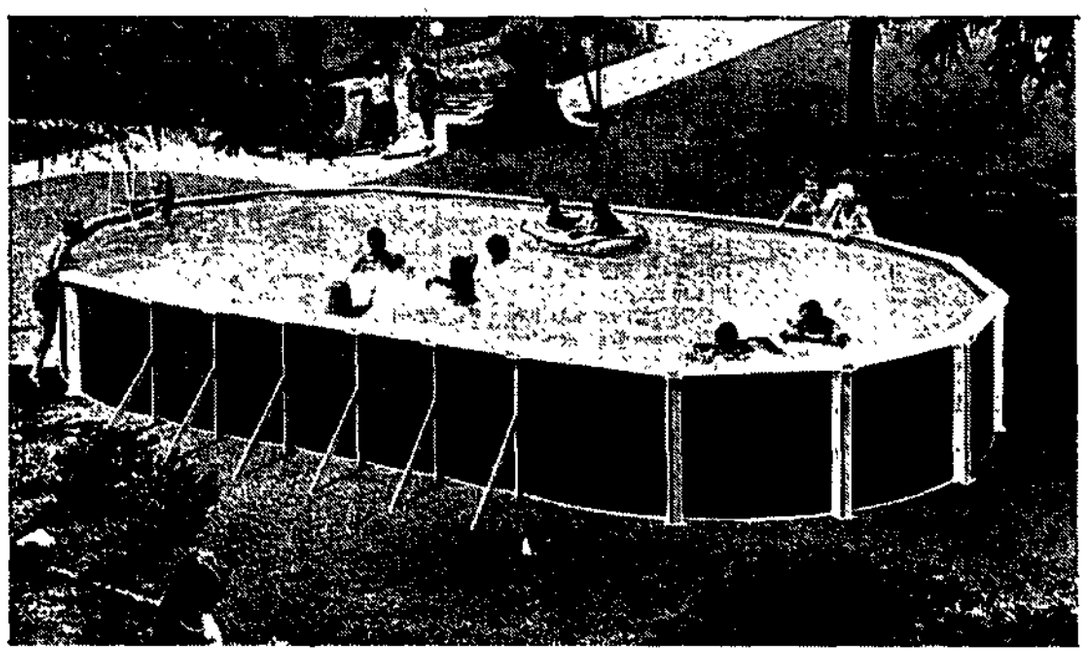

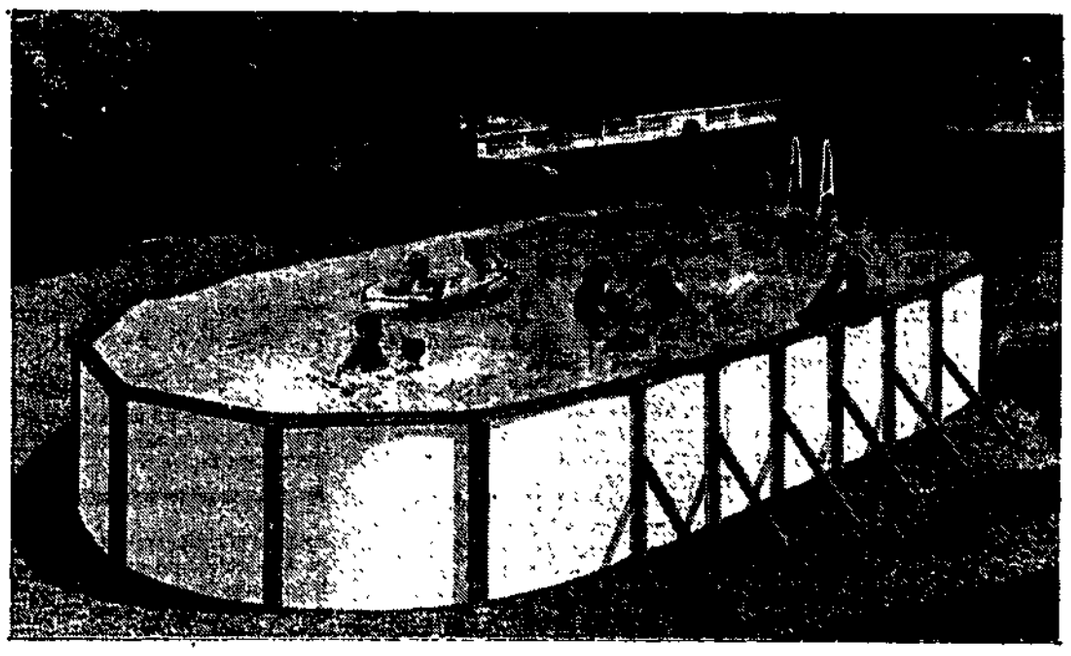

The Forest Hospital Alcoholism Treatment program has made its facilities available to Alcoholics Anonymous. Weekly AA sessions are held at the hospital and are open to the community.

Another goal of the Forest Hospital Alcoholism Program is that of community education. The program believes it important to educate the community about the disease of alcoholism and the fact that it is a recognizable and treatable disease.

'Patience' Seidel bridges the gap

PATIENCE SEEMS to be an attribute misplaced in the generation gap.

This admirable trait appears antiquated in today's speed-minded society. Who has time for it?

Tom Seidel has. You might even go so far as to say his middle name's "Patience" after looking back over his six prior years of testing.

Those who have known this 31-year-old Forest View head baseball coach just this season might think he had it easy winning the first Mid-Suburban League championship in the school's 11-year history. This may be especially true because some of his peers who are much older have yet to win the title. But it just isn't so.

A half dozen years of just missing conference championships was his lot before the glory came last Friday at Fremd High School's diamond. One bitter disappointment after another was his before he could join only five other coaches who have won the title in the league's 10-year history.

This former star performer at Evergreen Park High School, this solid collegiate player, this twice signed (by St. Louis and Cleveland) ex-professional had known success in his playing days. It was after those carefree summers at a little boy's game that his untapped attribute — patience — was tested.

First there were those three straight years of finishing second in a league with "one team we just couldn't beat." During those summers, Tom would leave his job in the state of Washington behind and return home. Here he performed for a semi-pro team that has been a power in the state for years — the Midlothian White Sox.

One of his teammates was Ron DeBolt, Wheeling's head baseball coach. Through Ron — who is one of Tom's closest friends — he learned of the tragic accidental death of former Forest View head coach Hal Sprehe in 1969.

School had recessed for the summer when Forest View's first head baseball coach was electrocuted. It was pretty late to be looking for a qualified man.

"We were fortunate to have a man like Tom available," said Bill Beckman, the school's athletic director.

Fate drew the coach and the school together.

Tom inherited a contender. Throughout the 1970 season his team was either in first place or within striking distance. But the Falcons lost the final two games and went from possible champion to also ran. Wheeling and Elk Grove finished ahead of them.

"It was very disappointing and very discouraging," admitted Tom of that opening year. "It really made me feel that this goal was pretty tough to get.

"I thought that if I was going to get the conference championship, I would have to reevaluate my coaching philosophy. Probably my strongest area of baseball is teaching hitting, but it doesn't win high school ball games."

Although he already knew that defense and pitching was of prime concern on the prep level, he concentrated even more so than he had in the past as far as practice time was concerned. More success came with each season.

The '71 season saw the Falcons finish second to Conant, one game away from the South Division title. And '72 saw his team move a step closer to the crown. The school captured its first division trophy and lost 2-0 to Hersey for the title.

Using a near perfect formula of tremendous pitching, steady fielding and just enough hitting, Seidel's perseverance paid off last week.

"I've been really happy the last few days as far as winning that championship is concerned," said Seidel Tuesday. But already I'm thinking of next year. I'm looking at the freshman kids right now. That's where I'm going in a few minutes."

Some coaches are presently enjoying the relief that comes after a long, wet season. Others are possibly planning a trip to the state championships in Peoria. Tom Seidel's already figuring how he can keep a good thing going.

Only two schools have dominated the MSL more than one year — Maine West in 1964-65-66-67 and Wheeling in 1969-70. You just know that the Falcons' coach would like to equal his Wheeling buddy's back-to-back championships.

"He's quite a student of the game," admits DeBolt, who at one time nearly had Tom as his assistant coach. "He works hard at it. Being a player like myself, he knows how kids react to different situations that we had happen to us the week before."

You might say Tom Seidel's an unorthodox student of the game when it comes to prep ball. You see, he isn't afraid to use underclassmen to get the job done. That's "under" like in freshman on the varsity.

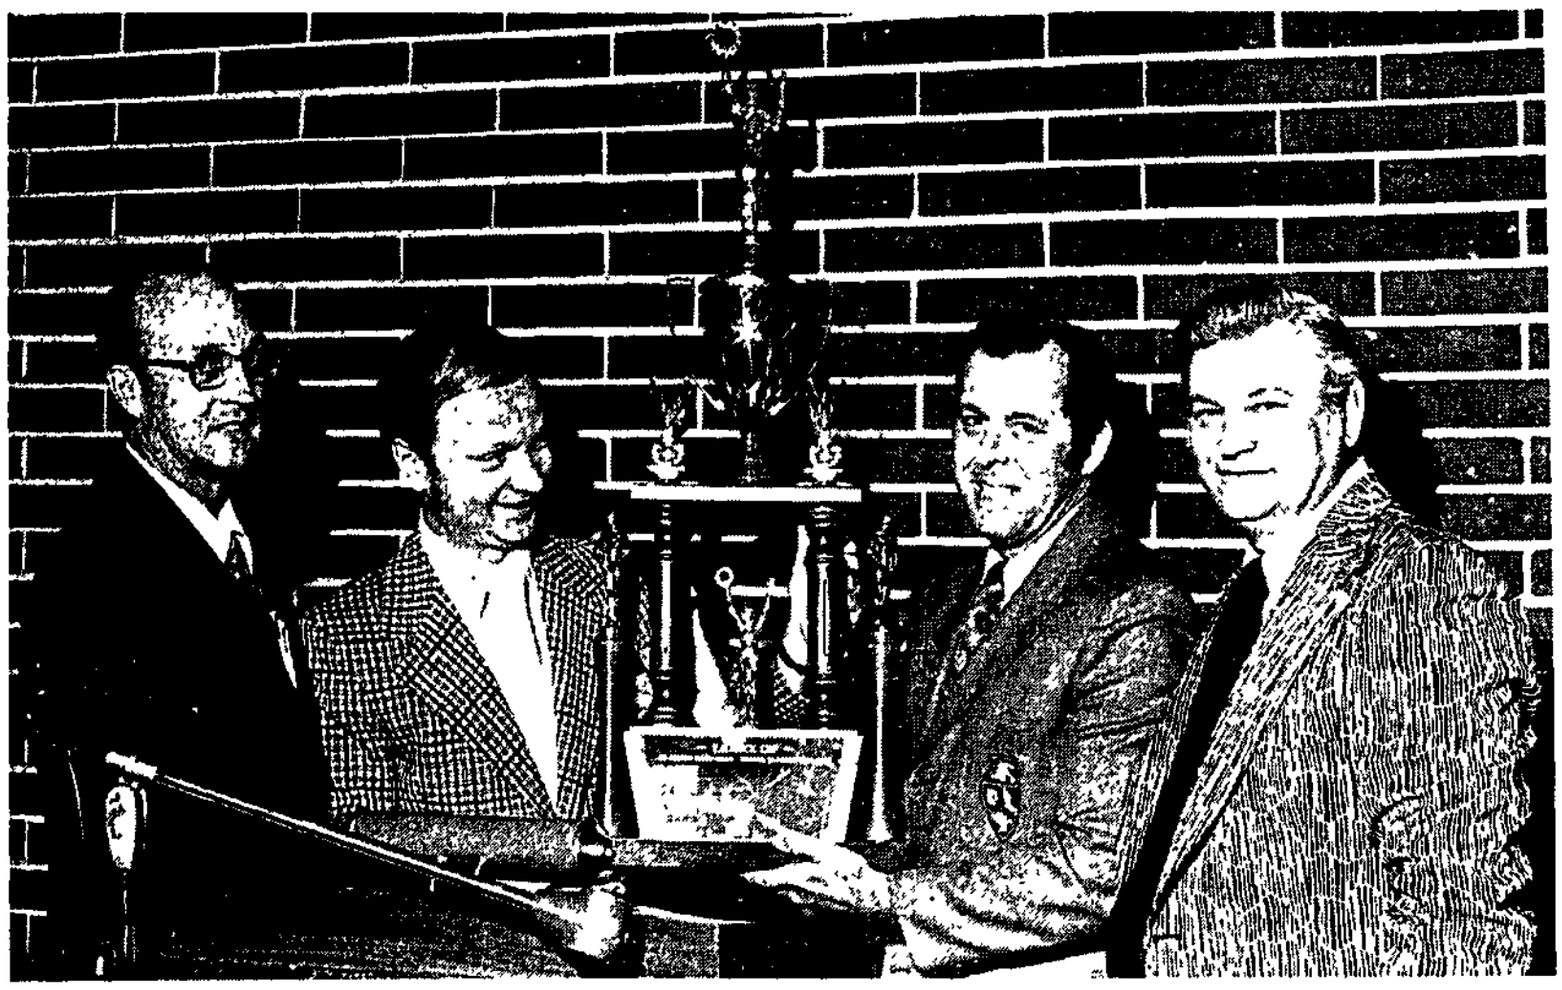

"I think it (the talent younger players have) is missed by a lot of people," explains Tom. "It's there. The thing that's tough is identifying it. If you think it's there, you've got to try it."

Three seasons ago he tried out a youngster named Larry Monroe on the mound. This freshman went 3-0 in the MSL and now, as a junior, is touted by many as one of the top prospects next year in the pro baseball draft among Chicago area pitchers.

Seidel used another freshman last year. This season Ken Meek helped lead the team to a title as a sophomore. He was part of the staff that included "old man" Monroe.

"That's the hard thing," admits Seidel when asked how older varsity players accept their younger varsity brothers. "That's what we had to overcome. Among high school kids, the peer group is very strong. I think it's just a matter of convincing the kids what is best for the team."

Besides being patient, Tom Seidel's proven that it's possible to bridge the peer group gap.

St. Viator finishes 13-6 overall

Disappointing by Lion standards but fine campaign for most clubs

by LARRY EVERHART

To be honest, St. Viator's baseball team did not do as well this year as the players and coach had hoped.

But you've got to remember that the Lions' standards in baseball each year are higher than at most schools because the school has developed a rich tradition as a diamond powerhouse in just a decade of existence.

So, what is a disappointing season for St. Viator would be a very satisfying season for most clubs. You can't exactly call a team a failure with records of 13-6 overall and 8-4 in a very tough conference.

Two factors kept the Lions from reaching their goals of a league title and a possible downstate berth in the state playoff series. They were the overall excellence of the Suburban Catholic Conference — which was perhaps the strongest it has ever been — and one very hard-throwing pitcher that the team had the misfortune to run into in regional tourney play after it won the strong five-team Forest View District.

That pitcher was Bob Belerwalters of Addison Trail, who smothered the normally hard-hitting Lions 1-0 to end their season despite one of Mike Cook's typical standout mound showings.

The most costly conference games, as coach Pat Mahoney painfully recalled, were both against St. Francis de Sales, a school which handed the Lions plenty of misery all of the past school year. (It's the same school which ruined St. Viator's bid for a perfect football season and beat the Lions in overtime in basketball).

First, Viator blew a late-inning 5-0 lead to permit the Pioneers to tie, 5-5, and force the game to be replayed later. Then, after the Lions blasted de Sales 16-1 in the first game of a twin bill, the Pioneers somehow escaped with a one-run victory despite being thoroughly outhit and outplayed for the day.

Other costly conference losses were to Notre Dame and Marist, who Mahoney admitted "beat us pretty good." In the latter contest the Lions were shut out, probably feeling the emotional effects of the death of one of their teammates in an automobile accident that day.

In discussing the season Mahoney said: "You'd have to say the team and I were both disappointed . . . but my prediction about the league being tough and even sure came true. Most of the top teams, including us, had most of our losses within the league.

"Then, once you get into the tournament and run into a tough pitcher, that's it. It's tough setting goals. I can't really pinpoint any positions or guys for our not doing better — it was just one of those things.

"As I told the guys, I was just disappointed for their sake. From my point of view it was one of my most enjoyable seasons because this was one of the hardest-working groups I've ever had. I didn't have to worry about some things you have to worry about with other teams. The boys were more than good athletes . . . they're a fine, mature group of young men."

Several of them take a back seat to no one when it comes to individual accomplishments. Cook — voted the team's Most Valuable Player — as well as Stan Bobowski and Bob Foster were named to the glittering all-conference team. Foster also received a Sportsmanship award and improved tremendously with little experience. Bobowski had so very much expected of him and did not disappoint anyone. All three — as well as catcher Tom Chapman, according to Mahoney — should get strong consideration for all-area honors.

Cook posted a 1.75 earned-run average for 52 innings, twice as many as any other pitcher on the team, with a sparkling strikeout-walk ration of 63 to 18. He also hit .360 with good power in 25 at-bats. Like Bobowski, he delivered the quality that was expected of him after standout seasons last year also in both high school and summer American Legion ball.

Bobowski staged one of his typical red-hot finishes to mark up a .377 average in 61 at-bats. He also led the team in runs batted in 19 in as many games. In one late-season game alone he was four-for-four with four runs scored, three runs batted in and three extra-base hits. He's also steady defensively in right field and has also had similar great seasons for two years in both high school and Legion ball.

Foster was a fine leadoff man, hitting at a .333 clip with the most at-bats, 66, and the second-most hits, 22 to Stan Bobowski's 23.

Chapman hit just .250 but as Mahoney said, "I don't see how there could be a better defensive catcher around." He added that co-captains Bobowski and Chapman were valuable team leaders.

Other fine batting averages were junior Rock O'Donnell's .347 — though he didn't play regularly until late in the season — plus Steve Bobowski's .269 and Mark Rickerson's .266. The team batting

Kansas City Royals hold tryout camp at Niles West

The Kansas City Royals Baseball Academy will hold a tryout camp on Sunday June 10 at Niles West High School Field, Skokie, at 9:00 a.m.

Participants in the tryouts should wear clothing that does not impede body movements and must provide their own gloves. Players on American Legion teams must have written permission from their teams to try out. The age limit is 16-19.

Those selected for the Academy will report to the $1.5 million campus on the southeast edge of Sarasota, Fla., on Aug. 12, 1973 in time for them to matriculate at Manatee Junior College.

During their 16-months at the Academy, all of their expenses will be paid including the Manatee tuition plus medical and hospital insurance. They will sleep, two to a room, in a motel-type dormitory, be fed three diet-planned meals a day and receive a salary.

Upon their graduation, they will be phased into the Royals farm system.

The tryout camp will be conducted by Art Stewart, Art Sepke and members of the Royals Scouting Staff.

Dist. 25 track meet tonight at Prospect

Approximately 340 sixth-, seventh-and eighth-grade students will compete in the first annual Dist. 25 Junior High School track and field meet beginning at 6 p.m. today at Prospect High.

Muoer, Rand, Thomas and South junior highs will enter teams consisting of both boys and girls. Joe Wanner, head track coach at Prospect, is organizing the meet.

Scoring will be done according to grades, with boys and girls competing only against those of the same grade level. However, boys' and girls' scores will be totalled together for each grade in each school.

Girls are scheduled to participate in the long jump, high jump, shot put, baseball throw, 50-yard dash, 60-yard low hurdles, 440-yard relay, 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash.

Boys will compete in the long and high jumps, shot put, 50-yard dash, 60-yard low hurdles, 440, 440 relay, 100, and 880 relay. In addition, sixth-grade boys will run an 880 (half-mile), seventh-grade boys will run a 1320 (¾ of a mile) and eighth-grade boys will have a mile run.

Wanner said he hopes to make the event an annual affair.

"If Dist. 25 would like to continue it, I know I'd like to do it," he said. "To build a track program here you have to get down to the junior high level. That's what this program is."

Is young Eisenhower throwing his weight?

(Ed. Note: A new sports column appeared last week, written by David Eisenhower. Mike Klein, who also is new to the sportswriting business with the Herald, has some reactions to this first Eisenhower column.)

by MIKE KLEIN

There are, in this increasingly nonsensical earthly abode of ours, just two kinds of well-known reefers.

The first you purchase for a good outlay of greenbacks. Then you smoke it. If you are any kind of dude at all, you let everybody else smoke some too.

But this is illegal! And you may end up in the pokey for committing a crime against society.

Now, the second reefer occasionally shows up on newspaper fronts and has nothing at all in common with its reefer relative. If you roll this reefer and smoke it, you will probably burn your face off.

It is this second reefer that stimulates today's comment.

One of Chicago's metros (heavy journalism lingo for city papers) came out with the following reefer on its just past weekend edition: "Dave Eisenhower, sports columnist." In much smaller type was "Every Saturday in Sports."

This reefer was sandwiched in between others reading "Saturday afternoon at the Bijou" and "Disney World pro and con." So right off, you recognize this as big stuff.

Four little pictures also accompanied the three reefers. Three of these were of a man with messed up hair, a white lady with many white teeth and a young man on the telephone.

The final photo was of a little kid rubbing Mickey Mouse on nose. I always thought that kind of thing happened only at drive-in movies or on the couch downstairs.

Inside, splattered across the sports page top was the aforementioned Dave Eisenhower and his first column. It is interesting that young Dave inside looked nothing like young Dave on the paper's front (guy with phone).

One had glasses and his hair parted on the left side. The other had no glasses and his hair parted on the right side. But them's the breaks.

David's qualifications were listed: grandson of one President and son-in-law of another. That, for any sports columnist, is the equivalent of ten or more years spent sweating it out in the field.

His first work was entitled: "Baseball should stay put for 10 years." It was going to Ethiopia? Or maybe Nome?

I can relate to Dave Eisenhower. We are both young men accosting a first job who happen to wear glasses, enjoy sports and "get off" by administering a spanking to the typewriter.

There, however is where the similarities end.

Dave Eisenhower is a big-time, top-of-the-page high paid, syndicated, once-a-week sports columnist for a paper out in metropolitan Pennsylvania; He is big stuff, the kind that grabs reefers.

I am a mere earthworm in the business. My topics, although they sometimes touch professional sports, also include high school golf, little league and sports shorts. I wonder how many little league forms Dave Eisenhower will edit this summer.

Alas, I must give the nod to Dave in one department. Like a responsible person, he and wife Julie have set up their own household in a luxurious mansion-of-sorts owned by a friend, Bebe Rebozo, of Julie's father.

I, being reluctant and unable to cope with the outer world, still reside at home where the bed is warm and the food shows promise.

Anyhow, Dave's first effort wasn't bad, considering he gets one whole week to write a single, bloody column. It mentioned, among other things, that the White Sox were rummies not long ago but have now resurrected themselves.

Dave did, however, make one point that should cause the gallstones in Charles Comiskey's old and dead body to do flips. If he had gallstones.

Wrote Dave: "They (the Sox) play in a rickety park on the edge of a ghetto, with an obsolete scoreboard and a popular NL rival across town."

That stuff about "rickety," "ghetto" and "obsolete" is unadulterated garbage. Fit for the dump. And anyone who has invested the price of admission at Sox Park lately will probably concur.

I get the distinct feeling that Dave has not been in many major league parks. And he probably isn't aware that places like Walla Walla (Hawaii) in the Class "A" Northwest League even exist.

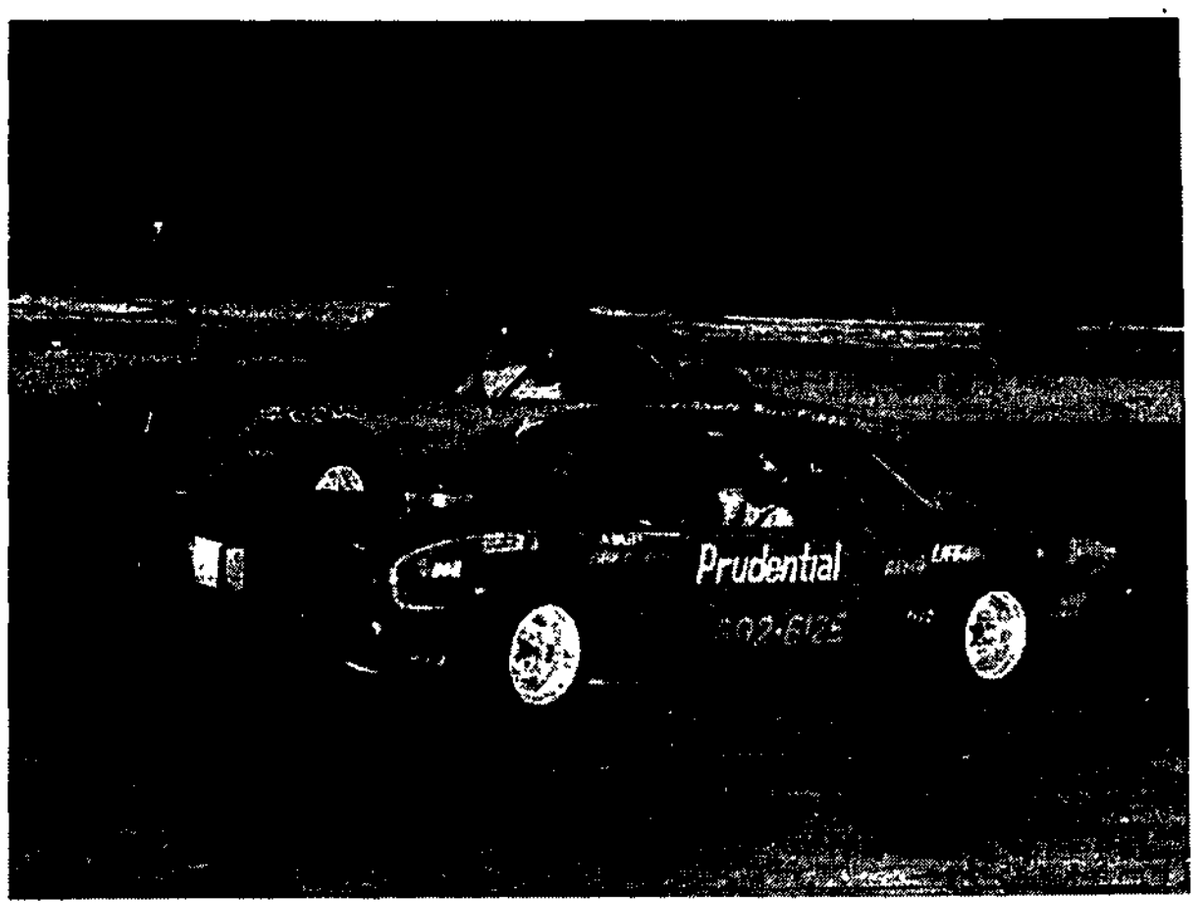

David, in short, is successfully playing the American Advancement Game. The first rule is take advantage of your position. This allows you to force others aside.

Assuredly, there are sports columnists all across America much more deserving of being splashed nationwide than Dave Eisenhower. But he happens to be the son-in-law of President Richard M. Nixon.

And since David's father-in-law is experiencing shaky times, it is good that young Eisenhower make his big moves now. After all, how much have you heard from Pat Nugent lately? Or Charles Robb?

For a time, I shall continue reading young Dave because I might learn something. What I expect to learn is that Red Smith, Jim Murray, Dave Nightingale, Mike Royko and other renowned sports columnists will push Dave Eisenhower off my reading list.

If young Dave lasts longer than the Edsel, he should consider it a triumph. This business is a war for anybody who really gives a damn, not a hobby to be splashed about for one's own vanity.

RACE CAR DRIVER J. P. GATTI jockeys for position in last Saturday night's 25-lap late model sportsman feature at Waukegan Speedway. The Wheeling native set a track record for the distance, driving his 1969 Camaro to a 6:39.24 timing. Gatti had a close call on the 16th lap when he was forced onto the infield by a lapped car, but he recovered for the victory. Waukegan Speedway's largest crowd of the year turned out to witness Gatti's record-setting run.

average was an uncommonly high .276 — good for even an individual, let alone the whole team — and the staff ERA was 2.31.

The future?

Many of the Lions' top players, including the Bobowskis, Cook and others, will again be playing for the Logan Square Legion team in a lengthy summer slate. That should make Lion fans and Legion coach Larry Nomellini look forward to the coming weeks.

As for next spring, only O'Donnell, Jim Bucaro and Steve Bobowski will being back much playing experience and the Lions' sophomore team experienced a rough season. but Mahoney shrugs off these facts, saying, "We'll have a good nucleus and you know me — I'm an eternal optimist."

With a baseball tradition as the Lions have, that's no wonder.

Newcomers shoot at Arlington club

Bea Dunn, Barb Hirsch, Norma Jean Ferguson and Yvonne Rankin scored the "Most Fives" recently when the Arlington Heights Newcomers Club played the front nine at Arlington Country Club.

Low putts for the day went to Jean Fleming who needed only 15 to complete her round.

Pars were recorded on the par-three sixth hole by Pat Abbott, Marilyn Bies, Mary Jane Bloom, Ms. Dunn, Dottie Fisher, Ms. Fleming and Vonnie Sutter.

Ms. Dunn chipped into the cup on the ninth hole for a bogey five.

Franklin-Weber offers tickets to Grand Prix

Franklin-Weber Pontiac of Schaumburg is offering free tickets to the spectacular Pontiac Grand Prix at Arlington Park.

Franklin-Weber will distribute 1,000 free tickets to the June 16 classic — the top thoroughbred race in the Midwest — on a first-come, first-served basis at the dealership, 100 West Golf Road, Schaumburg.

The tickets, which are available now, will provide admission to the track for the entire day of racing.

Persons who would like to attend have been urged to obtain their tickets soon The supply of tickets for last year's Grand Prix didn't last long because of the heavy demand.

The Pontiac Grand Prix has been a huge success since it replaced the historic Arlington Classic in 1971. It is the first $100,000 stakes race in the Midwest this season, and it attracts the top horses from the Triple Crown of racing.

For Maine East diamond nine

Fine start, fine finish but the middle was murder

by MIKE KLEIN

The season began great and ended great. It's everything that happened in between that made Maine East baseball coach Herb Ward a troubled man this spring.

The Blue Demons, who have been under Ward for eons, strutted off to four consecutive wins after opening with a loss to Evanston. Everything looked just rosy.

Ah hah! You've guessed the plot! Roof falls in and everything goes into a high state of reverse? Yes, that's correct.

Maine quickly stumbled to nine consecutive losses and just like that, held a 1-10 season record before righting itself to finish one game under .500 at 10-11.

The Blue Demons won six of their last seven, including an 8-3 decision over Maine West in district play, to right the ship somewhat.

At the end, they found strong pitching from two young men — Bob Gullberg and Wayne Sommers — who will return to give it another go next spring.

And a third moundsman who didn't see much work in a 1-1 season, Dave Ellin, proved valuable in the pinch-hitting department with a .400 batting average.

So perhaps there is some sun behind all the spring rain after all.

Aside from Ellin, Gullberg and Sommers who combined from a 6-5 record, the Blue Demons will return infielders Warren Henricks and Ron Parker plus left fielder Bob Rinka.

That gives Ward six familiar faces to work with next spring which don't even include seldom used pitchers Scott Erickson or Jeff Vukovich plus catcher Danny Kass who fits into the same category.

All of which should help make the loss of second baseman Dan Lowy, outfielders Bob Lloyd and Glen Sedjo, first baseman Dan McDonnell and catcher Doug Moorad a little more bearable.

Lowy batted .265, Lloyd .236, Sedjo .254, McDonnell .237 and Moorad .222 for the Demons this spring. Lloyd was honored on the All-CSL first team.

Coaches voted Lowy to the All-North Division squad while honoring Parker, Sedjo and McDonnell with honorable mention status.

Parker, who didn't commit an error all spring at third base, batted .267. He could return to the hot corner or pitch some next spring. Or both.

The last returning regulars, Henricks and Rinka, batted .172 and .214 respectively.

Other hitters who saw irregular action, besides Ellin, were Al Bonini .300, Doug Sollergren .200 and Jeff Briars .368.

Maine East recorded 22 extra base hits this spring and was outscored by its opponents, 88-82. The only homers were one apiece by Sedjo, Parker and Lloyd.

Lowy and Parker tied with two triples apiece to lead the team in that category. Lloyd, Sedjo, Rinka and Bonini each hit one.

Sollergren, Moorad and Bonini each belted two doubles, tops on the club. There were one apiece by Sedjo, Parker, Lloyd, Ellin and Jim D'Antonio.

Gullberg's 4-0 was the best recorded by any Maine East pitcher this spring. Greg Maloney had two wins but five defeats. Others who had records were Mike Vishoot 1-1, Ellin 1-1, Dave Baskin 1-0 and Sommers 1-4.

BILL MELTON, slugging star with the Chicago White Sox, shows Russ Issleb of Wheeling his home run bat. Russ went to a recent game as a reward for selling coupon books for the United Charities Family Ramble Carnival at Chevy Chase Country Club on June 20.

Kehe, Foy & Snelten moves into VFW lead

Wet conditions drove most scores higher than usual in the Arlington V.F.W. Monday Night Golf League this week at Old Orchard Country Club.

Kehe, Foy & Snelten Insurance crept into the league lead with 64 points, four ahead of second place L'Nor Cleaners. Mount Prospect Heating and Air Conditioning is third at 55, Nebel Insurance fourth with 53 and Kolman Plumbing fifth with 51.

Jim Szukalla carded a low gross score of 38. Joe Kolman, Don DeWyze and Jerry Haas tied for low net honors at 34. Flight leaders were Darryl Burkett (1st), Virgil Rolfs (2nd), Chuck Baranowski, Jr. (3rd), DeWyze (4th) and Wes Trautner (5th).

Items of interest included George Clarkson's score of 78, John Kehe's round of nine consecutive bogies and Kolman's three-putt of the par 5, 515-yard 15th hole after reaching the green in two.

Fifty-nine of the 60 members of the league turned out Monday night to participate in one of the area's oldest sustained circuits.

Rice Heating holds top spot in Hoffman action

Rice Heating still paces the Hoffman Estates Men's Wednesday Night Golf League after last week's competition.

Rice Heating's 57½ points represent a three-point cushion over runnerup Quinlan and Tyson's 54½. Third-place Schaumrose Inn and No. 4 Hoffman Estates Liquors also have passed the 50-point barrier with 52½ and 51½, respectively.

Fifth place Scotty's Heating recorded the team low net score last week with a five man total of 191 on the par 36 Golden Acres Country Club layout. Individual low net honors were divided four ways among Phil Rice, Lindy Clark, Don Specht and Scotty Clelland, all of whom came home in 36.

Clelland and Rice notched the best gross scores with 42s. Dick Moss and Dick Jacobson ruled the individual low net alternate classification with 35s.

St. Viator presents spring sports awards

Thirty-nine varisty letters were awarded to St. Viator athletes for their participation in the four spring sports, as well as many letters and numerals on the sophomore and freshmen levels, at the school's recent seasonal banquet.

On the varsity level, 14 letters were given in baseball, eight in tennis, nine in golf and eight in track. Most Valuable Player awards went to Mike Cook in baseball (plus a Sportsmanship award for Bob Foster), Mike Reynes in tennis, Mike Brawley in golf and Dave Jarzemsky in track.

The following boys received varsity letters:

TENNIS — Don Barnak, Jim Bernardini, Jeff Davenport, Bruce Fischer, Russ Fitton, Mike Profita, Reynes and Tom Wenzel.

Morton doles out 1,000 freebies to June 16 Arlington Grand Prix

Morton Pontiac of Arlington Heights is offering free tickets to the spectacular Pontiac Grand Prix at Arlington Park.

Morton will distribute 1,000 free tickets to the classic — the top thoroughbred race in the Midwest — on a first-come, first-serve basis at the dealership, 666 East Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

The tickets, which are available now, will provide admission to the track for the entire day of racing.

Persons who would like to attend have been urged to obtain their tickets soon. The supply of tickets for last year's Grand Prix didn't last long because of the heavy demand.

The Pontiac Grand Prix has been a huge success since it replaced the historic Arlington Classic in 1971. It is the first $100,000 stakes race in the Midwest this season, and it attracts the top horses from the Triple Crown of racing

Invitations to enter the race went to the leading contenders in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont and to the best 3-year-old thoroughbreds in the country.

Our Native, Sham, My Gallant and Sheeky Greene are among the top horses competing for the coveted Grand Prix Trophy over the 1-1/16th mile course.

Weidner wins at Sycamore Speedway

A rain delay turned out to be a lucky break for John Weidner of Arlington Heights who won a make-up race in the 126-360cc division flat-track motorcycle racing at Sycamore Speedway last Friday evening.

Riding a BSA, Weidner took the lead in the first lap and led the pack throughout the race.

Sycamore Speedway is located one dozen miles west of St. Charles on North Ave., Illinois route 64.

Flat-track and scramble racing alternate each Friday night with registration beginning at 6:30 p.m. practice at 7 p.m. and racing one hour later.

Bobbi Turcotte sets mark in Masters Swim feature

Bobbi Turcotte, program director of Palatine's Buehler YMCA, sped to a 3:06.0 timing to set a new record in the 200-yard backstroke at the Masters Swim Championships in Santa Monica, Calif.

Besides her record-setting performance, Turcotte placed second in the 100-yard backstroke in 1:22.1, third in the 50-yard freestyle in :32.0, and fourth in both the 50-yard butterfly (:38.0) and 100-yard individual medley (1:28.0).

Irene David, assistant coach of the Schaumburg Park District swim team, set the 50-yard butterfly record by racing to a :29.1 clocking. David also placed third in the 100-yard butterfly and sixth in the 50-yard freestyle.

Turcotte became acquainted with the Masters program at the YMCA National Aquatic Convention in April, 1972, and subsequently installed the program at Buehler. About 30 people currently participate in the Buehler program. Turcotte has also helped the North Suburban YMCA and the Indian Boundary YMCA start teams.

David swam as a member of the Ryall Masters Swim Club of Glen Ellyn, which was the first-place team in Region I. David was active in the AAU and YMCA competitive swimming programs from 1934 to 1962.

The Masters Championships drew about 580 swimmers this year, far exceeding any previous total. The tourney attracted just 50 competitors in 1970, its year of inception. Growth has mushroomed since.

The Masters program was initiated by Dr. Ransom Arthur of the United States Navy as a research project in cardiovascular health. Arthur found that swimming, jogging and bicycle riding were the only ways to stimulate the heart and circulatory system sufficiently to help avert high blood pressure and heart disease.

This year's Masters featured swimmers from Alaska, Hawaii and Canada. The oldest competitor was 88 years old.

Mid-Teen slates weekend tryouts

The Des Plaines Boys Baseball Association will hold tryouts this weekend for any youths between 14 and 18 years of age interested in playing Mid-Teen ball this summer.

All tryouts will be held on the Maine West varisty diamond on the northeast corner of Howard and Wolf roads in Des Plaines.

Workout sessions, under coach Al Carstens, will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. There will be a 6 p.m. Monday session.

All boys, whether returnees or not, must report and fill out applications. All boys who tryout will make a team.

Western Open Week times, prices set

The Western Golf Association has announced a schedule of play and daily admission prices covering "Western Open Week," June 25 - July 1, at Midlothian Country Club, Midlothian, Illinois.

Midlothian will be the scene of the Association's 70th Western Open championship, to be played June 28 - July 1, with Jim Jamieson defending the title he captured last summer at Sunset Ridge Country Club.

An admission ticket costing $3 will enable fans to watch practice rounds at Midlothian on Monday, June 25. On Tuesday, June 26, the admission ticket will cost $5. Tickets for Wednesday's Pro-Amateur tournament benefitting WGA's Evans Scholars Foundation will be $7, and this will be the daily admission charge for Thursday, June 28, and Friday, June 29, the first two days of championship play.

Tickets for Saturday and Sunday's rounds will be $8.00.

The championship field cut will be made at the end of the second round of play to the low 70 players and ties or 10 strokes from the leader. If there is a tie at the end of 72 holes a playoff, starting at the 15th hole, will determine the winner.

Judy is leaving and we are sad. She does a great job answering the phone, writing and typing orders, typing letters and quotations, and doing her share of "K-P" duty. Her pleasant youthful personality blends well with the three more mature ladies in the office and her humor is appreciated. She is sales motivated, and the duties of being "Gal-Friday" for the boss, three salesmen and an office manager don't diminish her charm with the customer. Yes, she will be tough to replace, but there must be someone who can fill her shoes. If you would like to take over her desk and join a happy small family of twelve people, come in and talk to Jim Major.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Zoning Legal Notice

Notice is hereby given that the Zoning Board of Appeals, City of Des Plaines, will hold a public hearing on June 26, 1973 at 8 P.M. in Council Chambers, Municipal Building (Graceland and Miner), Des Plaines, Illinois, to consider the following petitions:

8:00 P.M.
(1372 Redeker Road)

Request for REZONING from "R-2 SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE DISTRICT" (resulting from involuntary annexation to Des Plaines on February 5, 1973) to "M-1 RESTRICTED MANUFACTURING DISTRICT." Formerly "M-1 Restricted Manufacturing" under Cook County zoning. Property legally described as follows:

The W 150' measured from the E. line of MARY STREET and said line extended (except the N 215' thereof) of lot 1 in Redeker's Gardens Add'n. to Des Plaines being a sub'n of lots 6 and 7; except the S. 4 acres thereof, in Redeker Estate Sub'n. of parts of Sections 8, 9, 16 & 17, T-41-N, R-12, E of the 3rd PM in Cook County, Ill.; COMMONLY KNOWN AS: 1372 REDEKER ROAD, DES PLAINES, ILL.

Subject property having a 150' frontage on the north side of REDEKER ROAD with a depth of 100+' along the east side of MARY STREET, improved with a one-story brick building used for manufacturing of instruments Petitioner: Chicago Dial Indicator Company (P. R. Plautes).

8:10 P.M.
Case 73-11-R
(1419 Redeker Road)

Request for REZONING from "R-2 SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE DISTRICT" (resulting from involuntary annexation to Des Plaines in 1973) to "M-2 GENERAL MANUFACTURING DISTRICT." Formerly "M-1 Restricted Manufacturing District" under Cook County zoning. Property described as follows:

The E.53' of the W.139.85' of lot 15, the E.53' of the W.139.85' of lot 16, the E.53' of the W.139.85' of lot 17, all in Redeker's Garden Add'n. to Des Plaines, being a sub'n. of lots 6 and 7 (except the S.4 acres thereof) in Redeker's Estate Sub'n. of parts of Sections 8, 9, 16 and 17, T-41-N, R-12, E. of the 3rd PM in Cook County, Ill. COMMONLY KNOWN AS: 1419 REDEKER ROAD, DES PLAINES, ILL.

entire property having a 53' frontage on the south side of REDEKER ROAD with a depth of 239.82', located about 190' west of RIVER ROAD (Des Plaines Avenue). Improved with a one-story concrete building.

Petitioner: The First National Bank of Chicago as Executor under the will of Agnes H. Coltman, deceased by G. J. Lock (REO 24581).

Owners: H. W. Coltman, Jr. and Joan A. Schlink, Residuary Devisees.

8:20 P.M.
Case 73-12-V
(1296 Whitcomb Avenue)
(formerly Case 73-2-V, 4/21/73)

Request for the following VARIATIONS: From the required 55' lot frontage to 26'6" and from the minimum square-foot area of 6875 to 6798 (page 26A, Sec. 3B 4(4) in the 1969 Zoning Ordinance). Property described legally as follows:

Lot 12 (except the Wly 40' Ely of and adjoining railroad) in Block 3 in A. T. McIntosh & Co.'s Des Plaines Heights, a sub'n. of block 10 of Norrie Park, a sub'n. of the No. part E. of the railroad of the SE¼ of Sec. 20, T-41-N, R-12, E of the 3rd PM in Cook County, Ill. COMMONLY KNOWN AS: 1296 WHITCOMB AVENUE, DES PLAINES, ILL.

Subject lot having a frontage of 26'6" on the north side of WHITCOMB AVENUE, with a rear width of 25'3", and a depth on the east side of 173.6' and a depth on the west side of 170'10" located about 600' east of CENTER STREET.

Petitioner: Michael Reid Builders-Development, Inc. c/o K. G. Meyer, Atty.

8:30 P.M.
Case 73-11-A
(Text Amendment - Restaurants as "Special Use")

Requested by the City of Des Plaines, a TEXT AMENDMENT to the 1969 Zoning Ordinance, as amended, which would eliminate restaurants as permitted uses and allow them by "Special Use" only. Said amendment provides for the classification of all restaurants in four classes including dining rooms, fast-food operations, drive-ins and lunch-rooms. Said text amendment also proposes certain bulk regulations concerning restaurants as "Special Use" including lot sizes, minimum frontages, setbacks and parking.

A complete copy of the proposed text amendment is available in the office of the City Clerk, 1420 Miner Street, Des Plaines, Illinois; also, in the office of the Building Commissioner, 1424 Miner Street, Des Plaines, Illinois.

8:40 P.M.
Case 73-13-R
(2121 Miner Street also 810-820 and 830 Acres Lane)

Request for REZONING from "R-2 SINGLE FAMILY RESIDENCE DISTRICT" to "C-3 COMMERCIAL DISTRICT" on the following described property:

The W 50' of the E 150' of lot 4, excepting therefrom that part lying No of a line that intersects the W. line of said tract, 52.76' So. of the NW corner thereof and intersects the E. line of said tract, 58.15' So. of the NE corner thereof also

The E 100' of lot 4, excepting therefrom that part lying No of a line that intersects the W. line of said tract, 54.96' So of the NW corner thereof and intersects the E line of said lot, 59.47' So of the NE corner thereof of Philippine Abbe's Sub'n of part of Sec 16 and 21, T-41-N, R-12, E of the 3rd PM in Cook County, Ill.

also

Lots 1, 2 and 3 in Stechnik's Sub'n, a sub'n in the NE¼ of Sec. 21, T-41-N, R-12, E. of the 3rd PM in Cook County, Ill.

COMMONLY KNOWN AS: 2121 MINER (DEMPSTER) STREET; also, 810, 820 and 830 ACRES LANE, DES PLAINES, ILLINOIS.

Total area of above-described property: 53,238.8 square feet. Frontage of over 150' on the south side of MINER (DEMPSTER) ST., and depth of 128 and 190 feet; also, frontage of 300' on the south side of ACRES LANE with a depth of 110 and 120 feet; total of five lots.

Petitioner: First National Bank of Des Plaines, Trustee, Tr. 346, c/o Alvin W. DeJong

All interested parties should attend and will be given the opportunity to be heard

Ordinance No. 52

ORDINANCE INCREASING ANNUAL TAX RATE FOR CORPORATE PURPOSES

WHEREAS, this Board of Trustees of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, Cook and Lake Counties, Illinois, has been for many years past and is now providing fire protection services and is presently authorized to levy taxes for corporate purposes at the rate of .125 per cent upon the full, fair cash value of taxable property as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs; and

WHEREAS, this Board of Trustees has heretofore found and determined and does hereby find and determine that the existing tax rate for corporate purposes is not sufficient to provide an efficient and adequate program to meet the needs of this Fire Protection District and it has heretofore been found and it is hereby found and determined by this Board of Trustees that the need exists for increasing the present corporate tax rate of this Fire Protection District and establishing the same at the rate of .30 per cent upon the full, fair cash value of taxable property as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs; and

WHEREAS, this Board of Trustees is authorized by the provisions of Section 14 of Chapter 127½, Illinois Revised Statutes, to levy taxes at the increased rate of .30 per cent for corporate purposes, unless within 15 days after the date of the publication hereof a petition is filed with the Secretary of this Board which is signed by electors of the fire protection district equal in number to 5% or more of the electors residing within the fire protection district, requesting that the following proposition:

"Shall the maximum allowable tax rate for the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, Cook and Lake Counties, Illinois, be increased to .30% of the value of all taxable property within the District as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs?"

be submitted to a referendum.

NOW, THEREFORE, Be It and It Is Hereby Ordained by the Board of Trustees of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District, Cook and Lake Counties, Illinois, as follows:

Section 1. That the annual tax rate of said District for corporate purposes be increased and established at .30 per cent upon the full, fair cash value of taxable property as equalized or assessed by the Department of Local Government Affairs, instead of .125 per cent, being the maximum rate otherwise applicable to the next taxes to be extended for corporate purposes, in accordance with the provisions of Section 14 of Chapter 127½ of the Illinois Revised Statutes.

Section 2. That within 30 days after the passage of this ordinance the Secretary of this Board of Trustees shall cause the same to be published once in the Wheeling Herald and once in the Buffalo Grove Herald, the same being newspapers published in the fire protection district and copies of this ordinance shall also be posted by said Secretary in ten (10) public places within said Fire Protection District.

Section 3. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith be and the same are hereby repealed and that this ordinance be in force and effect as provided by law.

Adopted this 4th day of June, 1973 by the Board of Trustees of the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District.

Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. You may be delivered until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a good way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

GRAND OPENING SALE!

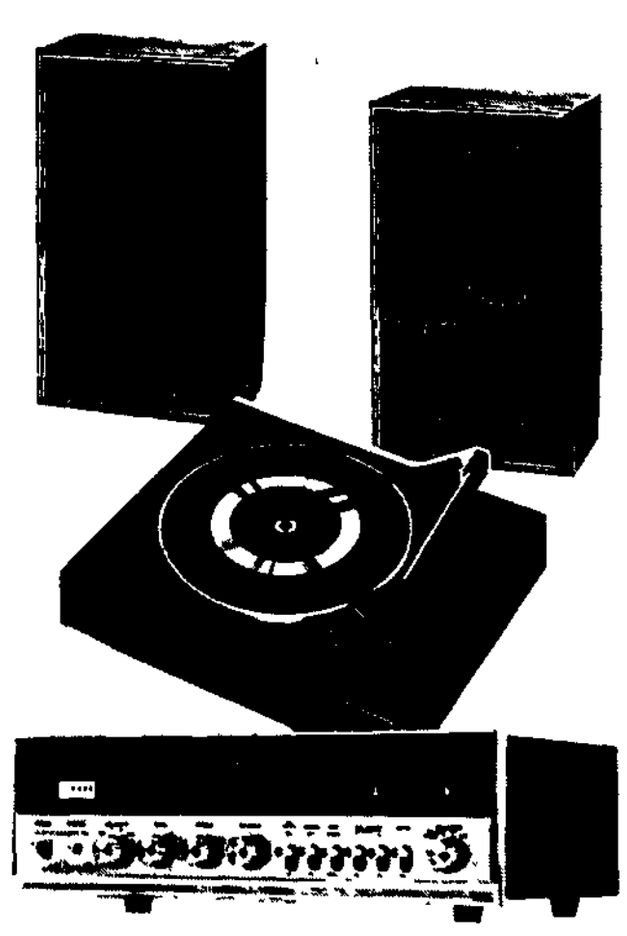

SANSUI 350A 44 Watt AM/FM Stereo Receiver.
A quality receiver with virtually every refinement to be found in higher priced units. Its many attractive features include wide dial FM linear scale, complete silicon transistor circuitry and the capability of handling up to two sets of speaker systems simultaneously. The Sansui 350A is an ideal medium-powered receiver at a very reasonable price.

GARRARD 40B Automatic Turntable comes complete with base, dust cover and SHURE M44E Stereo Cartridge.

CSS 8" 2 Way Air Suspension Speaker Systems offer remarkably smooth frequency response for a moderately price system.

Components Purchased Separately:

SANSUI 1000X AM/FM Stereo Receiver.
The Sansui Believer Receiver is designed to make believers out of those who question whether a receiver in this popular power range (56 watts continuous power) can really measure up to completeness. So complete, in fact, the 1000X has two tape monitor circuits which will enable you to record on two tape recorders simultaneously.

GARRARD SL55B is the least expensive Garrard Turntable using the high torque constant speed Synchro-Lab Motor. The SL55B comes complete with the SHURE M44E Stereo Cartridge. Also includes base and dust cover.

CSS 10" Three Way Air Suspension Speaker Systems include a 4-inch low resonance midrange unit for wide dispersion in large or small areas.

SANSUI 2000X AM/FM Stereo Receiver.
The Sansui 2000X is a premium quality receiver ideally suited for the stereo enthusiast with an average sized apartment or home. Its continuous power output of 39 watts per channel at 8 ohms will adequately drive most bookshelf type speaker systems. The Sansui 2000X is unquestionably one of the finest receivers available in the $300 to $400 price class.

DUAL 1214 Automatic Turntable. Aside from having a few less features and refinements than the more expensive Dual turntables. The Dual 1214 will handle your records in the same delicate manner. (Your records will virtually never wear out.) Comes complete with walnut base, dust cover and SHURE M91E Cartridge.

KLH MODEL 17 is an 8 OHM full-range, two-way system consisting of a 10" acoustic suspension woofer and a 1-3/4" direct radiator tweeter in a handsome, compact enclosure. The low frequency drive is cable of extremely long excursions to provide extended, low-distortion response in the bass range.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

The Light Side of French Cooking

French cooking is revered by many as the "grand cuisine," and its reputation is well earned. The cooking of France is extremely varied, but no matter how simple or elaborate, a great deal of care in preparation is always involved.

Many people reject French food if they are watching their diet fearing it as very rich. This may be true in some cases as with quiche lorraine or chocolate mousse, but need not be the rule. Here is a menu of French dishes adapted for the modern American diet.

The French are experts in the art of blending herbs and spices resulting in the most subtle of flavors. They will however, often emphasize one herb in a dish as in Poulet l'Estragon. In northern France where this dish is a classic, fresh tarragon from the garden is used in preparing the chicken for Sunday dinner. The Americanized version of chicken tarragon uses plump chicken breasts filled with an onion-tarragon stuffing.

To liven the appetite, without filling your guests, start the meal with Mushroom Consomme, a light chicken broth flavored with mushrooms and celery. Peppers, pimientos and raisins combine to make Rice Provencale a unique and colorful accompaniment. Dessert — what could be more French than fruit tarts! The creamy pudding filling can be topped with any fruit (fresh, frozen or canned) and an apricot glaze adds the crowning touch to these luscious treats.

MUSHROOM CONSOMME

2 tablespoons margarine
1 can (2-ounce) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
1 can (10½-ounce) condensed chicken broth
1 soup can water
¼ cup chopped celery tops
Generous dash crushed marjoram

Heat margarine in a saucepan. Add mushrooms and brown well. Add broth, water, celery tops and marjoram. Cook over medium heat until heated through, stir occasionally. Makes 4 servings.

TARRAGON STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS

½ cup (1 stick) margarine
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crushed
½ cup unsifted flour
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
3 large chicken breasts, split
1 cup dry white wine

Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in a large skillet. Add onion and saute over medium-high heat until partially tender, about 3 minutes. Add to tarragon; mix well. Set aside.

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dust chicken breasts in seasoned flour. Melt remaining 6 tablespoons margarine in skillet. Add chicken a few breasts at a time and brown well. Remove. Cut a pocket on side of each breast. Stuff each breast with about 1 tablespoon of onion mixture. Place in a 3-quart oblong baking dish, skin side up. Pour wine over chicken. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 45 minutes or until done. Makes 6 servings.

RICE PROVENCALE

½ cup chopped onion
⅓ cup diced green pepper
¼ cup (½ stick) margarine
3 cups cooked rice
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
½ cup dark seedless raisins
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Saute onion and green pepper in margarine until tender, about 5 mintues. In a large bowl combine the onion mixture with rice, pimiento, raisins, salt and pepper. Mix thoroughly. Turn mixture into a lightly greased 1½ quart shallow baking dish. Cover.

Bake at 350 degrees 30 minutes, or until well heated. Makes 6 servings.

FRENCH FRUIT TARTS

1 package (regular size) vanilla pudding
1¾ cups skim milk
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup unsifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup margarine
2 to 3 tablespoons ice water
¼ cup apricot preserves
1 tablespoon water
Assorted fresh or canned fruits

Empty contents of vanilla pudding into saucepan. Slowly add milk, stirring to keep mixture smooth. Cook over medium high heat, stirring steadily until pudding just starts to boil. Remove from heat; stir in almond extract. Pour into bowl and place transparent wrap directly on pudding. Cool to room temperature.

Combine flour and sugar in a bowl. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse meal. Mix in ice water. Form dough into a ball. On a lightly floured board, roll out to a ⅛-inch thickness. Cut into 12 rounds using a 4-inch cutter. Press rounds against inverted 2½x1¼-inch muffin or tart pans.

Bake at 425 degrees about 10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Remove from pans and cool completely before filling.

Combine apricot preserves and 1 tablespoon water in small saucepan. Heat until preserves are melted. Force through sieve. Keep warm.

Spoon prepared pudding into tart shells. Arrange small pieces of fresh or canned fruits over pudding. Gently brush warm preserves over fruit. Chill. Makes 12 tarts.

Mrs. Allen LaQuey

Creative luncheon is family project

by LOIS SEILER

A luncheon for their teachers is the way Tracy and Tyce LaQuey of Mount Prospect and their mother, Mrs. Allan LaQuey, express their appreciation for a satisfying school year.

While Sharl LaQuey makes the main course, her children help with other preparations.

Featured on the menu is Mediterranean Chicken, a combination of chicken and ham served with sauce containing parsley and Tokay grapes.

Sheri accompanies the chicken with chopped broccoli topped with a dollop of green olive sauce. Far less complicated than Hollandaise, the sauce simply consists of mayonnaise mixed with chopped olives and olive juice, yet it adds great flavor to the broccoli.

Sheri credits her mother's ingenuity for this recipe and another which has been her favorite since girlhood days. This is a refreshing spring salad made by hollowing out grapefruit halves and filling them with grapefruit and orange sections, bananas and maraschino cherries. Tracy will make these for the luncheon, adding a pipe cleaner handle and a perky bow to make the grapefruit resemble a festive basket.

Tyce will make the dessert by filling well-scrubbed clay flower pots with chocolate ice cream. Colorful Mexican cord or a ribbon is tied around the top, a straw is inserted in the center, and the dessert is frozen. Just before serving, freshly-cut flowers from the garden are inserted in the straw, and the little flower pots make a "blooming pretty" dessert.

Sheri has served the filled flower pots for church picnics, and also recommends them for bridge dessert and birthday parties.

Both Sheri and her husband, Al, are ambitious gardeners and grow a variety of fruits and vegetables in their ever-expanding garden. Sheri freezes the fruit and uses it during the winter months to make a different version of the flower pot dessert. Peaches and cherries mixed with coconut and whipped cream is an appealing combination, with artificial flowers inserted in the pots. The dessert is served with cheese cookies which complement the fruit, and their nippy flavor also makes them suitable to serve as appetizers.

An art major during her school days, Sheri's creative instincts are now reflected in her clever culinary ideas. She also likes to putter with handicraft projects, and is picture lady for the PTA sponsored cultural arts program at Westbrook School.

MEDITERRANEAN CHICKEN

1/3 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 whole chicken breasts
Cooking oil
6 thin slices ham
1/8 teaspoon dry mustard or 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1½ cups chicken broth or bouillon
1 cup Tokay grapes, halved and seeded
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Cut chicken breasts in half and remove skin. Dust pieces with flour mixture and reserve remaining flour.

Put ½-inch oil in skillet and heat. Brown chicken on all sides. Remove from skillet. Pour off drippings, leaving 2 tablespoons oil. Brown ham in this and remove from skillet.

Blend reserved flour mixture and mustard into drippings in skillet. Add chicken broth and stir until mixture boils. Add grape halves, along with parsley, to chicken and heat through.

Serve a piece of chicken with grape sauce on each slice of ham. Makes 6 servings.

CHOPPED BROCCOLI WITH SAUCE

1 10-ounce package frozen chopped broccoli
1/3 cup mayonnaise (not salad dressing)
5 or 6 chopped green olives with pimientos
2 teaspoons olive juice

Cook broccoli according to package directions and drain well. Mix together remaining ingredients and serve broccoli with dollop of sauce atop each serving. Serves 5 or 6

GRAPEFRUIT BASKETS

Grapefruit
Orange sections or mandarin oranges
Sliced bananas
Maraschino cherries

Cut grapefruit in half and scoop out fruit. Scallop edges of grapefruit with a knife.

Combine grapefruit sections with remaining fruit and spoon into grapefruit shells. Make handles for the baskets with colored pipe cleaners and tie with a festive bow.

FLOWER POT ICE CREAM

Buy and scour new small clay flower pots, 3 inches tall and 2½ inches in diameter. Tie a ribbon or colorful Mexican cord around the top and make a bow.

Plug the hole in bottom of pots with miniature marshmallows. Fill with chocolate ice cream. Insert a 2-inch straw in the center, cover with plastic wrap and freeze.

Just before serving, insert freshly-cut flowers into the straw and serve with cookies.

CHEESE COOKIES

1 stick butter
1 8-ounce package sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped pecans (optional)

Let cheese come to room temperature. Cream together cheese and butter. Add remaining ingredients and blend.

Form into a roll about two inches in diameter and store in refrigerator overnight. Slice thin and bake at 400 degrees about ten minutes. Makes about two dozen cheese cookies.

WHEN THE TEACHER is coming to lunch, make it something special. With the help of their mother Mrs. Allan LaQuey, Tracy, 9, and Tyce, 7, will make fruit baskets from grapefruit halves and fill clay flower pots with ice cream to serve when their teachers from Westbrook School, Mount Prospect, come for lunch. The unique fruit baskets and flower pots are appealing for any spring party.

Tuna with touch of India

More and more people are discovering the joys of far eastern cookery. Perhaps it is because the presentation of foods is so attractive, the flavor so distinctive yet so agreeable, the dishes themselves so digestible. Perhaps, too, it is because this kind of cuisine is economical and quick to prepare.

In India, even a homemaker poor by our standards, with her knowledge of spices and appreciation for quality, can coax a humble dish into an appearance of elegance. Americans have the same talent, using convenience foods. Here is a touch of India in an imaginative Tuna Pilau Salad quickly made with two fine convenience foods: canned tuna and packaged curry rice. To complete the salad you simply add a peanut-flavored salad dressing and, for a surprise contrast, crispy cucumber slices

Besides this Tuna Pilau Salad, there's an infinite variety of interesting foreign and American dishes that you can make with thrifty canned tuna for everyday meals and special occasions.

TUNA PILAU SALAD

2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
1 package (6 ounces) curry flavor rice, cooked according to package directions
½ cup chopped onions

Dressing:

Salad oil and reserved oil from tuna
¼ cup creamy-style peanut butter
½ cup sour cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
1/8 teaspoon paprika
1/8 teaspoon Tabasco
Salad greens
Cucumber slices

Drain tuna, reserving oil for dressing. Flake tuna or cut into chunks; combine with hot cooked curry flavor rice and onions; refrigerate. Meanwhile, add enough salad oil to reserved tuna oil to yield 1/3 cup. Combine oil with all remaining ingredients except salad greens and cucumber slices; beat together until smooth and creamy. (Or, combine in blender container and blend on high speed until mixture is smooth) Line salad bowl with salad greens. Add chilled tuna-rice mixture; garnish with cucumber slices. Serve with peanut butter dressing. (For individual servings, pack tuna-rice mixture into 6-ounce custard cups; unmold immediately onto salad greens.) Yield: 6 servings.

Cookware buying hints

by JEANNE LESEM

By their wedding day, first time brides have spent a total of $168,200,000 on cookware, utensils and portable electrical appliances for their new homes. Within the first year of marriage, they spend an additional $163,410,000 for such products.

These figures for a typical year are from The Bride's Magazine. They show the need to shop carefully for articles that can make cooking and serving easier and more convenient.

Multi purpose products are a good buy for any couple beginning married life in a small apartment. Those with optional equipment are better still, because they permit you to add attachments as the need arises and the budget permits.

A wise shopper examines display models of small electrical appliances as carefully as she would big, expensive ones. Make sure the controls are easy to understand, reach and operate and that handles and knobs are heat resistant and easy to grasp.

Many manufacturers of stove-top utensils now make them with handles and knobs that are heatproof up to 350 or 400 degrees so they can be used in the oven as well as on top burners.

Both appliances and utensils should be heavy enough to cook evenly without hot spots, and to set firmly on burners, oven shelves or tables without tipping. Avoid designs with hard to clean corners or badly fitting parts.

CHECK THE cords of all electrical appliances for the Underwriters' Laboratory UL tag that certifies safety. Look for finger guards and safety catches. Ask to see — and read carefully — a guarantee or warranty so you'll know how long it's effective and exactly what is covered.

Matched sets are a bargain only if you're sure you'll use all the sizes and models included.

A double boiler is among the most useful utensils in many households for making sauces and puddings containing eggs — provided it's made of either flameproof glass, enameled steel or stainless steel or has a stainless steel interior or a china insert. Aluminum should be avoided because it can react with yolks to discolor food.

If you plan to use an open roasting pan in the broiler as well as the oven, choose one with a non-stick coating, which can be damaged by the high heat needed for broiling.

If you have a microwave oven or expect to buy one soon, choose your tableware with that in mind. Avoid patterns with metal trim and those made of Melamine or styrene plastics and certain ceramics. Tableware with metal trim can be damaged by the magnetron, or cooking tube. Melamine causes charring and overheats quickly. Styrene develops a strong odor and can lose its shape because of heat transferred from the food cooked or heated in it. Some ceramic dinnerware absorbs a few watts of power for each ounce of weight.

MULTI-PURPOSE appliances and utensils especially useful in small kitchens include a combination hand mixer and carving knife that uses a single handle; a combination clock and knife sharpener; a stand mixer with food grinder attachment; blenders whose bases can also operate ice crushers and varying sizes in blend and store containers; enameled steel pots and pans that can double as serving dishes and have snap-on plastic lids for storage.

If an electric broiler or broiler oven is on your shopping list, decide first what its primary use will be. An open broiler with optional rotisserie is great for steaks, roasts and most broiled meats and poultry. But an oven design works better for whole fish, fillets and hamburgers, which tend to break up more easily on a grid than they do on a solid surface broiling pan.

Before you shop for any portable electrical appliances, check your fuse box for adequate wiring. Each fuse represents a separate 1,750 watt circuit, unless you have special heavy duty wiring for air conditioners and other heavy power users. Many toasters, toaster-ovens, broilers and even some blenders are so powerful that manufacturers recommend each be operated on a separate circuit to avoid blown fuses and blackouts.

Celery still fits food budgets

While the average cost of food eaten at home rose 7.6 per cent from January, 1972 to January of this year, four foods dropped in price, according to the U.S. Department of Labor: butter, corn flakes, carrots and celery. Especially celery, which declined 17.2 per cent.

One of the reasons why a stalk of celery is a good buy is that you can eat each and every single rib of it, including the leaves. The outer ribs can be sliced and cooked as a hot vegetable and are delicious and crunchy in casseroles, soups or comparable meals-in-a-dish. Celery bulks out, adds interest to the Everglades Celery Chicken Casserole for which the recipe appears below. Or treat the family to Celery and Fish oriental; they'll never realize that you've been keeping one eye on the budget.

Since celery can be enjoyed either cooked or raw, don't overcook it. It will keep its pretty green color if started in boiling water and cooked without a lid for the first five minutes.

EVERGLADES CELERY AND CHICKEN CASSEROLE

- 4 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 (2½ to 3 lb.) chicken, cut into 8 pieces
- 1 cup raw, processed long grain rice
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced
- 2 cups water
- 3 chicken bouillon cubes
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1½ quarts sliced celery, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1/3 cup chopped celery leaves
- 1 tablespoon basil leaves

In a Dutch oven or heavy saucepan heat oil. Add chicken and brown well. Remove chicken; set aside. Add rice, onion and garlic; saute 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add water, bouillon cubes, paprika, salt and black pepper; bring to boiling point. Return chicken to Dutch oven; cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add celery; cover and simmer 15 minutes longer. Add celery leaves and basil; continue simmering for 7 minutes more or until chicken and rice are tender. Yield: 4 portions.

CELERY AND FISH ORIENTAL

- 1 stalk celery
- 4 tablespoons salad oil, divided
- 2 packages (12 oz. each) frozen perch or haddock fillets, defrosted and cut into 2-inch pieces
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- 3 tablespoons domestic soy sauce, divided
- 8 tablespoons flour, divided
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1½ cups boiling water
- ¼ cup minced scallions

Trim base of celery and remove leaves; cut ribs into 1-inch chunks (makes about 6 cups). In a large skillet heat 2 tablespoons of the oil. Add celery and stir fry for 8 minutes or until celery is crisp-tender. Remove celery from skillet; set aside. In separate bowls combine egg with 1 tablespoon of the soy sauce and 6 tablespoons of the flour with salt and black pepper. Dip fish into egg mixture and then into seasoned flour. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in same skillet. Add fish and fry over medium heat for 10 minutes, turning once. Remove fish to center of a heated platter; keep warm. Dissolve bouillon cubes in water. Add to skillet with scallions. Bring to boiling point; stirring constantly to scrape drippings from skillet. Combine remaining 2 tablespoons flour with remaining 2 tablespoons soy sauce, gradually blend into liquid in skillet. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened. Return celery to skillet and reheat. Spoon celery around fish. Serve with steamed rice, if desired. Yield: 6 portions.

Chicken Casserole

Serve onions in custard form

Looking for a different vegetable dish? If your family likes onions whip up a Baked Onion Custard. This goes well with fish and meats and youngsters will enjoy its custardy consistency.

BAKED ONION CUSTARD

- ¼ cup peanut oil
- 4 cups chopped onions
- 1 cup light cream
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- Fine dry bread crumbs

Heat peanut oil in a large skillet. Add onions and ¼ cup light cream. Cook over low heat until onions are tender, about 15 minutes. Measure about ½ cup of onion mixture into each of nine 5-ounce custard cups. Beat eggs, remaining ¾ cup light cream, salt and pepper until light. Pour an equal amount (about 2½ tablespoons) over each cup of onions. Sprinkle with bread crumbs. Set custard in pan of hot water. Bake in 350-degree oven about 25 to 30 minutes or until set. Serve hot. Makes 9 servings.

Nose can be shopping asset when buying fresh produce

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Poking produce isn't fair in the food store. Neither is squeezing. You don't want to leave a trail of bruised and damaged apples or anything else for the next customer, do you?

But in the produce department use your nose well. Sniff. If you don't like the aroma, don't buy it.

Sniffing may be called for in the meat department, too. Nothing offends the nostrils the way putrid meat does. Despite the best intentions, meat can spoil while in the display package.

That sniffing is perfectly good conduct comes from a University of Nebraska-Lincoln food scientist, Dr T. E. Hartung, professor of food science and technology, made the suggestion in a report — "How Safe is the Food You Eat?"

He advises:

—Be on the lookout for contaminated food.

—Examine and smell the food.

—Notice the containers of canned products. If the can is dented or swollen, leave it on the shelf.

—Avoid food with off-colors and odors.

Dr. Hartung said recent reports of food contamination may make consumers wary about the true safety of food purchased. But he doesn't believe food is necessarily unsafer these days. The detection of contaminated foods is linked to improved methods of detecting and increased surveillance.

"IT'S LIKE TRAFFIC law enforcement," he said. "If more policemen are put out on patrol, watching a particular stop sign-intersection, there will probably be more tickets issued — not because there are more traffic violators, but because there is a better chance of catching the present ones."

How often does the average American consumer buy food that fails to meet expectations?

The Consumer Research Institute at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln has some answers — based on a nationwide telephone survey of more than 1,500 shoppers. The survey was conducted in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

One out of five shoppers said she had bought food in the preceding two weeks that was either spoiled or stale when she got it home. Some felt food went bad before it should. Strawberries, for example, got mushy sooner than expected.

Perishable and semi-perishable foods were almost exclusively the cause for complaint. Meats and poultry, processed meats, fresh dairy products, baked goods and fresh fruits and vegetables.

YOUNG CONSUMERS, especially those 18-to-24, reported cases of spoiled or stale food more frequently than other age groups.

Shoppers with higher income and educational levels reported dissatisfaction with food more often than others.

The university said this dissatisfaction may be related to higher expectations by these shoppers rather than purchase of foods that are not as fresh as those purchased by other shoppers.

P.S. — What to do when you find you bought bad food? Most customers in the survey asked the store to replace bad food. A few asked for money back. The rest? They just "forget about it."

Give snacktime nourishing bonus

Does summertime at your house mean a constant parade of children through your kitchen asking for something to eat? Then, provide snacks chosen from the four foods groups and be assured that your children are getting the calories they need as well as the nutrients.

Choco-marshmallow shakes and coconut bread don't jump out and say, "Eat me, I'm good for you" but you'll know they are. Dairy products add nutritional qualities to both recipes.

CHOCO-MARSHMALLOW SHAKE

- ½ cup marshmallow creme
- ½ cup chocolate syrup
- 3½ cups milk
- ¼ teaspoon peppermint extract, optional.

Combine all ingredients in blender container. Blend 1 minute. Pour into tall chilled glasses. Yield: 4 servings.

COCONUT BREAD

- 3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup sugar
- 1 package (4 ounces) shredded coconut
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

In large bowl, sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in coconut.

Add egg, milk and vanilla. Stir until well blended. Pour batter in a buttered 9 by 5-inch loaf pan. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 60 to 70 minutes. Let cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out on wire rack and cool completely. Wrap cooled bread and store one day before slicing. Yield: 1 loaf.

Three hearty entrees for two from one pound of ground beef

Tired of eating frozen dinners or going out to restaurants alone? Try a little menu magic with just one pound of ground beef. You say a pound's too much for one person? Not if you, an expert at deduction, turn it into three satisfying entrees of two servings each. They're Stuffed Green Peppers, Italian Meat Balls and Beef Cups. These easy-to-make recipes come with built-in freezer storage tips, and for those who have a microwave oven, tips for the microwave cooking method are also included.

Each recipe works to solve the problem of what to do with a pound of ground beef. Each third gives you lots of variety and good eating from that small amount. For Stuffed Green Peppers, brown the ground beef and spike the mixture with onion, tomato paste, Worcestershire sauce, and a few drops of hot pepper sauce. If you like a zippier flavor, add chili powder, too. Combine the beef mixture with quick cooking rice and mellow Cheddar cheese, and it's ready to bake. Sprinkle with more golden Cheddar at serving time. In the microwave oven it takes just two minutes to bake one pepper cup, four minutes for two. Keep in mind that when you double the amount to be baked in a microwave oven, it sometimes takes a little less than double the time.

The remaining two-thirds of a pound of ground beef goes into a zesty Italian beef mixture that can be made into meat balls and beef cups. This hearty mixture includes several protein sources besides beef: milk, egg, oats and cheese. Bits of green pepper add flavor and color and there's oregano for authentic Italian taste. Shape half the mix into Beef Cups, which are filled with catsup and baked. The rest makes six meat balls, to go into a simple tomato-garlic sauce which you serve over spaghetti. Both Beef Cups and Meat Balls can be frozen.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

2 medium green peppers
1/3 pound lean ground beef
1 teaspoon minced onion
1/3 cup tomato paste
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon chili powder (optional)
4 drops hot pepper sauce
Dash of pepper
⅓ cup quick cooking rice
½ cup (2 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
Shredded Cheddar cheese

Wash peppers, remove tops, seeds and membrane.* Parboil in salted, boiling water 5-6 minutes; drain. In a small skillet brown beef with onion. Stir in tomato paste, water, Worcestershire sauce, salt, chili powder, pepper sauce and pepper. Cover and bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in rice and let stand covered 5 minutes for rice to absorb moisture and become soft. Stir in cheese and divide mixture between pepper cups. Bake or freeze for future service. To bake: Stand upright in baking dish. Place in preheated 350 degree oven; bake 25 minutes. Garnish with shredded cheese.

MICROWAVE COOKING METHOD

Repeat method given up to*. Parboil in boiling salted water in microwave oven 3 minutes; drain. In a 6-inch ceramic skillet or glass container cook ground beef with onion 2 minutes, stirring to crumble meat after the first minute. Stir in tomato paste, water, Worcestershire sauce, salt, chili powder, pepper sauce and pepper. Cover and bring to a boil (approx. 1 minute). Stir in rice and cook covered an additional minute. Remove and let stand 10 minutes to let rice absorb moisture and become soft. Stir in cheese and divide mixture between pepper cups. Stand pepper cups uprigrt in baking dish. Cook one pepper 2 minutes; two peppers 4 minutes. Garnish with shredded Cheddar cheese.

Note: Peppers may be frozen after stuffing, before final cooking. Wrap in foil and freeze. To prepare conventionally: Place foil-wrapped frozen pepper in baking dish in preheated 400 degree oven, 45 minutes. Remove foil and bake an additional 30 minutes. To cut baking time: after parboiling peppers; cut each in half lengthwise; fill halves with stuffing. Wrap in foil and freeze. Place foil wrapped peppers in small baking dish; bake in preheated 400 degree oven, 30 minutes. Remove foil and bake an additional 15 minutes.

To cook in microwave oven: Remove foil wrap, place whole frozen pepper in small baking dish. Cook 1 pepper 9 minutes, 2 peppers 18 minutes.

Stuffed Green Peppers

BEEF CUPS AND MEAT BALLS ITALIAN BEEF MIXTURE

2/3 pound lean ground beef
1/3 cup milk
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup quick oats, uncooked
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon leaf oregano

Lightly toss together meat, milk, cheese, oats, egg, green pepper, salt and oregano. Divide mixture in half. With one-half make Beef Cups and second half Meat Balls.

To prepare Beef Cups: Divide mixture between 2 buttered 6-ounce custard cups. Make a hollow in center of each and fill with 1 tablespoon catsup. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven, 25 minutes. Makes 2 servings.

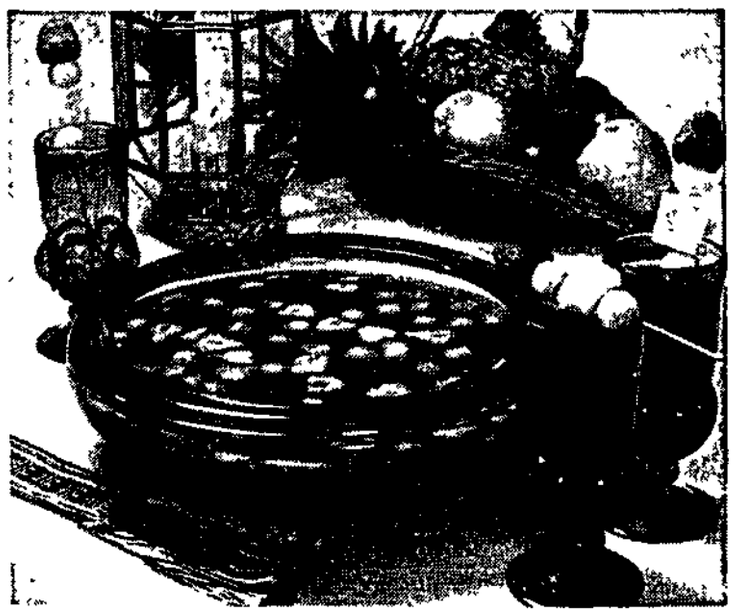

To prepare Meat Balls: Form meat mixture into 6 meat balls, 1½-inches in diameter. Brown in a small skillet. Pour over 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce combined with ¼ teaspoon garlic powder. Simmer 15 minutes covered. Serve over spaghetti. Makes 2 servings.

MICROWAVE COOKING METHODS

Prepare beef mixture and divide. Place beef cups in microwave oven and cook 2 minutes for one cup; 4 minutes for two. Place meat balls in small ceramic skillet or glass casserole. Cook 3 meat balls 2 minutes; 6 meat balls 3½ minutes. Pour off meat drippings. Pour over 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce combined with ¼ teaspoon garlic powder. Cover and return to oven for 2 minutes for 6 meat balls; 1 minute for 3. Serve over spaghetti.

Note: Beef Cups and Meat Balls may be frozen. Wrap beef-filled custard cups in foil and freeze. To cook Beef Cups. Place frozen Beef Cups in foil in preheated 350 degree oven, 30 minutes. Remove foil, add catsup to center and cook an additional 30 minutes. To cook in microwave oven: Remove freezer wrap; add catsup to center, place in oven, cook 4 minutes for one cup; 8 minutes for two.

Freeze Meat Balls separately, then put in moisture-vapor proof bag. Take out as many as you wish to prepare for a meal. Cook in skillet as directed above. To cook in microwave oven: Place meat balls in small ceramic skillet or glass casserole. Cook 3 meat balls, 3 minutes; 6 meat balls, 6 minutes, turning container half way through the cooking process. Pour off meat drippings. Pour over 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce combined with ¼ teaspoon garlic powder. Cover and return to oven for 1 minute for 3 meat balls; 2 minutes for 6.

Sangaree-A-Tea

Fruitful tea drinks make entertaining easy

Sangaree — the probable forerunner of the popular Spanish drink, Sangria — originated in tropical climes, and the actual recipe, made with wine or spirits, was usually left up to the imagination of the mixer.

For such an imaginative, unique party punch, try Sangaree-A-Tea. Punch recipes are easy to make in large quantities at one time — and will help keep the entertaining budget in line.

To give your punches good body and flavor, use a tea base which is quickly and conveniently made with lemon flavored iced tea mix. For this version of a Mexican-type sangaree, add white wine, fruit juices, and — typical of tropical drinks — pieces of fresh fruits: melons, pineapple and strawberries. Use the same fruits threaded on small skewers for individual miniature kabobs.

To set a gay informal mood, place the punch bowl — it can be a large simple glass bowl — on a small table covered with a colorful cloth so each person can help himself. Arrange some of the fruit in a basket for a centerpiece: a hurricane lamp or interesting candles will cast a warm glow over the glasses, set out with the juicy fruit kabobs — an invitation for everyone to enjoy a sanguine and relaxing evening at your house.

SANGAREE-A-TEA

3 envelopes (1.8 oz. ea.) or
⅓ cup lemon flavored iced tea mix
3 cups water
1 bottle (4/5 qt.) dry white wine
1½ cups fresh orange juice (about 5 oranges)
1/3 cup fresh lime juice (about 2 limes)
2 cups honeydew balls
2 cups cantaloupe balls
2 cups diced pineapple
2 cups thinly sliced strawberries

In punch bowl, combine lemon flavored iced tea mix, water, white wine, orange and lime juices, honeydew, cantaloupe, pineapple, and strawberries; chill thoroughly. Makes about 25 (5-ounce) servings.

WEST INDIES FRUITED PUNCH

2 envelopes (1.8 oz. ea.) or ½ cup lemon flavored ice tea mix
4 cups orange juice
1 cup water
2 cups blueberries
3 peaches, peeled and thinly sliced
2 bananas, thinly sliced
1 jar (8 oz.) Maraschino cherries cut in half (reserve syrup)
1 bottle (28 oz.) club soda, chilled

In punch bowl, combine lemon flavored iced tea mix, orange juice and water. Add blueberries, peaches, bananas, cherries and reserved syrup; chill. Just before serving, add club soda. Makes about 25 (5-ounce) servings.

Franfare

Tossed green salads are probably the easiest to make and are, by far, the most popular variety. However, now that the price of greens is beyond budget means it's a good time to tap other salad sources.

A wide variety of vegetables can be turned into appealing salads with minimal effort. And don't overlook the obvious. Pasta products are in good supply this month so a macaroni salad is an ideal choice. The addition of green peas, cubed cheese, grated carrot and/or green pepper will produce a nutritious salad combination at modest cost.

Potato salad is a good choice with menus featuring barbecued meats and should not be considered commonplace. Chives, parsley, scallions, cucumbers, capers, olives and pickles are only a few of the ingredients that, when added discreetly, will provide added zest.

Potato salad is best made from potatoes cooked in their jackets and peeled and marinated while still warm. The small red waxy potatoes hold their shape and don't crumble when sliced or diced, nor do they absorb an excessive amount of dressing or become mushy.

French dressing, soup stock, canned bouillon or white wine can be used in small amounts for a marinade.

Green beans are also a good salad choice. For the simplest type of marinated salad, place canned green beans (drained) and raw onion slices in a container. Add enough sweet pickle juice to cover. Seal the container tightly and refrigerate 24 hours. This salad can be served in lettuce cups or on shredded greens on chilled plates.

Lentils, kidney, navy or lima beans, cooked or canned, are the basis of another simple salad.

Drain well and chill 2½ cups canned or cooked kidney or lima beans. Combine with ¼ cup chopped gherkins or pearl onions may be added. Serve on lettuce leaves and sprinkle with chopped parsley and chopped chives or grated onion.

To make French dressing combine ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon olive oil, 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard in a small bowl. Beat these ingredients well with a wire whisk or a fork until smooth. Add 2 tablespoons olive oil and beat well again. Add 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice and 3 tablespoons olive oil. Peel and add 1 clove garlic. Place the dressing in a jar, cover it well and store it in a cold place. Shake well before using.

Polynesian pork dish brings spring spirit to the dinner table

Looking forward to the newness and freshness that spring brings lifts the spirits. So does serving something different for dinner — something that suggests warm winds and sunny skies.

You can achieve a pleasant Polynesian atmosphere with this recipe using cubes of savory pork to advantage. It's a delightful way to bring an early spring to your table.

POLYNESIAN PORK

1½ pounds boneless pork shoulder, cut into ¾ inch cubes
1 can (11½ ounces) pineapple chunks
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon mace
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 green pepper, cut in thin strips
1 cup water
3 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Drain pineapple and reserve juice. Brown pork cubes in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add salt, pepper, mace, chopped onion, green pepper strips and water. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour or until done. Combine cornstarch, brown sugar, lemon juice, soy sauce and reserved pineapple juice. Pour over meat mixture and simmer 5 to 10 minutes or until sauce is thickened. Add pineapple and heat through. Serve over rice or Chinese noodles. 6 servings.

Upside down cake is party perfect

Perfect for a party, this peach upside down cake offers a different touch when you pass cranberry sauce, chopped nuts, jelly or sour cream to dollop on top of the candied cling peach half.

Colorful and delicious, you can vary the cake toppings if you like, because cling peach halves will welcome just about any topping that happens to be your favorite.

PARTY PEACH UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

9 canned cling peach halves
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup brown sugar
½ box (18.5 ounces) yellow cake mix
1/3 cup sherry
Whole Cranberry sauce
Nuts
Tart red jelly
Sour cream

Drain peaches, reserving 1/3 cup syrup. Melt butter in bottom of 8-inch square pan, in preheated oven. Sprinkle with brown sugar. Arrange peaches cup side down in pan. Mix ½ box yellow cake mix according to package directions, using reserved peach syrup and sherry for the liquid. Pour batter over the fruit. Bake in 350 degrees (moderate) oven about 45 minutes or until it tests for doneness. Loosen sides of cake with spatula and invert onto cake plate. Serve warm with an assortment of garnishes to fill peach cavities; cranberry sauce, nuts, tart jelly, and sour cream. Makes 9 servings.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ABOUT CONSERVING ELECTRICITY.

Do-it-yourself hints to cool food for less cost.

Refrigerators and freezers operate night and day. If they're not in proper working order, you can be wasting energy around the clock. These tips can help maintain them in top operating condition.

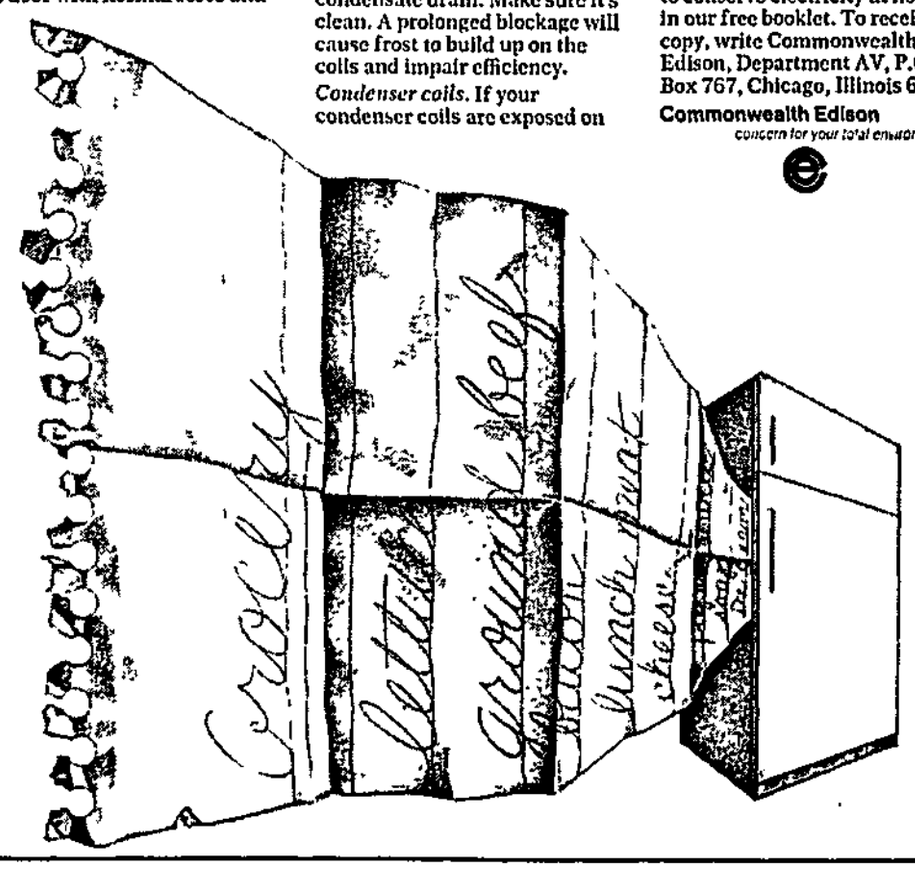

Door gasket test. To check the tightness of the door seal, place a piece of paper between the gasket and the cabinet. Close the door with normal force and try to pull the paper straight out. There should be a slight drag. Repeat the test at various places around the door, including the hinge side. If there are places where no drag occurs, have a service man check the gasket and the door for proper alignment.

Condensate drain. If you have a no-frost or self-defrosting refrigerator, examine the condensate drain. Make sure it's clean. A prolonged blockage will cause frost to build up on the coils and impair efficiency.

Condenser coils. If your condenser coils are exposed on the back of the unit, clean them regularly. Use a bristle brush or vacuum cleaner. Newer refrigerators have the condenser coils covered by a panel. Remove it for cleaning. Some models have coils beneath the unit. To clean, remove the front grill and vacuum.

These and other refrigeration hints are among the 101 ways to conserve electricity at home in our free booklet. To receive a copy, write Commonwealth Edison, Department AV, P.O. Box 767, Chicago, Illinois 60690.

Salmon saves budget and waistline

"There is nothing new under the sun," is an old cliche, which is more often true than false. Certainly there is nothing very new about Twentieth Century man's concern about overweight and general good health. From the time that the first cave men, frugivorous from necessity and not desire, invented the bow and arrow and sated themselves on the raw flesh of their kill, over-eating, over-indulging has plagued the world. It probably reached its height when Rome became the center of the riches of the world, and the luxury of the table was carried to incredible degrees of wanton gluttony.

But it was not until 1865 that the first health and diet book was published. It was written by the renowned French philosopher and bon-vivant, Brillat Savarin, and was devoted to the preservation of good health, with special emphasis on the "reduction of corpulency." His rules for losing weight and gaining vitality and longevity are basically the same as those presented today in various guises, all of which boil down to consuming fewer calories, getting adequate exercise and satisfying only the minimum requirements of sleep.

In those days, high protein diets were recommended with fish and seafoods preferable to the higher caloric red meats, containing saturated fats. Today we can, without any question of a doubt, add — and higher priced!

Fish is still comparatively inexpensive, and convenience foods, are extremely good buys. Canned salmon, for instance, with its complete protein, abundant vitamins and minerals and unsaturated fats is one of the best. Try saucing salmon with a velvety yogurt sauce to top off a dish of steaming spaghetti for just one of the many nourishing yet economical and healthful dishes that can be quickly made from a can of salmon.

SPAGHETTI WITH SALMON YOGURT SAUCE

½ cup butter (1 stick)
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup sliced green onions
1 pound can salmon with liquid
3 tablespoons dry white wine or chicken stock
1 8-ounce container plain yogurt
1 teaspoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
12 ounces enriched spaghetti

In saucepan melt half the butter. Add mushrooms and onions and cook over low heat until vegetables are just tender. Add salmon, wine or chicken stock and simmer for 3 minutes.

Combine yogurt, flour and seasonings. Stir into mixture in skillet and cook, stirring, for 3 minutes longer.

Meanwhile cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain, toss with remaining 4 tablespoons butter and serve with the salmon sauce poured over it.

Serve with grated Parmesan cheese and a tossed salad. Serves 4.

Spices spark low calorie salads

Overweight is more of a threat to women than to men. It has been estimated by one of the country's largest life insurance companies. Specifically, some 3,514,000 American males are 20 per cent above ideal weight, but twice as many females — 7,073,000 — tip the scale at 20 per cent more than they should.

Salads come to mind immediately as low-calorie foods, but, if incorrectly made, they can be so gopped up with rich dressing, heavy in calories, that they are ineffective as weight reducers. Lean meats, fish and seafood, eggs, cottage or pot cheeses and almost all vegetables, especially the green ones, are comparatively low in calories; base your diet on them.

The next step is to learn what an ally your spice shelf can be. Spices and herbs are flavor-builders so low in calorie value they needn't be counted. Herbs, spices and blends of these, and the dehydrated "condimental" vegetables such as onions, garlic, chives and shallots add delightful eating satisfaction to salad ingredients.

Home economists of the American Spice Trade Association have created recipes for Herbed Chicken Stuffed Tomatoes and Low Calorie Paprika Salad Dressing. If you are of an experimental nature you can herb or spice a base such as yogurt, with lemon and dill seed or weed, and garlic or onion powder. Tomato or mixed vegetable juices or bouillon made from cubes can be seasoned with herbs and spices, made tart with vinegar or lemon; well seasoned, these make acceptable dressings for salads of many kinds.

HERBED CHICKEN STUFFED TOMATOES

2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons water
6 large tomatoes
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 tablespoon basil leaves
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 cups diced cooked chicken or turkey
¼ cup diced cucumber
½ cup grated carrot

Rehydrate minced onion in water for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, cut a thin slice from bottom of each tomato so tomato will stand level. Cut a slice from stem end of each tomato. Scoop out pulp from tomatoes; drain off ½ cup of the tomato liquid; set aside. (Use remaining pulp in soups, etc.) Combine reserved tomato liquid with minced onion, parsley flakes, basil, salt and black pepper; mix well. Stir in chicken, cucumber and carrot. Use about ½ cup to fill each tomato shell. Serve on a bed of lettuce; garnish with radish roses, if desired. Yield: 6 portions. Calorie Count: 190 per portion

LOW CALORIE PAPRIKA SALAD DRESSING

2 teaspoons powdered mustard
2 teaspoons warm water
1 cup tomato juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon onion powder
2 teaspoons sugar
¾ teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon salt

Combine mustard with warm water; let stand 10 minutes for flavor to develop. Combine mustard with remaining ingredients; blend well. Pour desired amount over torn greens; toss and serve. Store any remaining dressing, covered, in the refrigerator. Yield: 1-1/3 cups. Total calories: 50

Use The Want Ads—It Pays

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Chicken is a great favorite for picnics, cookouts and patio parties. Here are two unusual ways to prepare broiler-fryers.

First is an Italian barbecue recipe Pollo Alla Diavolo, or Deviled Chicken. Select a small fryer, about 2 pounds in size. Reserve neck and giblets for other purpose. Split the chicken down the back after washing carefully, but do not separate entirely.

Spreadeagle the chicken on a cutting board and with a heavy object press it flat. Leave for about an hour until well flattened. Blend 2 tablespoons dry mustard with ½ cup oil, ½ teaspoon pepper. Brush chicken with this mixture, reserving the rest for basting.

Since you must have very high heat followed by reduced heat, be so guided in your preparation. In a broiler oven or gas grill, this is no problem.

Get the fire very hot and sear the chicken on both sides but do not allow to blacken. Once chicken is seared reduce heat and broil until tender, basting frequently. Should be done in 30 minutes after searing. Serve with garnish of parsley and fresh lemon slices.

ANOTHER unusual recipe, excellent for outdoor cooking is German, Backhuhn in Bierteig, Chicken in Beer Batter. This is deep fried in oil or shortening.

Make a smooth mixture of 1 cup flour, 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon melted butter (or 1½ tablespoons oil). Add beer as needed (about 8 ounces) to obtain a smooth batter of non-drip consistency. Next add a pinch of salt and let the mixture sit for 30 minutes.

Wash a broiler-fryer, about 2½ pounds in size, pat dry and cut into quarters. You can, of course, buy a chicken already quartered. Coat each piece with the batter.

In a deep pan which will accommodate all the pieces heat oil (about 2 inches) until piping hot (a drop of water will sizzle). Fry chicken pieces until golden brown at high heat, then reduce heat and cook another 10 to 15 minutes until chicken is done. Remove and drain on toweling before serving to 4.

Great with warmed slices of french bread which can be done in foil on the grill while you're preparing the chicken.

Safe picnic food

Precbill or prebeat food you plan to pack in vacuum bottles, and fill them to capacity. Airspace between food or beverages and the stoppers lessens the bottles' efficiency.

To reduce bacterial growth in picnic sandwiches, take a tip from commercial sandwich makers: use frozen bread and fillings chilled to 45 degrees or lower. Wrapped tightly in plastic and carried in an insulated container, they should be just right for eating when mealtime arrives.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare suggests, for safety's sake, that freshly prepared picnic foods not be prepared or bought more than 24 hours ahead of serving time.

Consumer Tips

Stretch your food budget by combining the more expensive protein foods with macaroni, spaghetti, and noodles to extend the number of servings. At the same time, these "pasta" products contribute the B vitamins, niacin, riboflavin, and thiamin, plus iron, in addition to the protein and carbohydrate that all cereal grains supply.

Durum — that hard-grained wheat that pasta is made of — ever wonder where it got its name? Durum comes from the Latin word, "Durus," meaning hard. Flour made from it gives that special "hold-togetherness" — yet tenderness — to macaroni, spaghetti, and noodles.

To provide consumers with more almonds, the U.S. Department of Agriculture is making 66 per cent of California's 1972-73 almond crop available to domestic markets. Last Sept. 1, 55 per cent had been designated for domestic demand — with the remainder used for export sale. But the amount for U.S. sale has been increased by 11 per cent to meet demand.

It's cherry picking time in the West and that means that sweet cherries should be in the fresh produce bins of stores soon. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that the most important indication of good flavor and maturity in sweet cherries is a very dark color. Depending on variety, sweet cherries should range from deep maroon or mahogany red to black. Good quality cherries will be bright, with glossy, plump surfaces and fresh stems.

Eggs, the complete protein food, are widely used in precooked frozen convenience "heat and serve" dinners now on the market, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. These include scrambled eggs, omelets, french toast, waffles, and egg foo young meals. For campers, available freeze-dried meals are Western, Mexican, and Denver omelets.

Food safety tips

Regard your hands as contaminated for food handling purposes, says New York State Cooperative Extension. Keep them out of food as much as you can and away from dish surfaces that come in contact with diners' lips. Pick up glasses at their bases, and cups and silver, by their handles.

Don't lick your fingers when you're working with food — and don't use cooking spoons or forks to taste food while you cook and serve it.

Label poisons clearly and store them separately from food. White, powdered insecticides have often been mistaken for flour or sugar.

Don't use deep containers to store food in the refrigerator. Food in large masses is its own insulator, keeping the center warm long after the outer part has chilled almost to the freezing point. Shallow pans filled no more than three or four inches deep are safest.

Clearbrook's sheltered workshop

Where handicapped earn a pay check

by MARIANNE SCOTT

Finding workers willing to gather pages in the right order for binding, for packaging and shipping, sorting and small assembly work is one of the most troublesome problems faced by manufacturers.

However, many area manufacturers have solved this problem by jobbing this tedious work out to be a local "company" that since its inception just a few years ago has handled more than 30 million units.

These workers, capable and professionally supervised, are the mentally and physically handicapped adults at the Clearbrook Vocational Rehabilitation Center and Sheltered Workshop in Elk Grove Village.

Assignments for the workshoppers, referred to as "clients" by Bob Gillespie, vocational director at the workshop center, are extremely varied. They range from stripping and salvaging components and printed circuits from faulty new hi-fi sets and old telephones to soldering sub-assemblies for small electric motors and automatic transmissions.

THEY ASSEMBLE TV antennas, put together parts for dimmer switches, battery terminals and prizes for Kellogg cereal and Cracker Jack boxes. They wind millions of feet of Ampex stereo tape and wire onto coils for Littelfuse.

They weigh and package nails, nuts and bolts, thread nuts to bolts, pack decals for sportscars, stuff and mail envelopes, pack books for Bantam, staple advertising materials and label dog food dishes and other products.

And all at essentially the same rates a manufacturer would pay his own employes.

For example, if a firm's employes are paid at $2 an hour and are producing 100 units per hour, the Clearbrook clients would be paid at the rate of $2 per hundred units regardless of the time involved.

Clearbrook pays out more than $5,000 monthly to its workers who are paid according to how much work he or she turns out. Although the average wage is 80 cents an hour, some earn up to $120 or $150 over the two-week period. Others, subsidized by the more able trainees, make as little as $4, but everyone gets a pay check. And from each pay check the government takes its cut which makes the worker a contributing member of society.

FOR SOME THE work at Clearbrook Vocational Rehabilitation Center and Sheltered Workshop will be a lifetime job; for others it is transitional. More than 40 workshoppers have been placed in area factories, collectively earning approximately $300,000 and paying out $60,000 in income taxes since their placement. The workshop itself has paid out more than a quarter of a million dollars in taxes.

In compliance with child labor laws all Clearbrook clients are at least 16 years old. The oldest is 58. On entering the workshop, often after years at the day school of Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows, each trainee is given a series of tests to assess his or her manual dexterity and capabilities. According to William J. McAllister, director of development at the center, the fine coordination and muscle control demonstrated by many of the trainees is truly amazing. After being accepted progress is measured often the first year, yearly thereafter.

USING MACHINERY is part of the work. A recent addition to this equipment is a conveyor belt which has tripled operations. Tape winders, punch presses and a heat sealer for plastic are also operated by the workshoppers. So that no one will become bored or stale jobs are switched around, and complete maintenance of the building is also done by the trainees.

On and off the job social activities are also included in the program. Parties and arts and craft sessions are many, and according to Gillespie the crafts are not so much to familiarize the workers with the crafts as to help them work better with others. A worker who isolates and doesn't verbalize can usually interact and relate better when socials are included in the program.

THE 15-MEMBER staff at the workshop includes a methods-time-measurements specialist who calls on local manufacturers, works out details and submits bids for sub-contracts. However, as the workshop becomes better known among manufacturers, both local and non-local, job soliciting is waning.

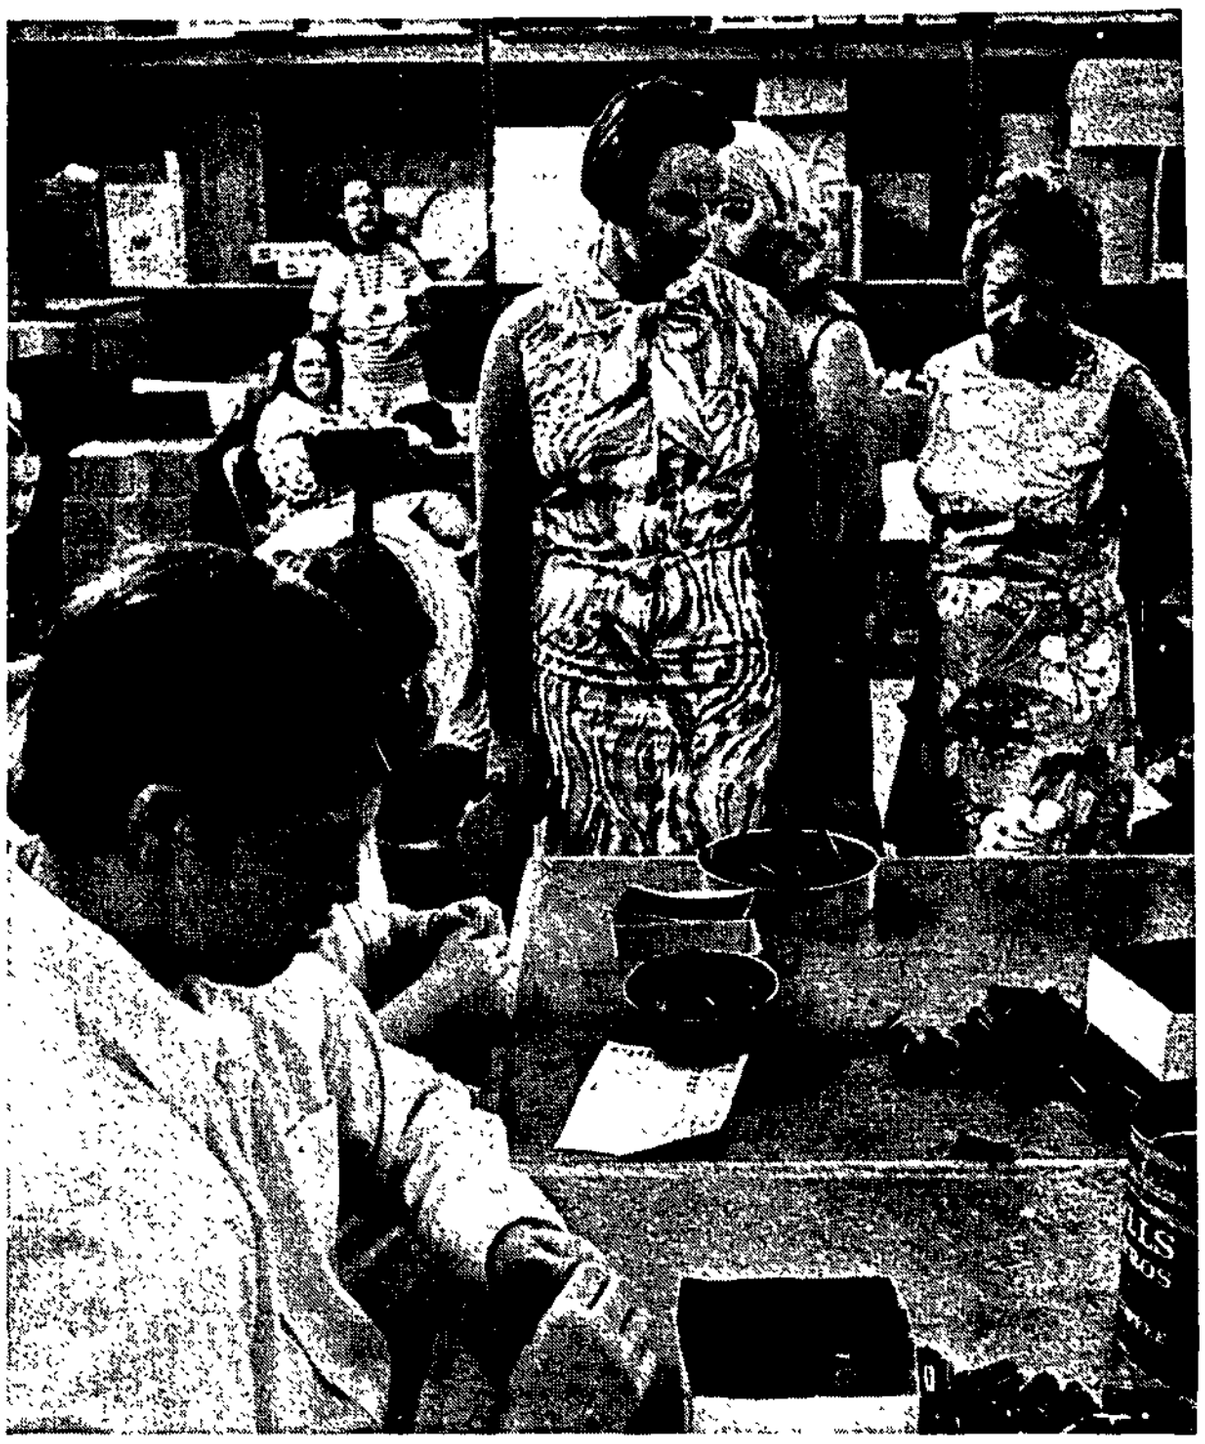

History of the workshop dates back to 1965 when Bob Gillespie took some of the students from the Clearbrook day school to work in a small vacant shop in Rolling Meadows. In February 1971 the workshop moved to its present location, a $350,000 air-conditioned building in the Centex Industrial Center in Elk Grove (largest industrial development in the United States). The workshop includes 17,500 square feet, 12,000 of which is work area. The balance includes offices, a beauty shop with laundry area, library, multi-purpose room, lunch room, kitchen and medical room. (Only two minor accidents have occurred since February 1971.) Each worker also has locker space.

THE LARGEST of semi-trailers can be accommodated under roof at the loading dock. Fork lifts are used for loading as well as moving parts.

The workshop opened in Elk Grove with 62 workers. It now has 92, all bussed to the door, and Gillespie estimates that the work area can accommodate up to 120 when expansion will again be indicated.

As the workshop grows and more workshoppers are placed in outside jobs, so does the number of workers needing housing. Toward this end Clearbrook will be taking over the former Wayside convent in Arlington Heights. Approved for a state grant and also by the Arlington Heights Zoning board of Appeals, renovation of the building is now nearing completion and 20 workshoppers who might otherwise have to live in institutions will be moving in about July 1.

Friends of Clearbrook, who toured the Elk Grove workshop Monday, will be donating proceeds from their annual brunch next November to the new housing facility.

"CLIENTS" THREAD nuts onto bolts in the Elk Grove Clearbrook workshop as Mimi Mead and Mary Austin tour the facility with Friends of Clearbrook. In the background workers put plastic wire into small rolls.

Next On The Agenda

ARLINGTON JC WIVES

Arlington Heights Jaycee Wives meet tonight at 8 in the home of Mrs. Bruce Abdelhak, 1106 Bernard, Buffalo Grove.

VFW AUXILIARY

Retiring president Mrs. Ollie Coker of the Des Plaines VFW Auxiliary will be honored Monday evening at a social hour following the business session. The meeting starts at 7:30. Mrs. Jack Ilseder will be hostess.

Delegates and alternates are reminded that the state convention will be held June 21-24 at the Sheraton O'Hare.

UNITED CEREBRAL PALSY

Northwest Suburban League of United Cerebral Palsy meets Monday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Jeffrey Hoyne, 533 S. Phelps, Arlington Heights.

This meeting is for women who have children with a handicap or for those interested in helping the cause. Information will be given on schooling, rights, deductions, summer day camp and problems of the family.

Further information can be obtained by calling 394-0327.

BUFFALO GROVE GARDENERS

An array of 12 flower arrangements will be designed from scratch for Buffalo Grove Garden Club at a meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in St. Mary's science lab on Buffalo Grove Road. Guests are welcome.

Mrs. Emil C. Walker Jr., nationally accredited master flower show judge and teacher, will create each arrangement using plant material from her own garden. During the horticulture part of the meeting, Mrs. Bruce Vance will talk on flowers to grow for drying. Plans will also be completed for the club's annual civic planting.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Gus Leep and Mrs. Thomas Damon.

Ensemble made in Mexico

Any brides looking for an unusual wedding ensemble might like to follow Charlane Ann Merchant's lead. She flew down to Mexico to have her gown handmade from a design she herself created. It was returned by airmail and ready to don in a perfect fit on her wedding day.

Charlane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Merchant of Schaumburg, was married May 12 in St. Domitilla's Church, Hillside, to Robert James Shea of Hillside.

Making the trip to Mexico, Charlane met the seamstress who could follow a sketch of her bridal gown and headpiece without any vocal directions, because neither could understand the other's language.

FOR THE GOWN she chose white organza with sheer yoke and long sleeves that had a large pouf from the shoulder to above the elbow. The yoke, sleeves and waist were embroidered in floral lace. A flounce of organza encircled the floor-length hem and its chapel train.

A most unusual feature of the ensemble was the band of tiny flowers that framed the bride's dark hair. The headpiece was handmade in Mexico from bread crumbs formed into tiny rosebuds, lillies of the valley, stephanotis and leaves. The roses were dyed a pale pink, the leaves in green.

The same variety of flowers, but in fresh blooms, composed the bride's bouquet. Her veil was triple-tiered and floor-length.

Jill Lukas of Hillside was maid of honor for the double ring rites. The groom's sister, Pat Shea, was a bridesmaid along with Kris Ramsell, Buffalo Grove, and Val Ptack of Hoffman Estates.

The girls wore floral bouquet prints in pink and lime green voile over pink gingham. A violet cape collar accented the neckline and a flounce edged the hem.

The attendants all carried natural wicker baskets filled with pink roses, lime green daisies and baby's breath.

LORI CARROLLO, the bride's four-year-old cousin from Elmhurst, was flower girl, wearing a long pink and white gingham dress with a bib collar embroidered in lime green flowers. Mike Shea, 5, the groom's young brother, was ring bearer.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Shea of Hillside. His two brothers, Thomas and Dan Shea, ushered along with Charlane's brother Gary. Best man was Jim Kreiter of Franklin Park.

After the mid-afternoon ceremony, the newlyweds greeted 200 guests at a reception at the Royal Court Inn in Des Plaines. After honeymooning in Hawaii for a week, they are making their home in Elk Grove.

The bride, a '70 graduate of Conant High School, attended Western Illinois University for two years and now works for United Air Lines, Elk Grove. Her husband graduated from St. Joseph's of Westchester, Ill., and is with Illinois Bell Telephone in Elk Grove.

Child study group sets annual picnic

The Child Study Group of Barrington will hold its annual picnic next Tuesday at Langendorf Park beginning at 10:30 a.m. Rain date is the following Tuesday, June 19.

All mothers interested in the group are invited to bring their children and their lunches. Soft drinks will be provided.

Information concerning the picnic is available from chairman Jean Boffa, 381-6979, or vice chairman Lynn Maurer, 381-1376.

COP women have a picnic

Taking advantage of fine weather, good food, a white elephant sale and a casual, fun afternoon, Maine Township Republican Woman's Club dispensed with all speeches and concentrated on enjoying its annual picnic May 25.

Site of the outdoor event this year was the screened porch and grounds at the home of Mrs. Kay Korff, 1800 Lee St., Des Plaines, who co-hosted the event along with Mrs. Jeanne Killian and Mrs. Gerry Matushek.

The fact that the Illinois General Assembly was in session prevented several local legislators from attending. Maine Township was represened by Mrs. Joan Hall, Republican committeewoman; Edward Kochler, road commissioner; Mrs. James Dowd, wife of the newly elected supervisor; and Mrs. Fran Immig, township social worker.

Also attending were Gretchen James, aide to Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.; Pat Olson, aide to U. S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th; and a second Pat Olson, former Republican committeewoman of Oak Park Township.

Mrs. Tamillo attends garden convention

Among the delegates representing the Garden Club of Illinois, Inc., at the 44th annual meeting of National Council of State Garden Clubs held in Seattle last month was Mrs. Eugene J. Tamillo of Des Plaines. Mrs. Tamillo is the newly elected president of the Illinois club.

Workshops and schools of instruction were on the schedule, covering the fields of landscape design, conservation, horticulture, environmental improvement, awards and flower shows.

An extensive exhibit area included displays for world gardening, junior and high school gardeners, litter control, books, and national council calendars.

Soroptimists gather 10 years after

The accent was on service to others when 200 men and women gathered recently at Seven Eagles Restaurant to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines, a classified service club of business and professional women.

"If Not You . . . Who?" the organization's theme for this biennium, was brought into dramatic focus as each guest was presented with a small owl candle made by Des Plaines Soroptimists Lorraine Tomsheck, current club president; Jeraldine Rinkle, and Eleanor Hayd. Large owl candles decorated the center of each table.

Fashions were geared to interest both men and women, with apparel furnished by the Cynthia Shoppe and Allen's Store for Men, both of Des Plaines. Modeling the women's apparel were Cathy Breit, Patricia Brennan, Suzy Dean, Nancy Herzog, Gloria Janet, Bess Koplos, Hazel Lange, Donna McAllister, Rosie Tefft, Joy Tierney, Dottie White, Vernette Scamehorn and Barbara Stevens.

MALE MODELS were provided by Allen's. Betty Cairl commentated the show and Ken and Tom Tomscheck, the president's sons, assisted the models.

Immediately after dinner, Soroptimist member Grace Coash and two of her vocal students, Mrs. Barbara Curren of Des Plaines and Karen Mason of Arlington Heights, provided an interlude of music. Shirley Henricksen of Inverness served as mistress of ceremonies as charter president Hazel Lange gave her impressions of "Ten Years After" and Helen Mersman of Ohio, original installing officer, responded.

Twenty Chicago Soroptimists attended the birthday party, including Mrs. Mildred Mikes and Mrs. Gladys B. Smith, who organized the local group in May 1963.

Co-chairman of the celebration were Mrs. Rinkle and Mrs. Peggy Ruark.

The Soroptimist Club of Des Plaines has pledged itself to furnishing the recreation room in the proposed Des Plaines Senior Citizen housing project. The club is interested in Des Plaines redevelopment plans and is encouraging the city to aid the physically handicapped and the senior citizens by providing such facilities as ramps instead of curbs at certain intersections, more convenient openings in buildings, and other aids to help these people to be participants in town activities, instead of spectators.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Can you believe everything you hear from FDA?

From the department of you-can't-believe - everything - you - read - in - government releases:

FDA FACT SHEET: "Insuring clean, wholesome food for the entire nation is a major responsibility of the Food and Drug Administration . . . The defilement of foods by rodents and flies, notorious carriers of disease bacteria, introduces a real health hazard."

CONSUMER REPORTS, March, 1973: "The public learned that the FDA, for example, allows approximately one rodent pellet per pint of wheat, 10 drosophila or other fly eggs per 8½-ounce can of fruit juice. Peanut butter is acceptable up to a limit of 50 insect fragments or two rodent hairs per 3½ ounces. . .Those levels, the FDA asserted, represent 'natural or unavoidable defects. . .that present no health hazard."

FDA FACT SHEET: "Food plant sanitation and the wholesomeness of ingredients and finished products require a large share of FDA's enforcement time . . .Constant vigilance is required to protect food stocks from spoilage or contamination."

CONSUMER REPORTS, March 1973: "General Accounting Office auditors accompanied FDA personnel to food plants in 21 states. Of 97 plants . . . only 30 met FDA (sanitary) standards . . . 23 were judged to have serious unsanitary conditions, including rodent-infested raw materials, live insects on in-process raw materials . . . According to the GAO reports . . . In fiscal 1972 the (FDA) had only 210 inspectors to police more than 60,000 food establishments . . . it could inspect each establishment an average of only once every seven years."

FDA CONSUMER publication: "FDA scientists test to make sure chemicals and colors added to foods are safe. We are now reviewing more than 600 . . . to assure that they are being used properly and safely."

"THE CHEMICAL FEAST," by James Turner & Ralph Nader Study Group: "In 1965 the FDA announced that the food coloring called Red 4 . . . would be eliminated in six months. The . . . World Health Organization . . . called this color 'harmful. . .should not be used in food.' Before the ban could take effect the maraschino cherry producers convinced the FDA to allow the dangerous chemical color in its products."

"The (WHO) said (in 1965) that another FDA color, Violet No. 1, showed the 'possibility of harmful effects.' This the FDA. . .ignored since the tumors caused by the color occurred only after injection of the chemicals under the skin of rats."

FDA NEWS RELEASE, April 5, 1973: ". . . the FDA today announced that it is revoking its provisional listing and . . . approval for the use of Violet No. 1. . . As a food color, Violet No. 1 is widely used . . . FDA has accumulated and evaluated a number of studies on Violet No. 1 over the years. These data have not supported a finding that Violet No. 1 is unsafe for human use."

FDA FACT SHEET: "The FDA is responsible for establishing rigid safety standards for additives in foods. Not only must the additive be proved safe in normal use, but also safe when small amounts are consumed over a lifetime. No chemicals can be added to any food intended for human consumption unless the FDA is satisfied that the additive will have no serious effect on human health."

THE CHEMICAL FEAST: ". . . when the pressure on cyclamates came to a head in October, 1969, almost twenty years (after it had been registered by the FDA), a review of the FDA data . . . revealed 'a highly suspicious frequency of lung tumors' . . . In addition, of less than 100 rats tested by the FDA, 6 had rare ovarian, kidney, skin or uterine tumors that would ordinarily occur about once in ten thousand cases . . . The appearance of malignant tumors had been clearly noted in the 1950 FDA laboratory sheets on which the conclusions of safety were based."

"In a special communication to the FDA in November, 1954, the (National Academy of Sciences) said, 'The priority of public welfare . . . precludes . . . the uncontrolled distribution of foodstuffs containing cyclamate.' "

FDA, AUG. 10, 1959: "Non-nutritive sweeteners — safety has adequately been established for the substances in this category (cyclamate and saccharin)."

DR. JACQUELINE VERRETT, FDA biochemist, March 7, 1968 report to high-level science seminar: "It has been found that calcium cyclamates . . . (have) the ability to produce . . . defects in (chicken) embryos."

FDA, DECEMBER, 1968: Cyclamates reviewed and retained on Generally Regarded As Safe list.

FDA, OCT. 18, 1969: Announcing removal of cyclamates from GRAS list, Surgeon Gen. Jesse Steinfeld: "We have no indication that human bladder cancer from whatever cause is increasing to any significant degree. Our data to this effect are obtained from studies. . .in Connecticut."

THE CHEMICAL FEAST: "The National Institute of Cancer said . . . the Connecticut (studies) showed that between 1935 and 1965 the incidence of bladder cancer in that state doubled."

DR. STEINFELD, announcing FDA ban on cyclamates, Oct. 18: "The decisions being announced . . . are based on bladder tumors obtained from feeding massive doses of cyclamates throughout the life span of rats."

NBC HUNTLEY-BRINKLEY REPORT, Nov. 21, 1969: FDA tests using one-sixth the amount of cyclamates as in the first tests, for one-sixth the period of time, also resulted in a significant incidence of bladder cancer, in a different strain of rats.

Moral of story: The FDA cannot be expected to be infallible, but: 1) They need to be a lot more honest with the public, instead of cranking out the propaganda that the FDA has everything under control. They also need to be a lot more responsive to test data pointing to potentially harmful substances and less responsive to industry pressure. 2) The foregoing ought to indicate quite clearly where the public would be in terms of information without a free and vigorous press.

Mr. and Mrs. John Becker

John Beckers wed 50 years

Longtime residents of Des Plaines, John and Louise Becker of 1430 Wicke Ave. celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on June 3 at Old Orchard Country Club.

The actual date was June 2, but the dinner party was held the next day, Sunday, and was followed by an open house in the Mount Prospect home of the couple's son, John O. Becker.

Forty-six of the Beckers' fifty years of married life have been spent in Des Plaines although they were married in Chicago. Both grew up in the city, attended Chicago schools and met through cousins, the August Brauns, who also live in Des Plaines now, at 1460 Forest Ave.

Mrs. Becker, the former Louise Kunst, attended Northwestern Business College before her marriage.

AS CHARTER members of the Des Plaines Post 2992, Veterans of Foreign Wars, John and Louise took active roles in its development. John served as Post Commander in 1937. His wife was president of the auxillary from 1940-42.

He is now 86 years young and Louise is 74.

The anniversary pair have a daughter, Mrs. Joyce Marsiglia of Mount Prospect, as well as son John, and they regard a nephew, George O. Adler of Lombard, Ill., as their second son. Having raised him since he was three years old, they consider themselves as his parents.

Counting George's children as their own grandchildren, they have nine in all.

John has been retired since 1951 from A. B. Dick Co. where he was factory cashier for thirty-five years.

The Home Line

Dear Dorothy: How do you stop fuzz balls from accumulating on orlons, acrylics and so forth? No matter how I wash and dry them, the little balls are always there.

—Mrs. Chris R. Stirmell

No matter what you do, certain materials are going to produce these fuzz balls. To get rid of them you use a defuzzer. But it will help if at laundering time you separate the lint-producers, such as towels and flannels, from the lint-attractors, such as linens, dark cottons, corduroys, permanent press garments and others made of the new synthetic materials. Very heavy lint-producing pieces like chenille bedspreads ought to be laundered alone. You can also reduce fuzz balls by not loading the washer too heavily. Fabric softener either in the rinse cycle or in the drying period helps too. Overdrying of synthetics attracts lint because of the static buildup. Actually, doing laundry properly is as important as anything a homemaker has to do.

Dear Dorothy: A lucky visit has solved a continuing problem of mine with scalloped potatoes. They curdled all too often. The visitor was my aunt who told me to heat the milk when adding it to the potatoes — and never to bake the dish at over 350 degrees. I am so pleased I want to share the tip with everyone.

Years ago when I had a hemming job on my hands, Inda Wangerin showed me about reverse hemming to make it more permanent. You reverse the stitch each time you put the needle through the dress and hem. She said if you caught your heel in it, the hem wouldn't give way. I've now found out how right she was. One of these hems had to be changed and it became annoyingly slow because each stitch had to be taken out individually.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006).

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

I've mentioned this new Bug Booklet of mine that I've recently completed for Potting Shed readers, which outlines organic ways to repel over 50 specific insects, but I haven't said much about the work itself.

All it takes is weeks of reading about plant pests and one either becomes an amateur entomologist or starts growing feelers. I've really become bugged — which is something I have in common with the Democrats!

The day I finally wrapped up the work, my skin started to crawl and I became grossly itchy. Nights, while working on the revision of the Bug Booklet, I dreamed of giant spiders getting their revenge. I can't watch monster movies on TV anymore without taking frequent breaks to calm myself.

I spent several weeks of lunch hours doing the typing, and some of my cohorts got to calling me, "Miss Spittle Bug."

I DID COME across some acutely comic-sounding plant ills. (a lot more comic than the ills themselves, I'm sure), not too many of which I included in the booklet. May I share some of the lighter moments of my research with you?

I discovered, for instance, that there exists a flat-headed apple tree borer, but no round, pointed or pinheaded borer. However, there is a red-necked blackberry bramble borer.

After reading about the tent caterpillar, I decided if a tent caterpillar married a bagworm, they could go camping on their honeymoon!

There are mummy berries, but no daddy berries. There is a scale that knows the way to San Jose, and a carpenter ant that repairs the damage done by termites!

Some bugs are constantly on the move — the cabbage looper, leaf hopper, stalk borer, leaf roller, and springtail.

CITRUS FRUITS get some ghastly sounding disease — might even scare a plant to death: gummosis, orange tortrix, scaleback citricola. How terrible it must be when a plant learns it has smut, bleeding canker, scurfy scale, slime mold, or root rot!

Do you really believe that European shot-hole borers and fall armyworms are veterans of foreign wars?

What could be more painful than to develop needle rust, blister beetle, fire blight?

Spittle bugs and squash borers sound terribly aggressive, don't they?

And, would you believe there are white flies, black flies and violet sawflies driving the houseflies color-blind?

There are a spotted cucumber beetle and a striped one, a four-lined plant bug, a two-spotted spider mite — but none of them attack the polka-dot plant.

A MOST incompatible sounding pair seem to be the show-string root rot and the greedy scale.

And finally, if I had no choice I'd certainly rather get geranium crinkle than banana freckle.

Seriously, though, this booklet of mine is the best yet, and we've got much favorable comment. I hope that you do send for a copy if you plan to do any gardening at all this season. The cost is just a quarter plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Cerise O'Malley, WERL, Eagle River, Wis. 54521. Don't forget to send the quarter; it all goes to my favorite charities: Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP) in Palatine and the Vilas-Oneida Wilderness Society.

Mrs. Gallagher of Palatine writes: "Will you please tell me where I can get Basic H detergent (as mentioned in the booklet). I have checked with several large nurseries and a chemistry professor and no one seems to know what Basic H is."

ANSWER: TRY the yellow pages for a Shak-lee distributor. The Shak-lee people make it and their salesmen and women conduct home visits, similar to Avon and Fuller Brush. I'm sure there is a Shak-lee distributor near you.

Mrs. Ralph Synek of Arlington Heights offers a few more organic tips: she waters in Epsom salts to her roses for discouraging aphids and building stronger canes. Dusting roses with bone meal instead of working it into the soil as a fertilizer accomplished twice as much good, she relates, as well as getting rid of those ornery aphids. Three sprinklings all summer did the trick.

For Mrs. Sullivan of Hoffman Estates who wants to know how to get rid of spiders in the house, ditto crickets, try this: pick some plantain weed from your yard (look like dandelion but is not saw-tooth — go on, look for it, it's everywhere!). Drop it in a pot of boiling water, and boil it to death. Spiders will leave the premises. For crickets, pick a few green, warty Osage oranges, also called road apples, and put them in the corner of your cellar or wherever crickets are seen. They will be repelled from your cellar. It's not too hard to find Osage orange trees growing along the road. The fruit is as big as a grapefruit — lime green and ugly. You can't miss them. P.S. Try Routes 12 and 68 near the Forest Preserve.

Mrs. Wanta of Schaumburg wants to know if I have any other organic gardening literature available.

ANSWER: INDIVIDUAL sheets on how to make compost, how to attract birds to solve insect problems, all about mulches, companion planting, do-it-yourself fertilizer recipes all are available for 10 cents per sheet and a stamped-self addressed envelope to Cerise O'Malley, WERL, Eagle River, Wis. 54521. These monies also go to the above listed charities.

Happy bug hunting!

2 given awards to study nursing

Gayle Fulth

Andrea Andoniades

Two Prospect High School graduates have been awarded scholarships this year by the Mount Prospect Nurses Club. The recipients are Gayle Marie Fulth and Andrea Andoniades.

Gayle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fulth, 516 N. Maple, was chosen for the $400 scholarship. She will begin the two-year nursing program at Harper College in fall.

Andrea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Imanuel Andoniades, 709 N. Fairview, will receive a $200 award. She will enter the University of Wisconsin at Eau Claire in September.

Aviva Pioneer Women mark third anniversary

Aviva Chapter of Pioneer Women, which serves Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates and adjacent suburbs, celebrated completion of its third year at a luncheon Sunday at the Brass Rail Restaurant in Arlington.

In the short san, Aviva (which means spring) has grown from nine women into a chapter of 71 members. Dedicated to serving the cause of Israel, the chapter raised over $3000 this year. Suzie Rizman is Moetzet Hapoalot chairman in charge of the philanthropy.

At Sunday's luncheon retiring officers and chairmen were honored and a new board installed.

Arleen Grossman was luncheon chairman, assisted by Bobbie Babbitt, Karen Engert, Karen Gershman, Judy Keller and Joyce Simon.

MERLE LINDERMAN, retiring president, welcomed the members and their guests before a short business session and program. Edith Margolis, president of Northwest Side District Pioneer Women, spoke, and the Lual Shop in Rolling Meadows presented a fashion show.

JUDY RISCHALL was installing officer for the new board. Bobbi Iskowitz became president; Sue Rizman, Moetzet Hapoalot vice president; Ilene Templer, recording secretary; Sara Shafer, corresponding secretary, and Bobbie Share, treasurer.

CHAIRMEN INCLUDE Rita Necheles, membership; Bobbie Babbitt, program; Sharon Rubinstein, dues and conservation; Ronnie Goldberg, special projects; Marilyn Siegal, bulletin; Bobbie Malkin, Happy Day; Marylyn Bogan, publicity; Arleen Gorssman, earning fund.

Also, Helen Rifkin and Sheila Walowitz, boutique; Natalie Groner, Jewish national fund; Paula Drues, American affairs; Pan Gold, market research; Jaycee Kaufman, bowling league; Joyce Simon, social; Gloria Berger, summer project; Jeri Fogel, ad book; Audrey Price, bazaar; Shelly Weintraub, phone squad; and Rita Rubin, historian.

Mill Creek offered park site — with strings attached

by JOE FRANZ

Residents in Buffalo Grove's Mill Creek subdivision have been offered a 3.5-acre park site in Phase II of the development. In turn, the developer has asked for several changes in the subdivision's original plan.

The developer, Miller Builders, Inc., said it will grant the park land, providing the village allows construction of a small commercial site on the north end of the development. Miller has also asked to change the plan to allow construction of four-story condominiums instead of two-story apartments.

The proposal was made Tuesday night at a meeting of the Mill Creek Homeowners Association (MCHA). Several months ago a group from MCHA began meeting with Miller in an attempt to get more park land.

In Phase I of the development, which is nearing completion, a 5.5-acre site was donated by Miller for park use. The site is next to Washington Irving School which is scheduled to open in fall. The residents, however, said that site is not usable because it is almost always flooded.

THE ORIGINAL plan for Phase II of the development called for no park land. It was approved by the village board in 1969. Since construction has not started, MCHA decided to ask Miller to donate additional land. According to the park district master plan, 25-acres should be set aside for parks in the entire development. Homeowners several months ago suggested the park district acquire an additional 12 acres. This would bring the total park land in the development to 17.5 acres.

Park district director Stan Crosland said Tuesday the 3.5-acre site is too small to be of much benefit. He said the park would not be large enough for a baseball diamond. He suggested MCHA go back to Miller and ask for at least one more acre.

Some residents said the park is not large enough to serve the new residents who will move into Phase II, let alone those who are in the present development.

Dennis Gary, a representative of MCHA, told the residents since Phase II of the project has been approved by the village board, Miller can go ahead and build according to original plans. "We don't have anything to bargain with. We should keep this in mind," he said. "Miller Builders are not obligated to give us anything."

UNDER THE original plan, Miller could build 12 two-story apartment buildings, a total of 272 units. The rental units would all have one and two bedrooms. As planned, there is no land allotted for a shopping center.

One of the alternatives is to construct six four-story buildings for a total of 264 units. Under this plan all units would be individually owned. There would be 24 one-bedroom, 192 two-bedroom and 48 three-bedroom units.

In addition, there would be a 1.07-acre shopping center. The park land would be located on the eastern end of the development.

Another alternative would be to construct five four-story buildings for a total of 240 condominiums. There would be 20 one-bedroom, 180 two-bedroom and 40 three-bedroom units. Under this plan the commercial area would be slightly larger, at 2.27 acres. The park site would be the same size and located in the same area, but would be longer and narrower.

SOME RESIDENTS at Tuesday's meeting said they favored rejecting the two alternatives and allowing Miller to build according to its original plan. They would prefer the development be built with no park, rather than to allow a shopping center and four-story buildings.

Other residents, however, said the shopping center might be beneficial in increasing the tax base. Because of the size of the commercial site, the shopping center would probably be of the "strip type," with small convenience stores.

ROLES ARE SWITCHED in School Dist. 96 for a few days while teachers become students and administrators function as their instructors in a special workshop. The purpose of the workshop is to better familiarize the teachers with the concepts of Individually Guided Education (IGE), a program adopted by the district this year.

'Individually guided education' new program

Teachers become students for IGE

by JILL BETTNER

School Dist. 96 teachers are back in the classroom as students for a few days to learn more about the Individually Guided Education program that was introduced in the district this year.

The IGE program outlines methods teachers can use to tailor their instruction to fit the various needs of children who learn in different ways at different speeds.

In addition to giving guidelines for classroom procedures, the IGE program also includes rules for administrative operations. Under the program, teachers play a greater role in making decisions that affect them.

The IGE program was partially in operation in Dist. 96 this year. Teachers will use more IGE concepts next fall and the program will continue to be gradually adopted over the next five years.

Under the direction of Ron Warwick, administrative assistant, several Dist. 96 administrators are teaching workshop sessions at Willow Grove School in Lake County, Buffalo Grove. The sessions are designed to better familiarize teachers with IGE concepts. They began yesterday and will continue through next Tuesday.

THE TEACHERS are playing the role of students all the way in the workshop, Warwick said. The classes are being conducted as the teachers will be expected next fall to operate their own classes.

The five administrators running the workshop simulate a "teaching unit," as it is defined in IGE terminology. They include, besides Warwick, Dist. 96 Supt. Bill Hitzeman, Kildeer Countryside School Prin. Kent Rich, Willow Grove Prin. Bill Lanam and Larry Shafer, an instructor at Kildeer School. Shafer will serve as assistant principal of Twin Groves School next year.

The first step in the IGE procedure for setting up a unit of study is to pretest students to determine how much they know about the subject. Therefore, last week, Dist. 96 teachers sat down to answer a list of questions about the various IGE concepts.

Based on the results of their tests, workshop sessions were designed to give the teachers help with the IGE concepts they need to know more about.

THE PRETEST quizzed teachers on six basic IGE concepts. They were:

—Behavioral objectives. Teachers are required to put in writing what goals they want students to achieve before beginning a study unit.

—Instructional programming model. Instructors put together a strategy for teaching a subject that includes designing worksheets, tests and planning what media to use in presenting material.

—Multi-unit operation. The IGE methods used by each school in a district are supposed to be coordinated in order to allow district-wide planning.

—Roles and responsibilities. There is a specific "chain of command" in the IGE program that outlines how and by whom decisions are to be made.

—Grouping pattern. Instructors are encouraged under the IGE program to use different methods of grouping students for various kinds of learning. For example, a teacher might present a subject for the first time to the entire class and later break the students into small groups for discussion.

—IGE assessment. Not only students are evaluated for their work, but the performance of teachers and administrators is frequently discussed.

WARWICK SAID the teacher pretests indicated instructors needed to know more about the concepts of the instructional programming model and roles and responsibilities.

"Both these things are really new approaches," Warwick said. "There are definite guidelines on the instructional programming model that haven't really been introduced on a large scale yet."

Warwick also said IGE teachers have different roles and responsibilities than teachers in most conventional school systems.

"It's a whole new way of thinking about teaching," he said. "Teachers have never had so much responsibility. It's a team approach rather than one person over another."

Next Monday and Tuesday, teachers will use the information they gained in the first three days of the workshop to develop a study unit to be used next fall, Warwick said. They will also take a post-test to determine how much they learned.

"The beauty of this workshop is that we're getting administrators involved in a way that's educational," Warwick said. "We're intimately involved in what the teachers are doing."

Be certain before you answer this...

Are Certs a candy mint, or are they a breath mint?

That question, so frequently asked on television commercials, was not part of the debate Monday when the High School Dist. 214 board agreed to buy 11,340 boxes of mints.

The purchase was part of a $35,799.07 contract for candy for the district's cafeterias. The district will also buy 893 cases of Twizzlers (licorice sticks), 206 boxes of Brach Mints, 144 boxes of Chuckles, 479 boxes of Reese Peanut Butter Cups, 197 boxes of Tootsie Rolls and various amounts of five other kinds of candy.

In stocking up the cafeterias for next year, the board also approved a contract for 4 million half-pints of white and chocolate milk, for $12,000 worth of bread and rolls and for $12,000 worth of ice cream.

The foods will be used in the district's eight schools.

Following the board action, board Pres. Gene Artemenko quipped, "When I see all that candy and chocolate milk, I can feel the pimples breaking out on my face."

Has been serving as acting chief

Coburn named principal of Maine West High School

James L. Coburn, assistant principal of staff at Maine West High School for the past six years, and acting principal of the school since April of this year, was named the new principal of Maine West by the Dist. 207 Board of Education at a special meeting of the board last night. He succeeds Herman L. Rider who died April 27.

Coburn joined the Maine school system in 1958 as an English teacher at Maine Township High School, now Maine East. In a few years he was made director of reading, and later became a counselor of freshmen and sophomore boys.

When Maine South opened in 1964, Coburn was appointed director of Guidance at the school. He also took on the assignment of summer school director at that school. In 1967 he was made assistant principal in charge of staff at Maine West.

Coburn holds a bachelor's degree from North Central College and a Master of Science in Education degree from Northern Illinois University. He has also done additional graduate work at that university.

James Coburn

COBURN AND HIS WIFE, Julianne, and their four children reside at 1844 Everett Ave., Des Plaines. The family attend the Emmanual Lutheran Church in Des Plaines, where Coburn is chairman of the congregation.

He is a member of Des Plaines Rotary and of the Des Plaines Youth Council. He is also a member of the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the Illinois Principals Association, and Phi Delta Kappa.

In addition to his role as assistant principal, he has served the district as director of internal systems, which is the liaison role between Dist. 207 and the Institute for Education Research TIES program (Total Information Educational Systems.) He has helped establish the new data processing system which now serves the Maine high schools and five other suburban school districts.

In speaking of Coburn's appointment, Richard R. Short, superintendent of schools, stated, "I feel confident that the insightful and dedicated leadership which has been exemplified in the office of the Maine West principal through the services of its former principals, Mr. Ralph J. Frost and the late Herman L. Rider, will continue under Mr. Coburn.

He has always gone the extra mile that assures the success of any undertaking. I look forward to sharing with him in the administrative decision making, so vital in the maintenance of high quality education programs for the young people of our district."

School board confident of referendum approval

by FRED GACA

Members of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board are confident that Saturday's $1.25 million bond issue referendum to remodel the two oldest junior high schools in the district will pass.

The 16 elementary schools in the district will be used as polling places and will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Remodeling would be done at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

If passed, the referendum would provide funds to replace heating and ventilating systems at both schools, relocate classrooms, improve learning centers and build small additions to each school.

TOTAL COST of the remodeling is divided, with $585,000 for Grove Junior High School and $665,000 for Dempster Junior High School.

According to school district figures, the tax rate increase for the referendum will be three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current bond and interest fund rate is 56 cents per $100. Next year's budget calls for the rate to drop to 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation without the referendum. If the referendum is passed, the rate will rise to 50 cents per $100 — still below the current rate.

No date has been set for work to begin if the referendum is passed. James Erviti, district superintendent, has said the architect would require several months to prepare the necessary drawings and award contracts.

The majority of the work is to be done during the summer when the schools are closed. Some work will take place during the normal school year, but the schools will remain open for regular classes. The school year work would have little or no disruption of classes, according to the architect.

THE MOST VOCAL objection to the referendum has come from Joseph Stecker, 1602 Willow Ln., Mount Prospect. He contends Grove Junior High School is "short-changed" in the proposed remodeling and says the overall plans call for unnecessary and expensive work.

Originally, Stecker said the referendum should be passed, but recommended that the school board should change the plans before beginning work.

He said yesterday he now would like the referendum defeated because no member of the school board has considered changing the plans. Stecker said the board should develop new plans and then submit them for a new referendum.

Stecker was vice chairman of a citizens' committee that studied the district's junior high schools more than two years ago. He was primarily responsible for the committee's recommendation that Grove and Dempster junior high schools be remodeled to bring them up to the standards of the district's other, newer junior high schools.

Stecker has said the district went beyond the committee's recommendation in

Teachers rap 'economizing' board attitude

by REGINA OEHLER

Maine Teachers Association (MTA) criticized the Dist. 207 school board's "economize at any cost" attitude this week as the contract dispute between school officials and the union heated up.

In a 12-point "fact sheet," the faculty rapped teaching salaries, wage negotiation procedures and non-representation before the school board.

In response yesterday, school board member Leonard Grazian accused MTA of "grandstanding" and board president Robert Claus said the teachers are forcing unnecessary confrontation.

Eight parents and seven teachers met Tuesday night to discuss the "fact sheet" and a petition seeking "quality education," reduced class size, increased faculty salaries and the right to speak regularly at school board meetings for parents and teachers.

The petitions will be presented June 25 at the next regular meeting of the school board. One parent, Darlene Rizzo, has requested agenda listing.

The petition will be collected by Mrs. Rizzo at a meeting of parents and teachers at 8 p.m., June 21, in Park Ridge Community Church.

The fact sheet covers four areas: salary, communications, professional negotiations, and Maine North High School.

The MTA which represents 50 per cent of the faculty says Dist. 207 is 9th lowest of the 10 comparison school districts — Oak Park, Evanston, Lyons Township, Leyden, Glenbrook, Hinsdale, Highland Park, New Trier, Palatine, Niles and Dist. 214 in Wheeling and Elk Grove townships.

Teachers say last year's pay hike of 2.25 per cent did not cover cost of living increases. Short said that salaries were actually raised by 4.75 per cent.

The MTA "Fact Sheet" complains about lack of communications with the board. Short said the board is responsible to the entire community and that

Delivery man trapped 40 minutes

Nightmare in an elevator

A United Parcel Service driver was trapped for 40 minutes yesterday in a downtown Des Plaines elevator.

Herbert Harbison, 23, of Evanston, was freed about 11:30 a.m. from the two-floor elevator at the Mandas Building, 770 Lee St. by Fire Prevention Bureau officials.

"Boy, am I glad that's over," said Harbison, a daily delivery man at the building. "From now on I'm going to walk the stairs. I won't take any chances."

Harbison was caught between floors about 10:50 a.m. when the elevator "started thumping ... boom, boom, boom. It just wouldn't go anywhere."

Employes in the building called police and fire officials when Harbison sounded the emergency alarm in the elevator.

AN EMERGENCY fire-police key was missing from its storage box near the elevator. Inspection of the building found no emergency exits from the elevator.

"It's a completely closed system," firemen told fire prevention bureau officials who arrived about 11:20 a.m. "There's no way in or out other than the door."

"You're not holding the 'stop' button?" one of the firemen asked the trapped driver.

"Jump around in there — maybe it will come unstuck," another suggested.

While firemen searched for the elevator power source, building owner Peter Mandas approached the closed doors with a hedge trimmer.

"Pete, you'll do more damage than good trying to pry those doors open," firemen said.

"Damage is damage. We've got to get him out," Mandas said.

THE ELEVATOR doors popped after fire officials switched the power on and off, resetting the opening system. Smiling Harbison was sitting on the elevator floor.

Harbison was cheered by the information that "we called your office. They'll pay you for the time."

"I'm about an hour behind schedule. That means overtime at $9 an hour. Maybe there's some profit in this after all," he said while completing his delivery — via the building stairs.

Dorothy Oliver

The call came in at 9:55 a.m.

By 10:10 I was sitting in the blood bank reception room at Lutheran General Hospital.

Fourteen units of B positive blood were needed for possible open heart surgery.

The man was in the hospital undergoing a heart catheterization — a diagnostic evaluation of his heart valves — to determine whether he would need surgery.

His doctor had ordered 14 units from the bank. They surveyed the units on hand, came up short and got on the phone to get donors.

I was one of the first donors called. When I donated blood for the first time last January, my name — like those of all other donors — went on file at the blood bank. To get the needed units, they pulled the files on B positive donors and asked them to come in.

THE PROCEDURE IS simple. I spent a total of 45 minutes away from the office and returned one pint lighter and feeling fine.

My blood, after extensive testing, will be set aside for the man's surgery — which is tentatively set for today.

While I was there I talked to the technician in the blood bank to see how supplies are holding out. Besides being low on B positive, they are also short on A positive and type O. A hospital spokesman attributed the shortage to the high volume of surgery the hospital has had recently.

"It's a little bit out of the ordinary for us," he said.

The Herald reported yesterday that Des Plaines may have to drop out of the North Suburban Blood Center program started by local hospitals to guarantee all residents free blood replacement.

RESIDENTS JUST DON'T seem to be doling out their blood these days despite an aggressive appeal by the Des Plaines Health Department to clubs, schools, churches and civic organizations.

The city must meet a yearly donation quota of 2,500 pints to remain a member and guarantee blood to all residents.

Right now Des Plaines is 100 units short of the first quarterly goal.

Kay Wall, blood donor director for the health department, told our reporter that none of the Des Plaines woman's organizations has signed up as a group to give blood.

I was very surprised. After working with woman's organizations for more than three years I've found most to be very community minded and ready to give their time and energy to Des Plaines. Maybe all they need is a reminder that their blood is also needed.

And this is not to exclude the men's organizations. Where are the Jaycees, the Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions, Moose, Elks, Masons, Knights of Columbus, VFW, American Legion? Your community service is appreciated and right now your blood is needed.

GIVING BLOOD right now — while many blood banks are suffering from a summer slump — could remedy two problems with one pint. Lutheran General and other area hospitals can build up their depleted blood supplies and the city could top its goal and remain in the Blood Center program.

The importance of giving blood was again brought home yesterday as I sat in the reclining chair sipping my "after donating" orange juice.

A man, suffering from heart disease, may live because of the B positive I and others were giving up.

He doesn't know us and we'll never meet him but he'll be walking around with a bit of our life in his veins.

It's a good feeling.

City seeks to avoid legal bill

Des Plaines bailing out of DAMP

Des Plaines aldermen — eyeing an anticipated legal bill — may toss cold water on its membership in the DAMP water commission.

The city council Monday ordered City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi to prepare legal documents withdrawing from the four-municipality water commission by June 18, the next council meeting.

Underlying the quick push for a withdrawal vote was a hint from Mayor Herbert Behrel that the commission will seek another contribution to finance legal expenses.

DAMP chairman Robert Teepe confirmed yesterday that the group will ask members for about $1,000 each. "I have the letter drafted. All I'm waiting for is a report from my treasurer on how much we need."

DES PLAINES, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Arlington Heights contributed about $1,500 each last fall to pay DAMP attorneys defending the commission's Lake Michigan water allocation. DAMP was a defendant in the Lake County lawsuit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District that ended when Judge Lloyd Van Dusen ordered the state to rehold hearings and reset the water allocations.

"We've simply run out of money," Teepe said. "With the order for more hearings, it looks like we'll need to bring in an expert witness to testify on our engineering study.

"Des Plaines did contribute $1,500. I would expect them to continue participation at this point," Teepe said.

DAMP was allocated 34.8 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan in July 1972. Officials have discussed construction by 1975 of a multi-million dollar pipeline to bring lake water to area suburbs.

Plans by the city to drop from DAMP "are nothing new," Teepe said. "They've been talking about it for a while.

"WE COULD proceed with the three other communities. We could merge with Tree Towns (Elmhurst, Villa Park and Lombard's water commission). We could get other members," he said.

"I'm still not sure if they can withdraw," said Teepe, indicating that the commission would not oppose the proposal. "DAMP was formed by the state legislature. It may take more than a city ordinance to pull out."

Even Behrel said Tuesday, at his weekly press conference, that the withdrawal ordinance will be "supposition. We don't know. But, we're going to find out."

DiLeonardi has told council members that "DAMP is like a partnership where members pay equal costs. What I fear is that as long as we're members, we'll have to pay even though we may not benefit."

Complicating the suburban effort is Des Plaines' contract for water with Chicago. DAMP will not complete pipeline construction until after the city renews its 10-year contract with Chicago, Teepe said. "They (Des Plaines) may not be able to use our water at all if they have another contract."

Oakton trustee seeks aid on taxes

A newly elected member of the board of trustees at Oakton Community College has enlisted the support of two legislators to make the college exempt from paying property taxes.

Trustee Thomas Flynn issued a prepared statement this week saying he has asked State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, and State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, to introduce legislation amending the Illinois Tax Code to make educational institutions in leased facilities exempt from paying property taxes.

Oakton has a 10-year lease on property and buildings on their temporary campus at 7900 N. Nagle Ave. in Morton Grove and now pays about $80,000 a year in property taxes. Flynn said tax savings to the district if the legislation is passed would amount to more than $500,000 by the time the lease expires in 1980.

FLYNN SAID Oakton is being discriminated against because other educational institutions that do not lease their facilities do not pay property taxes. "The discrimination is obvious when one considers that no other elementary, secondary or other community college district in Cook County pays local property taxes," he said.

Flynn said he made the request to Nimrod and Juckett during a legislative seminar held by Nimrod June 3. According to Flynn, Juckett promised to check the possibility of amending the tax code and Flynn said Nimrod promised to "do whatever he can."

In order to pass the amendment this session, two-thirds of the members of the house of representatives would have to vote to suspend their rules to introduce emergency legislation, said Flynn. He said the amendment may qualify as emergency legislation because tax bills are due July 1.

JUCKETT SAID he has been looking into the problem and has contacted the Illinois Junior College Board requesting information on junior colleges and the tax law. Juckett said he hopes to find a bill now pending before the Illinois house that can be amended to exempt Oakton from paying property taxes.

Flynn said the amendment would also benefit new junior college districts which will be formed next year by state law in areas of Illinois that are not now in a college district. These districts would probably have to rent facilities until they can build a permanent campus, he said.

One of these areas not in a college district consists of five high school districts on the North Shore. Oakton has been looking at permanent campus sites in Northfield Township hoping residents would annex to Oakton's district rather than form their own college.

Paul Gilson, chairman of the board of trustees at Oakton, said Tuesday he had not seen Flynn's statement. Gilson said Flynn is not acting on behalf of the board but hopes he is successful in getting the legislators to pass the amendment.

"I'M IN FAVOR of any way of releasing us as a public body from a tax burden," said Gilson. He said the college board has not taken an action on the amendment but has asked its attorney how the college can become exempt from paying property taxes. In the past, the college has paid its tax bills under protest, Gilson said.

Gilson said Flynn should have issued the statement through the college. "I disagree with any board member releasing a personal statement having to do with college problems," he said. The college "should only speak with one voice," but he added, "every person has a right to contact their legislator on anything."

Last year Flynn was a Democratic candidate for state senator and ran against Nimrod.

School board confident of referendum approval

the proposed remodeling plans.

IN A PREPARED statement, Stecker listed five specific objections to the remodeling plans:

—An addition is planned for Dempster Junior High School, although enrollment will decline with the opening of Friendship Junior High. He contends Dempster will have empty classrooms.

—Shop classrooms at Grove will be 17 per cent smaller than the same areas at Dempster.

— Grove will lose one classroom in the remodeling.

—No provisions have been made for special education classrooms at Grove, while Dempster will have 960 square feet for such classes.

—Grove is forced to have three children using lockers designed for two children; and no provisions for additional lockers are included in the plans.

BUILDING PRINCIPALS at Grove and Dempster junior high schools refuted Stecker's contentions.

Thomas Powers, Dempster principal, said the addition to the school will be used for office space and arts rooms. He said the projected enrollment for the school through 1977 is an estimated 1,048 students.

"At no time will there be any empty classrooms in the school," said Powers.

The enrollment projections were made by a citizens' committee that studied enrollment trends in the district last fall.

Al Stone, principal at Grove Junior High School, said the existing shop classrooms at the school are in better condition than those at Dempster. He said the proposed remodeling plans make maximum use of the shop areas within the limitations of the building's structure.

THE "LOST CLASSROOM" at Grove, according to Stone, is a small room used for remedial training. The area will be converted to a faculty room.

The remedial training "will be more than made up" in two seminar rooms planned for the school's learning center, according to Stone.

Special education at Grove operates in a different manner than at Dempster, said Stone. He said two special education teachers at the school do most of their work in the regular classrooms, assisting the regular teachers. When special education teachers at Grove need to work directly with students, they are only dealing with one to three students at a time and the work can be done in small office space.

Stone said some students are forced to share three to a locker, but said the enrollment is expected to decline at the school and within a year or two, students will be sharing two to a locker.

Since the schools were first opened, Grove has had four additions and Dempster has had five additions. School officials have said the additions have eliminated the development of any comprehensive educational programs.

Allen Sparks, school board president, has said the district does not have the funds to do all the remodeling that needs to be done. If the referendum fails to pass, he said the district may attempt another one before the summer of 1974.

Young gunman robs store of $125, flees on foot

A DesPlaines grocery store was robbed late Tuesday by a youthful gunman who stole $125 in cash, according to police.

Joseph Stinger, a clerk at the White Hen food store, 20 W. Golf Rd., told police the gunman entered shortly after 10 p.m. and pretended to shop until a few other customers in the store left.

Police said the man threatened Stinger with the gun, gave him a bag and demanded money. The bandit ordered Stinger into a back room of the store and fled on foot toward a nearby service station on Golf Road.

According to reports, Policeman Mike Lanmeau had spotted a man fitting the robber's description walking near the service station but had no knowledge of the holdup at the time. The robber was described as 21, six feet tall, 190 pounds and with long blond hair.

LT. LEE ALFANO said police were investigating a definite lead into the robbery but refused to give details.

The store had been robbed previously on May 4 by two knife-wielding youths who fled after netting $60 in cash. Stinger was again the victim.

A Mount Prospect man, Michael Thompson, was later charged in connection with the holdup after his arrest by Des Plaines police a few days later.

Thompson, 17, of 15 N. Audrey Ln., was released on $5,000 bond and is awaiting a June 14 court appearance in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Another youth, 16, taken into custody with Thompson in connection with the robbery, was turned over to Des Plaines juvenile authorities.

A third man arrested with the pair was charged with armed robbery by Arlington Heights police.

Irwin Siegel heads Jaycees

Irwin Siegel, 8974 Western, Des Plaines, is the new president of the Des Plaines Jaycees.

Last Saturday, the Jaycees held their annual installation banquet. Other officers installed were: Al Lapides, executive vice president; Stu Edinoff, internal vice president; Joel Weisbort, external vice president; Ralph Nickel, treasurer, and Bob Fabian, secretary.

Siegel, manager of UNAC, a local insurance agency, is challenging all young men ages 21-36 to join the Jaycees and work toward the betterment of Des Plaines.

In many communities business leaders encourage their young male employes to join the Jaycees to help gain leadership experience and become part of the community, Siegel said.

The new officers want the 1973-74 year for men of action who want to get things done for the community and themselves, he said.

Nurses Club presents

Elk Grove High School senior Cheryl Baumann has received the Elk Grove Village Registered Nurses Club's annual scholarship.

Miss Baumann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baumann, 566 Marshall, Des Plaines, will receive $300 for her education at the Michael Reese School of Nursing in Chicago. The scholarship is awarded each year to a nursing student from Elk Grove High School.

Elk Grove High concert set tonight

The Elk Grove High School music department will present its final concert of the year tonight at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The concert choir, girls glee club, boys chorus and girls chorus will each perform separately and as a finale they will combine with the school orchestra to perform the "Song of Democracy" by Howard Hanson. Guest choruses will be the Grove Junior High and Lively Junior High choruses who will also combine with the high school choruses to sing "This is a Great Country."

A special feature of the concert will be the presentation of the short comic opera, "The Telephone," by Gian Carlo Menotti. Singing the roles of Lucy and Ben are senior, Tina Vaccarello, and junior, Bill Smedley. Bev Jarosch will accompany them at the piano.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. Proceeds will go to the new girls glee club.

Teachers rap board attitude

teachers should not have a privileged position.

Claus said board members are elected officials and do not have the right to bring in other members, especially someone with a salary interest in board decisions.

When the request for representation was denied, Fred Swinnerton, MTA member said, the union suggested that a committee of teachers and board members be formed. The idea also was turned down.

Under the procedural agreement for negotiations, both board members and teachers can discuss things other than salary and fringe benefits, at a time and place agreeable to both parties.

The MTA is asking that the negotiating agreement be expanded to include class size, equitable evaluation of teachers, elimination of closed negotiations and grievance procedures.

Board members have refused to comment on the request, which was presented at last week's negotiating session.

"Teachers feel the voters ought to decide whether Maine North is to be completed by referendum vote," the fact sheet states. The MTA says that improvements at Maine North are being made through monies in the building fund, which is increased at the expense of the educational fund.

Teacher salaries come out of the educational fund, and Swinnerton said that if there were more money in the educational fund, teacher's salaries could be raised.

Specifically, the sheet says that the board has elected to pay for things such as utilities $700,000 per year, from the educational fund, when these could be legally paid through the building fund.

Harold Markworth, business manager for the district, says utilities have been paid out of the educational fund for the last 50 years.

Short said Maine North improvements are being made, but on the same basis as improvements have been made at the other three schools in the district.

He added that the board is trying to provide adequate facilities in which to operate. A referendum would be needed to complete Maine North, according to Markworth.

Mrs. Rizzo said Tuesday that the school board has not yet approved her request to appear June 25.

She called the board office Monday and was told that she would be called back.

School Supt. Richard Short said that his office tried to call her four times Tuesday and Wednesday, but could not reach her. Mrs. Rizzo, he said, should submit a written summary of what she wanted to talk about 10 days before the meeting.

$1.25 million for work on 2 schools

School board confident referendum will be OKd

by FRED GACA

Members of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board are confident that Saturday's $1.25 million bond issue referendum to remodel the two oldest junior high schools in the district will pass.

The 18 elementary schools in the district will be used as polling places and will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Remodeling would be done at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

If passed, the referendum would provide funds to replace heating and ventilating systems at both schools, relocate classrooms, improve learning centers and build small additions to each school.

TOTAL COST of the remodeling is divided, with $585,000 for Grove Junior High School and $665,000 for Dempster Junior High School.

According to school district figures, the tax rate increase for the referendum will be three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current bond and interest fund rate is 56 cents per $100. Next year's budget calls for the rate to drop to 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation without the referendum. If the referendum is passed, the rate will rise to 50 cents per $100 — still below the current rate.

No date has been set for work to begin if the referendum is passed. James Ervin, district superintendent, has said the architect would require several months to prepare the necessary drawings and award contracts.

The majority of the work is to be done during the summer when the schools are closed. Some work will take place during the normal school year, but the schools will remain open for regular classes. The school year work would have little or no disruption of classes, according to the architect.

THE MOST VOCAL objection to the referendum has come from Joseph Stecker, 1602 Willow Ln., Mount Prospect. He contends Grove Junior High School is "short-changed" in the proposed remodeling and says the overall plans call for unnecessary and expensive work.

Originally, Stecker said the referendum should be passed, but recommended that the school board should change the plans before beginning work.

He said yesterday he now would like the referendum defeated because no member of the school board has considered changing the plans. Stecker said the board should develop new plans and then submit them for a new referendum.

Stecker was vice chairman of a citizens' committee that studied the district's junior high schools more than two years ago. He was primarily responsible for the committee's recommendation that Grove and Dempster junior high schools be remodeled to bring them up to the standards of the district's other, newer junior high schools.

Stecker has said the district went beyond the committee's recommendation in the proposed remodeling plans.

IN A PREPARED statement, Stecker listed five specific objections to the remodeling plans:

—An addition is planned for Dempster Junior High School, although enrollment will decline with the opening of Friendship Junior High. He contends Dempster will have empty classrooms.

—Shop classrooms at Grove will be 17 per cent smaller than the same areas at Dempster.

— Grove will lose one classroom in the remodeling.

—No provisions have been made for special education classrooms at Grove, while Dempster will have 960 square feet for such classes.

—Grove is forced to have three children using lockers designed for two children; and no provisions for additional lockers are included in the plans.

BUILDING PRINCIPALS at Grove and Dempster junior high schools refuted Stecker's contentions.

Thomas Powers, Dempster principal, said the addition to the school will be used for office space and arts rooms. He said the projected enrollment for the school through 1977 is an estimated 1,048 students.

"At no time will there be any empty classrooms in the school," said Powers.

The enrollment projections were made by a citizens' committee that studied enrollment trends in the district last fall.

Al Stone, principal at Grove Junior High School, said the existing shop classrooms at the school are in better condition than those at Dempster. He said the proposed remodeling plans make maximum use of the shop areas within the limitations of the building's structure.

THE "LOST CLASSROOM" at Grove, according to Stone, is a small room used for remedial training. The area will be converted to a faculty room.

The remedial training "will be more than made up" in two seminar rooms planned for the school's learning center, according to Stone.

Village fire engine going to Nicaragua

by CAROL RHYNE

The original Elk Grove Village fire engine will be back into service soon, but this time in the earthquake-torn capital of Managua, Nicaragua.

The engine was bought for $100 last week by the village post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and later this month it may be airlifted to Latin America by the Air National Guard.

"We decided to send the engine because it will do a lot more good down there than being driven in a parade here," Howard Lundgren, junior past commander, said yesterday. "This is a show of friendship with the Nicaraguan government in a time when they have a lot of problems."

The old fire engine, number 113, nearly was exiled to the junkyard when the VFW bid $100 to buy it. The 500-gallon pumper, a 1952-model International fire engine, was purchased for $87 as surplus from the U.S. Air Force soon after the village volunteer department was formed in 1960.

Village Fire Chief Allen Huelett said the engine was obsolete for Elk Grove Village and hasn't been used in more than two years. He said the engine would have been scrapped if the VFW post had not offered to buy it.

MILWAUKEE FIRE Chief William Stamm has been coordinating efforts to help rebuild the Nicaraguan fire department since the disaster in December. Hulett said Stamm flew down to Nicaragua earlier this year and reported that Managua's central fire station was completely destroyed, including major fire-fighting apparatus.

Stamm reported the people were completely without fire protection for a while. However, Los Angeles and Canada have donated fire trucks since then.

Elk Grove Village became involved in the Nicaraguan tragedy when a representative of Partners of the Americas learned that the village had a fire engine for sale and contacted Hulett. (Partners of the Americas promotes good relations between the United States and Latin America.)

Hulett said Norma Benavides, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Partners,

Jaycees' 'Outstanding Young Educator

This gal is more 'big sister' than teacher

by FRED GACA

Therese Goodson seems more like a big sister than a teacher to her students at Rupley School in Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Goodson, picked as "Outstanding Young Educator" for elementary teachers by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees, teaches mentally handicapped children at Rupley.

The slender, 24-year-old Mrs. Goodson certainly looks like a "big sister," with her brown eyes and long brown hair. She has had a lot of practice being a big sister — she is the third oldest in a family of 15 children.

"I've been around kids all my life," she said. "Teaching class is like having a whole bunch of brothers and sisters."

SHE WAS selected Outstanding Young Educator from 27 elementary school teachers in the village. Richard Chierico, U.S. history and political science teacher at Elk Grove High School, was chosen as the outstanding young educator for high school teachers. Both will receive certificates of merit. The Jaycees will also donate $100 to their schools to be spent for whatever education program they request.

Mrs. Goodson, who lives in Des Plaines, has been with Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 for about 3½ years. The first year and a half she taught a learning disabilities class at Devonshire School in Des Plaines. Two years ago she came to Rupley to teach the mentally handicapped.

Working with mentally handicapped children is also a natural "big sister" role for Mrs. Goodson. One of her younger sisters is a Mongoloid child.

"She was born while I was in high school. I had no idea of special education and did some research while in high school," said Mrs. Goodson.

Her interest in mentally handicapped children led Mrs. Goodson to major in special education at Northern Illinois University, where she received her bachelor's degree in 1970. She is now finishing requirements for her master's degree in special education.

TEACHING MENTALLY handicapped children does have special problems other teachers would not encounter.

One of these problems, according to Mrs. Goodson, is the feelings mentally handicapped children have about themselves. "They are aware that they are different. They wonder why they are not in the same classroom as their brothers and sisters," she said.

Parents occasionally compound the problem by refusing to accept the fact that their children are mentally handicapped and require special teaching.

Mrs. Goodson also has problems finding teaching aids and other equipment for mentally handicapped children. Most

Palatine could profit from building stadium for hockey

by JULIA BAUER

A news analysis

When it was learned yesterday that Palatine officials are considering buying land and building a professional sports stadium on Northwest Highway, the big question was why.

Publicly-owned sports stadiums are springing up around the country, and they generally have one thing in common: they're successful.

And success to the government that runs such a stadium means a healthy income from ticket sales, concessions and rentals. Such income is far greater than the government would get from property taxes on a privately-run stadium built on the same property.

Walter and Jordan Kaiser, part owners of the Chicago Cougar professional hockey team, have been eyeing a 40-acre site just north of Arlington Park Race Track in Palatine for more than a year. Last month, the Kaisers approached Palatine village officials, asking them if they would be interested in purchasing the site already owned by the Kaisers, northeast of the Northwest Highway-Rte. 53 intersection.

The Kaisers have been planning to move the Cougars to a new stadium in the Northwest suburbs for months. The Palatine location, near an ice rink and tennis facility already owned by the Kaisers, is accessible from both the Rte. 53 freeway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station at Arlington Park Race Track, across the street from the site.

The proposed stadium would cost between $20 million and $25 million, with an 18,000-seat capacity. The Cougars now play in the International Amphitheater, where the lease expires in two years. It is expected to take almost two years to build the stadium.

All discussions so far have been behind closed doors. An initial meeting between Kaiser and Palatine board members resulted in Village Mgr. Berton Braun investigating ways that the village could finance the project. He and Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be looking into the legal, policy and local impacts of the village buying the land and possibly constructing the stadium itself.

"We'll make sure that it's mutually beneficial to both the Kaisers and the village," Village Pres. Wendell Jones said yesterday. Two more closed sessions are planned in the next 10 days. On June 14, village trustees will meet to rehash the discussion of last Tuesday, then on June 18, Jones and the rest of the board will talk again with the Kaisers. Between now and then, the village will "be doing its homework," Jones said.

Palatine has an impressive lineup of alternatives if it does plunge into the sports arena business. Three different sports centers in this county all house professional hockey teams, and each has a different way of running its arena.

City officials in Bloomington, Richfield, and Minneapolis, Minn., allied in the early 1950's to buy a large site in Bloomington and convert it into a baseball field and parking lot. That move was a successful effort to lure the Washington Senators to Minnesota. They're now the Minnesota Twins.

THEN SIX years ago, the three-town commission decided to get football and hockey into the act. Since the cities already owned enough land for the second structure, they allowed a private corporation to build the ice facility at the other end of the parking lot for the Minnesota North Stars.

For the corporation, the big drawback to building on public land was that it couldn't mortgage any of the land to finance the construction of the $6 million building, according to stadium controller Orrin Wichelmann.

The towns receive no rent from the building. But each month, Bloomington gets credited for a certain percentage of the income on events in the arena. When the village's "account" totals the corporation's cost of building the rink, the structure will become village property.

"We expect that it will take 22 to 24 years before we reach that amount," Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 undtr the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.

of the equipment she finds is either too expensive or too sophisticated for her class. She makes much of her own material, often adapting other ideas in a cheaper, simpler form for her students.

MRS. GOODSON'S class of 10 students is one of three mentally handicapped classes at the school. Her students are generally those who will require a special education program for their entire schooling. In the other classes, the children divide their education between special education programs and regular classes.

Her children, however, are not locked into a special education program. At least once a year, the district's special education teachers and counselors meet to discuss each child's program in school. If the child's work has improved and his ability seems high enough, the child will be shifted from the special education program.

A typical school day in Mrs. Goodson's class is similiar to any other classroom. She teaches reading, language arts and math, in addition, she stresses "social material" to help the children adapt to general society.

"I push a lot. I expect a lot from the kids," said Mrs. Goodson. "I've found the more I expect, the more they do."

Teaching a mentally handicapped class is never depressing to Mrs. Goodson. "Except for student teaching, I have never been in a regular class. I have always worked in special education. You forget the kids have been labeled."

directly with students, they are only dealing with one to three students at a time and the work can be done in small office space.

Stone said some students are forced to share three to a locker, but said the enrollment is expected to decline at the school and within a year or two, students will be sharing two to a locker.

Since the schools were first opened, Grove has had four additions and Dempster has had five additions. School officials have said the additions have eliminated the development of any comprehensive educational programs.

Allen Sparks, school board president, has said the district does not have the funds to do all the remodeling that needs to be done. If the referendum fails to pass, he said the district may attempt another one before the summer of 1974.

Families join township anti-flood suit

At least two and possible three families will join Elk Grove Township in a suit against the Cosmopolitan National Bank to relieve flooding problems on their property.

Township Euditor Bernard Lee said the suit is now in the name of the township and the township highway commissioner. If the three families, all in the Roppolo-Landmeier subdivision, join the suit there will be five co-plaintiffs.

Mrs. Ruth Horvath, 704 Roppolo Dr., said her family and the Albert Jones family, 701 Roppolo Dr., would definitely join the suit. She said the support of a third family that recently moved into the subdivision would be sought.

ACCORDING TO residents the subdivision, which is north of Landmeier Road between Busse and Higgins roads, landfill and other construction work in a field adjoining the subdivision has changed the natural flow of a drainage ditch. Whenever there is a storm, water is carried from Higgins Creek onto their property.

Mrs. Horvath said last summer's heavy rains caused more than $4,000 damage to their home and an additional $3,000 in personal property was ruined.

Mrs. Charlotte Jones has said several thousand dollars in damage was done to her home and property.

The lawsuit does not ask for any damage repayment. Lee said the suit only asks that conditions that have caused the flooding be repaired and no additional work be done in the field.

THE TOWNSHIP initiated the suit based on the contention that a township road has been damaged by the flooding.

Lee said the suit should be filed by the beginning of next week.

The bank is named in the suit as the holder of a secret land trust that has title to the open field. Before any work can be done to restore the natural flow of the drainage ditch, permission must be obtained from the owners of the land.

Repeated efforts by the subdivision residents and the township to contact the owners through the bank have failed. Lee has said the suit is one way to find out who the owners of the property are.

Village now operating recycling center here

Elk Grove Village is now operating the glass and paper recycling center located behind the village hall at 901 Wellington Ave.

The permanent recycling center was donated to the village by the Jaycees, Junior Woman's Club and the Elk Grove High School Ecology Club, which started the center a year ago.

In accepting the center on behalf of the village Tuesday, trustees said someone will be hired to supervise the operation of the center to insure that materials are disposed of properly in the glass and paper bins. The employe will be paid a salary, and profits from the center will go to the village.

The clubs have suggested that the proceeds from sale of the paper and glass could be used for beautification and ecology projects in the village.

Robert Franz, administration assistant to the village manager, said yesterday the staff was trying to come up with a "fair and equitable halary" for the recycling center operator, and he hoped someone could be hired as soon as possible. He said the village may use one of the local youth employment services to find someone to run the center.

CURRENTLY THE center is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. However, village Mgr. Charles Willis said the paper and glass bins could be open more hours later on.

In the past the recycling center was open 24 hours a day. However, this month the hours of operation were limited to six hours on Saturday because persons were not observing the rules for depositing materials.

Lee Rodriguez, Jaycee president, said recycling companies are refusing to take paper and glass that has not been properly separated, and supervision was needed to ensure the fonds would be acceptable.

Glass companies will not purchase glass for recycling that has debris in it because it is too expensive to remove the waste material.

So far, more than 450,000 pounds of glass and paper have been picked up at the Elk Grove Village center. As of March, profits above expenses were $1,435.

Township panel to advise on senior citizen problems

Elk Grove Township has appointed a six-member committee to advise the township board of auditors on senior citizen problems. The committee will recommend policies and programs to the board.

William Rohlwing, former township supervisor, will be committee chairman. Other members are Leo Joswick, 203 W. Evergreen Ave.; Inez Bodine, 802 Cathy Lane; Martin Hasz, 10 S. Elm St.; Alvin Oehlerking, 113 S. Elm St.; and Ira Holland, 1415 E. Central Rd. All are residents of Mount Prospect.

Township Auditor Wayne Holt was named as counselor to the committee.

The committee appointments were made at Monday's meeting of the township board of auditors. In other action at the meeting:

- Leah Cummins, 1009 Ridge, Elk Grove Village, was appointed to the township youth committee.
- A report on resurfacing Lincoln Street in Mount Prospect was presented by Alfred Stoll, township highway commissioner. The township will work with the Village of Mount Prospect on the resurfacing work. Parts of Lincoln Street are within the Mount Prospect municipal boundaries while other parts are in the township. The township's portion of the work is estimated to cost $43,000.

A public hearing and special board of auditors meeting will be at 8 p.m. June 28 at the town office, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, to amend the road-and-bridge budget to include the expenditure for the Lincoln Street work.

$452 total sales at police auction

Bicycles, sporting goods and some stereo equipment sold for a total of $452 at the Elk Grove Village police auction Saturday.

Merchandise for the sale consisted of unclaimed items recovered by the police department. The proceeds will help pay for bicycle license plates, which are free to residents.

Village fire engine going to Nicaragua

asked him to contact Chief Stamm to find out if Engine 113 could be used in Nicaragua.

"CHIEF STAMM said the fire engine would be good for Nicaragua, which is in desperate need for equipment. However, the village had already sold the engine to the VFW," Hulett said. He said he then asked the VFW if it would like to donate the fire truck to help the Nicaraguan people.

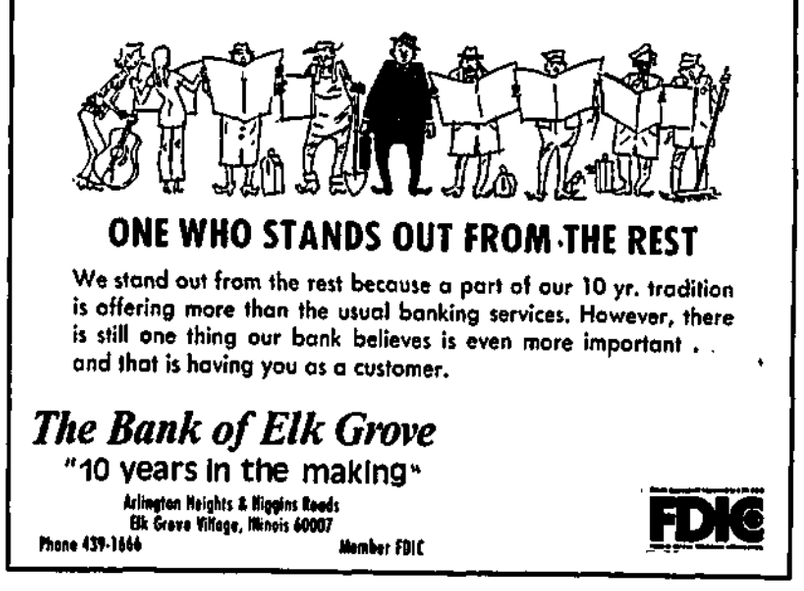

The VFW post voted this week to send the engine to Managua as a gift from the post. Marilyn Ginter, Ladies' Auxiliary president, said yesterday that the auxiliary may cosponsor donation of the engine.

Hulett said arrangements are being made for the Air National Guard to transport the engine to Managua at no cost. He said hopefully the trip can be made by the end of June.

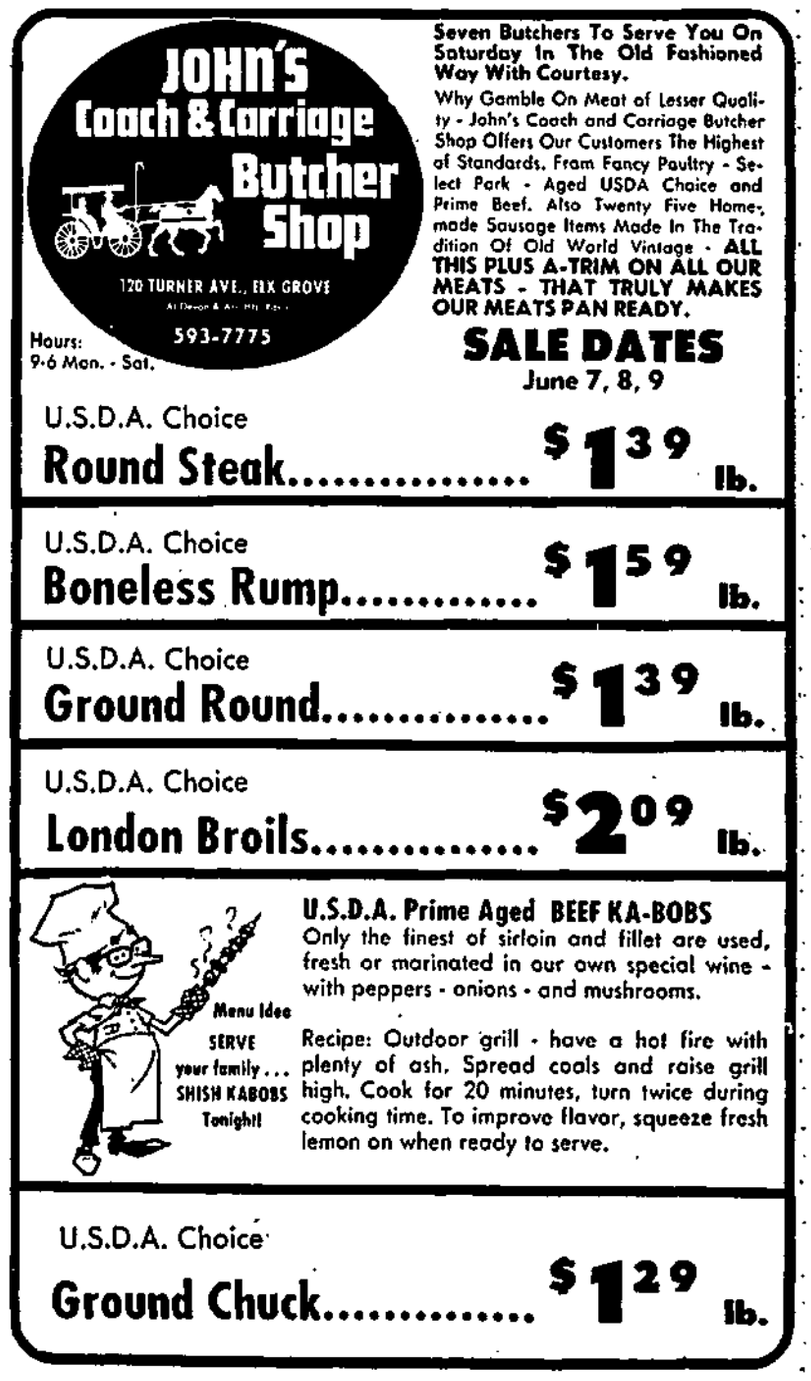

In the meantime the engine will be put back into top condition for its new job in Nicaragua, Hulett said.

200 housewives trade aprons for jeans, sneakers

by DIANE STEFANOS

Approximately 200 housewives vacationed from household chores Wednesday to learn how to pitch tents, build fires and identify birds in Palatine's Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Dressed in sneakers, straight-legged cotton pants, and tee shirts, the women participated in a leaders' training session for the suburban Campfire Girls Day Camp which will take place this month.

Training for leaders' positions in the area Campfire Girl District Camps of Kayati and Taticon, the women bumbled with ropes, steel spikes, tent canvases, and twigs in an attempt to master the outdoor arts.

IN THE OUTDOOR and an indoor session, experienced counselors and directors instruct on menu planning, crafts, the use of axes and knives, and the development of creative games and activities for Camp Fire Girls.

"We always get an enthusiastic crowd of women willing to train and help as day camp leaders. We have to have one adult leader to each four girls," said counselor Ann Jesse, 280 Old Mill Grove Rd. in Lake Zurich.

'I think kids react very favorably to the day camp. They have a chance to meet girls from other suburbs and renew their friendships each year. Being away from their families and in the outdoors for a week helps them develop a sense of independence and appreciation for the outdoors," said returning day camp leader Linda Noga, 2809 St. James St. Rolling Meadows.

"I am a Bluebird Camp Fire Girls leader. I thought it'd be fun to work in the day camp. My daughters will be participating and I know they are excited about it. I'm interested in learning how I'm going to keep 10 third graders occupied for a week," said leader-in-training Mae Genovese, 1144 E. Anderson Drive, Palatine.

Camp Fire Girls, a national organization for girls ages 7 to 18, was founded in 1910. Offering programs such as the day camp, it promotes creative maturity of girls into women and provides them with experience and advice, said Louise Lindholm also of Palatine.

The organization's four basic groups are the Bluebirds for grades 1-3, Camp Fire Girls for grades 4-6, Discovery Club for junior high school girls, and Horizon Club for high school girls.

"All of the members participate in the day camp with the older girls serving as aides to the leaders," said Mrs. Lindholm.

THE KAYATI Camp Fire Girl District, which includes participants from Palatine, Barrington, Rolling Meadows and Lake Zurich, will conduct a week long day camp beginning June 26. Approximately 200 Bluebird and Camp Fire girls will day and night camp in Deer Grove's adjoining Alphonce Camp Grounds.

The girls will construct items such as dolls from corn husks and acquaint themselves with Indian folklore in conjunction with the American Indian day camp theme.

The Taticon District, including Arlington Heights, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, will conduct the camp program only during the day in various groves June 15, 15, 18 and 19.

To carry out their theme of ecology, the girls will partake in debris cleanup competition and the construction of projects from recyclable materials such as orange juice containers and newspapers.

Girls in both districts will also participate in hikes, games, songs and meal preparations.

WOMEN TRAINING to be leaders for the area Camp Fire Girls Day Camp this month participated in various outdoor activities in Palatine's Deer Grove Forest Preserve Wednesday. From left, Joan Feierisel, Helene McPeake, Muriel Banach and Tommie Dude were among the women learning to pitch tents, build fires and plan outdoor meals.

Seek use of Edison right-of-way for sewer

Effort to cut flooding on Saratoga Drive may be gaining

Residents of Saratoga Drive in Palatine may face only one more soggy summer if the village can get the go-ahead to install storm sewers on a portion of the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way.

Persistent storm water backups on Saratoga Drive are expected to be reduced when the village puts in new sewers to relieve the current strain on the Rohlwing Road storm sewer. But the route of those new sewers depends on Edison's decision to allow the village to use 9 feet of its public utility right-of-way for digging the sewer line.

The solution to Saratoga Drive's flooding will cost at least $200,000. Depending on the decision from Edison, members of the Palatine Flooding Committee promised last night to start construction as soon as possible.

Their alternative, if Edison rejects the village's request, will be to dig up Carpenter Drive, at a much higher cost to the village.

Edison has already turned down the village's first request to use the property but another appeal is under consideration. Engineers with Edison and the village are studying the details of Palatine's plans.

"COMMONWEALTH Edison has set stringent requirements so that we don't interfer with their equipment. Those are relatively expensive, but not as expensive as going under the street," said Berton Braun, village manager.

Less than half of the width of the strip of land that would be needed for installing the sewer actually involves the public utility's land. Another 10 feet would come from the village's public easement, on the backyard edges of some 12 to 16 homes which border the right-of-way. The right-of-way strip runs from Clark Street to Rohlwing Road.

A decision from Edison could come some time in early August. Approval would pave the way for starting construction this fall with good weather.

A third possibility could give the village a wide enough strip of land without overlapping Edison's right-of-way.

One resident last night suggested the village ask each homeowner on the right-of-way whose back yards are involved, to give an additional five feet of their yards until the sewers are installed. After the work is done the village would have to restore the backyards and turn the borrowed five feet back to th homeowners.

Members of the flooding committee decided to wait for word from Edison before pursuing either of the other two alternatives.

SPURTS OF GOOD weather yesterday moved local youths to song as the sun shone and temperatures reached into the 70s. People who find the combination a rarity because of frequent rain during the past year are learning to make the most of sunny moments when they occur.

Peerless Paddle spanks the market

by JOANN VAN WYE

While stocks are plummeting nationwide, dividends in Peerless Paddle, Inc. have more than doubled their May level.

In a depressed market Peerless came out untouched by the lack of confidence during the Watergate affair and the rising price of gold and returned a profit of 40 cents on every 25-cent share of stock.

Despite early successes, the corporation has now been dissolved.

The stock never made it to the open market and was only available to preferential buyers at Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows where the corporation was based.

Peerless Paddle Inc. was the brainchild of Stuart Bond's fourth hour drafting class. The corporation was formed to introduce the 16 seventh grade students in the class to all facets of the business world on a small scale.

SKEPTICISM WAS the initial reaction to the corporation and many students and teachers weren't willing to plunge into an uncertain market even if it only meant a 25-cent investment. Finally after a little arm twisting by persuasive salesmen, 41 stock certificates were sold.

With a $10.25 working capital from the stock sales, the corporation was in business.

The students handled all facets of the corporation with only minimal consulting advice from Bond.

The product, a paddle, was the creation of the design department, composed of the class as a whole. Each student submitted a product design which could be manufactured rather quickly with little overhead and using only one basic material. The class then selected the product to be manufactured.

A peerless paddle is a small white pine paddle with Plum Grove '73 burned on one side and holes drilled on the other side to play Hi-Q and tic tac toe. The product was arrived at by combining two students' design ideas — one for a game paddle and one for a fraternity-like paddle with the school's name on it.

NEXT MATTER OF business was electing corporate officers and hiring an advertising department, sales department, manufacturing groups and a quality control man.

"We tried to incorporate any area of industry we could think of into the project," said Bond.

For most students the manufacturing of the product was their first exposure to the shop. There were 10 processes each paddle had to go through including cutting the paddle, preparing the wood, drilling holes and burning the school's name on one side.

Only one paddle had to be rejected, according to Jim Beligratis, quality control man.

The major problem encountered by the corporation was production, according to Kevin Maguire, corporation president. He said the class worked after school but demand still outweighed supply.

THE SUPPLY of 50 peerless paddles were quickly sold out at 75 cents each, a price arrived at by the students. The paddles cost about 35 cents each to manufacture — not figuring in labor costs. The major expenses were lumber, golf tees for use as pegs on the game side of the paddle, leather cord from which the paddles could be hung and other miscellaneous items like finish, sandpaper and plastic bags to package the product.

"They could have sold more (paddles) but it just took too long to make them," said Bond, who had allotted the class nearly three weeks for the project. "They really learned how much effort goes into manufacturing such a small product."

This was the first time such a project has been tried in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, but already Bond has received inquiries from other teachers in the district and is making plans on expanding the project next year.

Nightmare in an elevator: driver trapped 40 minutes

A United Parcel Service driver was trapped for 40 minutes yesterday in a downtown Des Plaines elevator.

Herbert Harbison, 23, of Evanston, was freed about 11:30 a.m. from the two-floor elevator at the Mandas Building, 770 Lee St. by Fire Prevention Bureau officials.

"Boy, am I glad that's over," said Harbison, a daily delivery man at the building. "From now on I'm going to walk the stairs. I won't take any chances."

Harbison was caught between floors about 10:50 a.m. when the elevator "started thumping ... boom, boom, boom. It just wouldn't go anywhere."

Employes in the building called police and fire officials when Harbison sounded the emergency alarm in the elevator.

AN EMERGENCY fire-police key was missing from its storage box near the elevator. Inspection of the building found no emergency exits from the elevator.

"It's a completely closed system," firemen told fire prevention bureau officials who arrived about 11:20 a.m. "There's no way in or out other than the door."

"You're not holding the 'stop' button?" one of the firemen asked the trapped driver.

"Jump around in there — maybe it will come unstuck," another suggested.

While firemen searched for the elevator power source, building owner Peter Mandas approached the closed doors with a hedge trimmer.

"Pete, you'll do more damage than good trying to pry those doors open," firemen said.

"Damage is damage. We've got to get him out," Mandas said.

THE ELEVATOR doors popped after fire officials switched the power on and off, resetting the opening system. Smiling Harbison was sitting on the elevator floor.

Harbison was cheered by the information that "we called your office. They'll pay you for the time."

"I'm about an hour behind schedule. That means overtime at $9 an hour. Maybe there's some profit in this after all," he said while completing his delivery — via the building stairs.

Assessment parley set

Owners of industrial property in the Palatine Township area will get a review of the county's new quadrennial assessment procedures tonight, when Palatine Township Assessor Bernard Pederson explains the process at the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd. Palatine.

The meeting is open to the public, and starts at 8 p.m. A lawsuit challenging the new assessment method is in the courts now, filed against all taxing bodies in Cook County.

Seek liquor license

Countryside Pharmacies, Inc., at 1212 W. Baldwin Rd., part of the Countryside apartment and shopping development in unincorporated Palatine Township, has applied for a license from Cook County to sell packaged liquor in the store.

The license would not allow sale of liquor by the drink. Arguments against the issuance of the license should be made within five days to George Dunne, county liquor commissioner.

Stadium could be profitable

Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 undtr the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.

Palatine could profit from new Cougar stadium

by JULIA BAUER
A news analysis

When it was learned yesterday that Palatine officials are considering buying land and building a professional sports stadium on Northwest Highway, the big question was why.

Publicly-owned sports stadiums are springing up around the country, and they generally have one thing in common: they're successful.

And success to the government that runs such a stadium means a healthy income from ticket sales, concessions and rentals. Such income is far greater than the government would get from property taxes on a privately-run stadium built on the same property.

Walter and Jordan Kaiser, part owners of the Chicago Cougar professional hockey team, have been eyeing a 40-acre site just north of Arlington Park Race Track in Palatine for more than a year. Last month, the Kaisers approached Palatine village officials, asking them if they would be interested in purchasing the site already owned by the Kaisers, northeast of the Northwest Highway-Rte. 53 intersection.

The Kaisers have been planning to move the Cougars to a new stadium in the Northwest suburbs for months. The Palatine location, near an ice rink and tennis facility already owned by the Kaisers, is accessible from both the Rte. 53 freeway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station at Arlington Park Race Track, across the street from the site.

The proposed stadium would cost between $20 million and $25 million, with an 18,000-seat capacity. The Cougars now play in the International Amphitheater, where the lease expires in two years. It is expected to take almost two years to build the stadium.

All discussions so far have been behind closed doors. An initial meeting between Kaiser and Palatine board members resulted in Village Mgr. Berton Braun investigating ways that the village could finance the project. He and Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be looking into the legal, policy and local impacts of the village buying the land and possibly constructing the stadium itself.

"We'll make sure that it's mutually beneficial to both the Kaisers and the village," Village Pres. Wendell Jones said yesterday. Two more closed sessions are planned in the next 10 days. On June 14, village trustees will meet to rehash the discussion of last Tuesday, then on June 18, Jones and the rest of the board will talk again with the Kaisers. Between now and then, the village will "be doing its homework," Jones said.

Palatine has an impressive lineup of alternatives if it does plunge into the sports arena business. Three different sports centers in this county all house professional hockey teams, and each has a different way of running its arena.

City officials in Bloomington, Richfield, and Minneapolis, Minn., allied in the early 1950's to buy a large site in Bloomington and convert it into a baseball field and parking lot. That move was a successful effort to lure the Washington Senators to Minnesota. They're now the Minnesota Twins.

THEN SIX years ago, the three-town commission decided to get football and hockey into the act. Since the cities already owned enough land for the second structure, they allowed a private corporation to build the ice facility at the other end of the parking lot for the Minnesota North Stars.

For the corporation, the big drawback to building on public land was that it couldn't mortgage any of the land to finance the construction of the $6 million building, according to stadium controller Orrin Wichelmann.

The towns receive no rent from the building. But each month, Bloomington gets credited for a certain percentage of GLASSBLOWER GILBERT ARMSTRONG works on the beginnings of a swan figurine in a demonstration at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. Small spun-glass items, like those shown below, and colored swans are among Armstrong's works, which may be purchased through Sunday.

Glass-blowing workshop on wheels

by TONI GINNETTI

Delicately spun glass figurines, red, green, blue and yellow curve-necked pyrex swans, and tiny hand-fashioned glass jewelry adorn the mobile workshop of Gilbert Armstrong.

They are the creations of the craft of glassblowing which Armstrong learned as a man in his homeland of England, and to which he turned four years ago when job security, as he puts it, "was getting a bit rough."

"It's a long story," Armstrong said of how he learned his craft as passers viewed his work now on display at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center. "I wasn't always a glassblower. I've been a gold miner and a career soldier. I used to work for Zenith in the Chicago area until about four years ago.

"I WAS ONLY DOING this part-time, then," he said nodding toward his trailer-workshop. "Things were getting a bit rough at that time, though, with the economy. Everyone was getting the ax and it was just a matter of time before my head was going to roll, too.

"I literally prepared this (glassblowing) for that," he smiled. "When the ax came, it was no problem."

Since then Armstrong, who lives in Itasca, has travelled the U.S. and England giving demonstrations to the public, creating elegant glass trinkets, and selling them. Though he has become a successful master of his craft "(I eat fairly well," he laughed), Armstrong admitted he is one of few entrepreneurs who has been able to make his art a lucrative business.

"IT IS OPPORTUNITY and luck," he said. "You look at this and when you realize what's involved, there's a great many that don't make it. You must have a variety of things. Glassblowing has always been popular but what fluctuates is the glassblower.

"Many dabble in it but most are not good enough to keep it going. We come to a period when there are no glassblowers. The public will always buy, but there are few glassblowers."

Though time is an important factor in learning his craft, Armstrong admits individual talents will determine the quality of work produced. "I've personally known glassblowers who have 30 years of experience and they're poor glassblowers," he said.

"There are standards of skill and there are so many different areas of glassblowing. There is spun glass, which is glass manipulation; decorative glassblowing; scientific glassblowing; neon bending (the bending of neon tubes); and glassblowing for the electronics and ceramics fields."

ARMSTRONG POINTED to his assistant, Roger Smalley, an English apprentice working with him, who will spend six weeks with the glassblower learning "the basics" of the craft. In that time Smalley will work primarily in glass teasing or spun glass, rather than pulling glass tubing into shapes, Armstrong said.

"The swan is the hardest to make," he said. "I could start teaching him swans and at the end of six weeks he would know no more than when he started. With spun glass, he is dabbling and he can keep dabbling if he makes a mistake. With a swan, you have to maintain a level of pressure. If you make a mistake, there is no way it can be fixed. If you're glassblowing and you make a mistake, you invariably have to throw it away."

Of all his figurines, from ashtrays made from 7-Up bottles (a novelty he introduced to the Midwest) to tiny religious crosses, Armstrong's most popular is the swan. "I may sell as many as 12,000 swans in a year," he said. The swans are filled with water to protect them, a quality which he recommends buyers look for when purchasing a glassblown item.

"IT'S HARD FOR the lay person to tell the quality of a piece except to compare them by sight," he added. "What the public should be aware of is who is this guy, where does he live, where can he be reached? If an individual won't give that information, don't buy from him."

"Somebody not familiar with glassblowing will make literally garbage and this is what hurts me," Armstrong said of his craft. "I don't mind people being in the business but it hurts me when they do bad work."

While he can sometimes repair broken glass items, Armstrong said badly-done work cannot always be repaired. "Unfortunately it is often a piece with a memory attached to it, but it was junk to begin with," he added.

Perhaps because his craft has become a rare art, Armstrong has been nicknamed "the Pied Piper of glass." "It's a nickname someone gave me," he smiled, "I guess I do attract people, but it's just something someone said." But as he spoke, people passing stopped to view his samplings and watch his work.

the income on events in the arena. When the village's "account" totals the corporation's cost of building the rink, the structure will become village property.

"We expect that it will take 22 to 24 years before we reach that amount," Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 undir the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.

STUDENTS WERE required to show their passports as they went through customs this week on a simulated trip to Germany set up at the Deer Grove Forest Preserve. The students are in Jarry Lindvall's German class at Plum Grove School in Rolling Meadows. A German lunch had been prepared for the outing but the group had to call the school for new food supplies when they returned to the picnic area and found their baskets of food had been stolen.

Algonquin Park Apartments balconies closed

Balconies at the Algonquin Park Apartments in Rolling Meadows have been ordered off limits to residents by the management of the complex.

The order was issued yesterday a week after an incident in which a 2-year-old boy fell through a second story balcony at Algonquin Park. The boy, Charles Glimes, was not injured in the 10-foot fall but the incident triggered complaints from residents who thought the balconies were not safe.

The ban was ordered by Kimball Hill, Inc., managers of the Algonquin Park complex, because of what spokesman Tracy Hill called "doubts that had been raised in the minds of some residents."

Hill said stories that appeared after the incident occurred last Thursday prompted the move as well. "We thought it would be better to have our structural engineer inspect all the balconies to tell us what repairs may or may not be needed. At this point, we don't know how long any repairs might take."

Notices sent to residents at Algonquin Park yesterday said in part the closing of the balconies was being ordered to "minimize any potential hazard" to residents.

OFFICIALS in the city building department have said the balconies at Algonquin Park are safe and that the balcony through which the Glimes boy fell had been repaired by the complex management. Building Officer Sverre Haug said Tuesday, however, that the department has only one building inspector and therefore only limited time to inspect the balcony structures.

"It's hard for us to inspect all the balconies," Haug said. "If they are treated properly, they would last longer, but there is nothing in the city codes to require that the wood be treated."

Building Inspector Don McDade had said the city hoped to coordinate a joint inspection of the balconies with the building, health, and fire departments.

The closing of the Algonquin Park balconies is the second such ban to be issued in the city at a major apartment complex. A ban on the balconies at the Three Fountains apartments is still in effect. It was ordered by the city last month after two balcony structures fell from a building there.

Delivery man trapped 40 minutes

Nightmare in an elevator

A United Parcel Service driver was trapped for 40 minutes yesterday in a downtown Des Plaines elevator.

Herbert Harbison, 23, of Evanston, was freed about 11:30 a.m. from the two-floor elevator at the Mandas Building, 770 Lee St. by Fire Prevention Bureau officials.

"Boy, am I glad that's over," said Harbison, a daily delivery man at the building. "From now on I'm going to walk the stairs. I won't take any chances."

Harbison was caught between floors about 10:50 a.m. when the elevator "started thumping ... boom, boom, boom. It just wouldn't go anywhere."

Employes in the building called police and fire officials when Harbison sounded the emergency alarm in the elevator.

AN EMERGENCY fire-police key was missing from its storage box near the elevator. Inspection of the building found no emergency exits from the elevator.

"It's a completely closed system," firemen told fire prevention bureau officials who arrived about 11:20 a.m. "There's no way in or out other than the door."

"You're not holding the 'stop' button?" one of the firemen asked the trapped driver.

"Jump around in there — maybe it will come unstuck," another suggested.

While firemen searched for the elevator power source, building owner Peter Mandas approached the closed doors with a hedge trimmer.

"Pete, you'll do more damage than good trying to pry those doors open," firemen said.

"Damage is damage. We've got to get him out," Mandas said.

THE ELEVATOR doors popped after fire officials switched the power on and off, resetting the opening system. Smiling Harbison was sitting on the elevator floor.

Harbison was cheered by the information that "we called your office. They'll pay you for the time."

"I'm about an hour behind schedule. That means overtime at $9 an hour. Maybe there's some profit in this after all," he said while completing his delivery — via the building stairs.

Be certain before you answer this...

Are Certs a candy mint, or are they a breath mint?

That question, so frequently asked on television commercials, was not part of the debate Monday when the High School Dist. 214 board agreed to buy 11,340 boxes of mints.

The purchase was part of a $35,799.07 contract for candy for the district's cafeterias. The district will also buy 893 cases of Twizzlers (licorice sticks), 206 boxes of Brach Mints, 144 boxes of Chuckles, 479 boxes of Reese Peanut Butter Cups, 107 boxes of Tootsie Rolls and various amounts of five other kinds of candy.

In stocking up the cafeterias for next year, the board also approved a contract for 4 million half-pints of white and chocolate milk, for $12,000 worth of bread and rolls and for $12,000 worth of ice cream.

The foods will be used in the district's eight schools.

Following the board action, board Pres. Gene Artemenko quipped, "When I see all that candy and chocolate milk, I can feel the pimples breaking out on my face."

Roselle Road signal lights due before Labor Day

Signal lights should be installed and functioning at Schaumburg and Roselle roads and at Wise and Roselle roads before Labor Day, according to Schaumburg Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

Zgonina said bids were opened for the two projects yesterday morning, with the apparent low bid received from Rock Road Construction Co. Contracts are to be awarded within two weeks, with construction to start within 30 days. Completion to be within 45 days from the contract date, said Zgonina.

The times would ensure completion of the light installation and widening parts of each intersection prior to the Sept. 3 holiday, he said.

ALTHOUGH THERE will be some inconvenience to motorists during the construction period, said Zgonina, neither intersection will be completely closed at any time while work is in progress. And traffic should move much more efficiently after the work is completed at the two busy intersections, which are now regulated only by stop signs.

At Schaumburg and Roselle roads, signal and street lights both are to be installed, and the south leg of Roselle Road is to be widened from the intersection to Quendel Avenue, to provide turning bays.

At Roselle and Wise roads, turning bays will be provided and the east leg of Wise Road will be widened to eliminate an offset in the intersection. Traffic signal lights and street lights also will be installed there.

Rock Road's bid was more than $14,000 below the engineering estimate, said Zgonina. The estimated cost of the work was $275,000, and Rock Road quoted a contract price of $260,875.40.

THE LOW LEVEL of the bid could save the village nearly $4,000, Zgonina said. The work is being done under a cooperative program with the village, county, state and federal governments each paying a share of the cost.

Using the engineers' estimate as the base figure, the village share had been computed at $57,729.75, said Zgonina. If the projects are completed with no change orders or cost overruns, the village portion will be closer to $53,000, he estimated. At the county's request, the village set aside a total of $70,000 to cover the cost and allow for unanticipated expenses.

Since the charge to each governmental unit was based on a percentage of the cost, the county, state and federal shares also could be somewhat lower than anticipated in the engineering estimate. They had been projected at $44,694 for the county, $34,141.25 for the state and $138,435 for the federal government. In addition, the county and state split the cost of engineering for the projects, paying $13,750 each.

Ex-bank president enters guilty plea

One of two men indicted last year on federal charges involving the Schaumburg State Bank pleaded guilty yesterday.

Erwin D. Oosting, former president of the Bank of Clarendon Hills, pleaded guilty to conspiring to alter bank records and deceive bank examiners. He was indicted along with Ward Weaver, president of the Schaumburg State Bank.

Oosting is scheduled to be sentenced by Federal District Court Judge Thomas McMillen July 9. Oosting pleaded guilty to only one count of a six-count indictment. The government has dropped the other charges.

Weaver and Oosting were accused of altering bank records to cover up more than $600,000 in loans made to auto leasing companies.

Weaver has pleaded not guilty to the charges, he is scheduled to go to trial late in July.

If parks decide to do without tax warrants

Cuts seen in recreation services

Hoffman Estates residents may see a cutback in recreation services if the park district decides to do without anticipation warrants this year.

The question of paying off the district's $80,000 in warrants was broached Tuesday by the Hoffman Estates Park District Board of Commissioners. If the warrants were eliminated the district might have to cut programs and services by more than 25 per cent, according to park officials.

Park Comr. Tom Barber said he wants a complete review of the district's need for tax warrants before any plans are made to buy new warrants.

Tax warrants are used by government agencies to finance services during periods when tax money has not been received. The park district has $80,000 in tax warrants.

By law, the warrants are repaid each year when the agency receives its tax money. Usually the agency must sell new warrants to provide operating capital until more taxes are received.

The park district is planning to purchase $70,000 in warrants for the coming year, but Barber has objected.

"I am not sure that we need that much; every year we get more tax money, yet we still buy warrants," Barber said.

Other commissioners expressed doubt as to whether the district could get itself out of warrants in one year without drastically cutting services.

"It would be nice to do without warrants, but I do not think we can do it at once," said George Seaver.

Park district director Al Binder has proposed a plan to reduce the district's use of warrants over the next five years. This year, for example, the district has reduced the amount of warrants it will sell by $10,000, Binder said. In the next five years the district will not have any warrants, he added.

Barber said the district should use warrants only if they are needed. When the district first issued warrants three years ago, it was because there was a severe lack of funds, he added.

"WE DID NOT have the money to pay next week's salaries then, but we are not in the same situation now," he explained.

Binder said that if the district made an effort to eliminate warrants all at once, some services might have to be cut. He said with the gradual reduction of warrants, a well rounded program could still be offered.

"I did not recommend that we cut out warrants right away, but I do think that we should study the matter before making any decision," Barber said.

He added that the evaluation should be made in the next 30 days, before there is no time left if warrants are needed.

The board's finance committee reviewed all park district expenditures during the last three months, but Barber said he wants to go over those figures again.

"IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY of the board to spend the taxpayers' money as wisely as possible and that is what I want to see done," he said.

The board will take up the issue again at its June 19 meeting.

3-screen theater for Woodfield Plaza?

A three-screen movie theater will be built at Woodfield Plaza, just west of Woodfield Mall, if the Village of Schaumburg grants the necessary parking approval said Richard Batchen, spokesman for J. Emil Anderson and Sons, developers.

The facility will seat 1,768 people, he added.

General Cinema Corp. has approached Anderson with the idea of operating the three-screen movie house, Batchen said Tuesday at a Schaumburg Plan Commission meeting. In addition to the theater, Woodfield Plaza will contain two eight-story office buildings and the drive-in facility of Woodfield Bank.

The drive-in bank may open next week, Batchen said. Bad weather and the construction strike held up its opening, he added.

The development firm asked the plan commission for approval of parking for the office buildings and the theater. The village requires one parking space for every four theater seats, a total of 442 spaces.

HOWEVER, THE plan provided only 263 spaces, because Batchen said the theater would not open until after office hours. The commission asked the developer to also increase the number of spaces allotted for the office buildings to 4 spaces per 1,000 square feet of rentable area.

Approximately 3.48 spaces are presently provided on the plans for 1,000 square feet of rentable area. Batchen said the firm operates their Touhy Office Plaza with the lower number of parking spaces and experiences no problems.

However, the commission held to its requirements and deferred approval for two weeks, until June 9, to allow time for the developer to revise the parking layout.

BATCHEN SAID his firm would like to break ground for the two office buildings at the first sign of good weather. He asked for permission to begin foundations with the condition parking plans would later meet the village's specifications.

The commission refused, but said Batchen could ask the village board Tuesday to consider the request.

The office buildings will together contain approximately 130,000 square feet of rentable space. The plans commission asked for 520 parking spaces to be included in the revised plans.

The village last year granted permission to Anderson to build 15-story office buildings. However Batchen said the firm decided against the higher structures.

Pool pass purchase deadline extended

The Hoffman Estates Park District has extended to Saturday its deadline for purchasing summer swimming pool passes at discount rates.

The district's swimming facility, the Lions Pool on the Grand Canyon Parkway, will open Saturday.

Park district director Al Binder said the deadline for passes is being extended so that as many persons as possible can take advantage of the lower rates.

The passes, priced at $20 for families and $10 for individuals, can be obtained at the district offices, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The offices will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on week days and 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Photos for the pool passes can be taken from 3 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. each weekday.

After Saturday pool pass prices will increase. Family passes will be sold for $30 and individual passes will be $15.

More information about the park district's summer swimming program may be obtained by calling 885-7500.

Hoffman Estates man charged in holdup

Police arrested a Hoffman Estates man late Monday night and charged him with the holdup in April of a Union Oil Co. gas station in Schaumburg Township.

Sam A. Bell, 21, of 117 Morgan St., was charged with armed robbery. Police from Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and the Cook County Sheriff's office made the arrest on warrants naming Bell in the April 4, robbery. More than $300 in cash was taken at gunpoint in that incident.

Police also arrested three youths who were in the house Monday night. A 17-year-old Schaumburg girl, Karen A. Fette, 219 Acorn Ct., has been charged with possession of marijuana. A second girl and a male juvenile from Mount Prospect were not charged.

Police confiscated stolen property, which included street signs and drugs at the time of the arrest. Bell is being held on $30,000 bond. No court date has been set.

Stadium for Cougars could be profitable deal

by JULIA BAUER
A news analysis

When it was learned yesterday that Palatine officials are considering buying land and building a professional sports stadium on Northwest Highway, the big question was why.

Publicly-owned sports stadiums are springing up around the country, and they generally have one thing in common: they're successful.

And success to the government that runs such a stadium means a healthy income from ticket sales, concessions and rentals. Such income is far greater than the government would get from property taxes on a privately-run stadium built on the same property.

Walter and Jordan Kaiser, part owners of the Chicago Cougar professional hockey team, have been eyeing a 40-acre site just north of Arlington Park Race Track in Palatine for more than a year. Last month, the Kaisers approached Palatine village officials, asking them if they would be interested in purchasing the site already owned by the Kaisers, northeast of the Northwest Highway-Rte. 53 intersection.

The Kaisers have been planning to move the Cougars to a new stadium in the Northwest suburbs for months. The Palatine location, near an ice rink and tennis facility already owned by the Kaisers, is accessible from both the Rte. 53 freeway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station at Arlington Park Race Track, across the street from the site.

The proposed stadium would cost between $20 million and $25 million, with an 18,000-seat capacity. The Cougars now play in the International Amphitheater, where the lease expires in two years. It is expected to take almost two years to build the stadium.

All discussions so far have been behind closed doors. An initial meeting between Kaiser and Palatine board members resulted in Village Mgr. Berton Braun investigating ways that the village could finance the project. He and Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be looking into the legal, policy and local impacts of the village buying the land and possibly constructing the stadium itself.

"We'll make sure that it's mutually beneficial to both the Kaisers and the village," Village Pres. Wendell Jones said yesterday. Two more closed sessions are planned in the next 10 days. On June 14, village trustees will meet to rehash the discussion of last Tuesday, then on June 18, Jones and the rest of the board will talk again with the Kaisers. Between now and then, the village will "be doing its homework," Jones said.

Palatine has an impressive lineup of alternatives if it does plunge into the sports arena business. Three different sports centers in this county all house professional hockey teams, and each has a different way of running its arena.

City officials in Bloomington, Richfield, and Minneapolis, Minn., allied in the early 1950's to buy a large site in Bloomington and convert it into a baseball field and parking lot. That move was a successful effort to lure the Washington Senators to Minnesota. They're now the Minnesota Twins.

THEN SIX years ago, the three-town commission decided to get football and hockey into the act. Since the cities already owned enough land for the second structure, they allowed a private corporation to build the ice facility at the other end of the parking lot for the Minnesota North Stars.

For the corporation, the big drawback to building on public land was that it couldn't mortgage any of the land to finance the construction of the $6 million building, according to stadium controller Orrin Wichelmann.

The towns receive no rent from the building. But each month, Bloomington gets credited for a certain percentage of the income on events in the arena. When the village's "account" totals the corporation's cost of building the rink, the structure will become village property.

"We expect that it will take 22 to 24 years before we reach that amount," Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 undtr the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.

John Whiteford, 508 Newcastle Ln., Hoffman Estates, has been initiated into a Phi Eta Sigma honor society at the University of Iowa, Iowa City. The society honors freshman students who obtained at least a 3.5 grade point average for one semester.

Retention lakes 'too polluted' to fish

State conservation officials have concluded that the retention lakes in Hoffman Estates are too polluted to support game fish.

A survey of the lakes, which are maintained by the Hoffman Estates Park District, showed they lack sufficient depth and are plagued by erosion and pollution problems.

The survey was conducted at the request of the district and several area residents.

Harry Wright, a conservation department biologist, said these factors make it impossible to manage a game fish population. The district had hoped the state would begin a regular stocking program, but the report will probably eliminate that possibility.

"Based on my inspection of the water areas, I would disapprove any stocking from the state fish hatcheries," Wright said.

The survey of the Twin Lakes, High Point, Highland and Pinger Lakes in Hoffman Estates showed that while a small quanty of game fish, such as large mouth bass and bluegills, were found in the lake, carp dominated all the lakes.

The depth of the lakes was also described as being insufficient to support fish year around. The state recommended that the best use of the lakes might be carp and sunfish fishing by youngsters.

Park officials agreed to study the situation before making any final recommendations on the lakes.

Airport Boosters outline 6-point statement of goals

Schaumburg Airport Boosters adopted a six-point statement of purpose and a short-range plan of action Tuesday.

The organization, composed of pilot-owners of aircraft based at Schaumburg Airport, will:

- Work as a group to insure a general aviation airport is maintained in the community;
- Promote the highest standards of safety possible for pilots using the airport;
- Work to insure that airspace surrounding the airport is not encroached upon and remains available;
- Obtain and maintain an IFR (instrument flight rules) approach to the airport for safety and utility purposes;
- Create a better understanding of private flying and general aviation by the general public and local elected officials;
- Act as an advisory group to Schaumburg Airport management.

ACCORDING to Boosters president Jules Swerdlo, immediate plans call for prompt undertaking of an airport feasibility study approved by the Village of Schaumburg last month.

"Boosters plan to follow that study to see that all pertinent facts are included," he said.

The study is being undertaken as phase one of master planning for a regional transportation center proposed for a site adjacent to the existing privately owned airport. It will also investigate the need for a municipal acquisition of the airport and examine other appropriate sites in or near the village.

Boosters will also work to acquire the IFR approach, write a set of safety rules for the airport and make provisions for enforcement.

FINALLY, the group plans to become politically active "so that private flying and general aviation receive the most favorable legislation" both on a national and state level.

Booster membership is open to pilots and aircraft owners as well as those interested in promoting general aviation.

The group meets the first Tuesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the main hangar at Schaumburg Airport, West Irving Park Road.

For further information contact Swerdlo at 882-3314.

Airport Boosters offering rides to blood donors

Schaumburg Airport Boosters came up with a bloody good idea this week.

They will give complimentary airplane rides to persons presenting proof of a recent blood donation to any receiving agency.

"The Boosters care less if someone gave blood in Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Keokuk, Iowa or points east or west," said Jules Swerdlo, president.

He said critical blood shortages in the Chicago area prompted the group decision to offer free rides as an incentive to increasing donations.

Rides will be furnished by members of the Boosters, an association of owners of aircraft based at Schaumburg Airport.

Confirmation of a recent donation from a receiving agency or blood bank is the only qualification for a Boosters air trip, Swerdlo emphasized.

"The Boosters are interested in the health and welfare of the total community," he explained.

For scheduling arrangements or further information contact Swerdlo at 882-3314.

Teichert raps harassment by citizens' group

by TOM VON MALDER

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert has lashed out at a citizens committee he says is harassing village government.

Teichert this week publicly accused the newly formed citizens group of being a politically motivated effort to harass the village board.

The group, now called the "Undevelopment Commission" was formed by about two dozen residents from all sections of the village at a meeting May 22. Among the announced group goals are attendance at all public village meetings and reporting of those meetings to the whole group and group members' neighbors.

"While I share with each of you the desire for increased citizen attendance at the various village meetings," Teichert said, reading from a prepared statement at Tuesday night's village board meeting, "I am not personally convinced that this particular group is motivated through simple civic commitment.

"Coming at this particular time and with specific individuals involved, I consider it an extension of the past campaign and the establishment of a political base for future elections."

Several members of the Undevelopment Commission denied all the charges contained in Teichert's statement. The nonpartisan nature of the group was stressed.

TEICHERT SAID he had considered limiting the time given to residents for speaking at village board meetings if the privilege continued to be abused. He said residents, some of whom later became members of the new citizens group, spent 90 minutes discussing the Colony Project, Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, at the May 15 village board meeting, despite the project's prior approval by the board.

He said he had been criticized by others for allowing the discussion to proceed for that long on a nonagenda item. He said he would not now limit speaking time because the group would "welcome stringent procedures so that they can protest suppression, loss of rights, closed meetings."

Frank Cimino, 115 S. Hi-Lusi Ave., member of the citizens group, yesterday said the group was formed to combat the large number of apartment developments that have been approved by the village board and continue to be approved, many with variations from the village zoning codes.

Michael H. Minton, 1207 W. Lonnquist Blvd., group member, said he felt Teichert's statements were directed toward him. Teichert defeated Minton in the bitter spring mayoral election.

"The group is primarily concerned with civic commitment and improvement," Minton said yesterday. "Although certain individuals such as myself have been politically active in the recent election, there is not a political purpose underlying the formation of this group."

He said the group had yet to speak out on an issue as a group, although members of the group have objected to current high-rise elderly housing plans.

WARREN W. AREND, 1101 Linden Ln., group member, said the purpose behind the group is to aid village development. "We do not want people to be embarrassed to join us," he said, adding that members include persons who were active on both sides during the election campaign.

After Teichert's prepared statement, he then attacked the petitions against the Colony project. He said he personally contacted several persons who had signed the petition and found that many had not seen the covering preamble that was submitted with them.

That preamble read in part, "the action of the mayor and the village board

THE PROSPECT HEIGHTS Park District swimming pool gets a new coat of paint for the summer swim season that begins June 16 at 1 p.m. The pool, at Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street, will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week. Swimming lessons start June 25.

Decision seen on housing for senior citizens

A decision on a proposed 16-story senior citizen apartment building for downtown Mount Prospect is expected tonight from the zoning board of appeals.

Opponents and supporters of the project have worked hard for the last two weeks to line up support for their respective viewpoints. A full house is expected when the hearing begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

The project developers, Kenroy, Inc. of Skokie, ran a full-page ad in Tuesday's Herald asking senior citizens to come to the appeals board hearing tonight in support of the project. The ad also invited those aged 60 and over to send in a coupon, placing them on a proposed tenant waiting list.

A NEWLY FORMED citizen group, now called "Undevelopment Commission" and described by some members as a watchdog committee, did gather 600 signatures on a petition against the project. These petitions were presented to the appeals board at the last hearing, May 24.

Warren W. Arend, 1101 Linden Ln., member of the citizen's group, yesterday said he and others have been urging opponents of the project to attend the hearing also. "We felt the petitions (may be considered) meaningless," he said.

The proposed site — the abandoned Central School building and land at the southeast corner of Main Street and Central Road — is owned by a secret land trust. The project plans call for 400 units and recreational facilities. The project would have Illinois Development Housing Authority funding, resulting in rents of between $145 and $200 a month.

The decision by the appeals board would be a recommendation only to the village board, which has the final power in zoning matters. The village itself is about to begin negotiations to purchase the same property for use as a municipal center or library.

River Trails seeks superintendent

A consultant from the Illinois Association of School Boards IASB has been hired by River Trails Dist. 26 to aid in the search for a new school superintendent.

Supt. Thomas Warden submitted his resignation to the Dist. 26 board last week. At the time, he gave no reason for his resignation. However, since the board agreed to pay Warden a bonus of $14,000 in addition to the remainder of his salary for the school year, the board, in effect, bought out his contract.

According to Board Pres. Lloyd Demel, the IASB consultant has been hired at a sum not to exceed $950. For this, the consultant will be expected to provide a brochure describing the district and a description of the type of person the district would like as superintendent.

He will also be responsible for advertising the superintendent's poistion. According to Demel, the district plans to recruit candidates from within and outside the district.

ONCE APPLICATIONS are received, the IASB will do the initial screening of candidates. When the number is narrowed down to about 5 to 10 candidates, the names will be submitted to the board for consideration.

Demel said the board has set no date yet when it thinks the recruitment process will be completed. "We're moving ahead post-hast. We hope to get far along on this at an early date," Demel said.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the board read its agreement with former Fechanville Prin. Arthur Adelberg. Adelberg was granted a 2½-year leave of absence by the board last week. He also refused to give any reason for the leave, although his lawyer stated that the reason was because of a "personal conflict" between Adelberg and other people in the district.

According to the statement read by Demel, Adelberg's leave will extend to Dec. 31, 1975. At that time, if Adelberg has not found another job, he will be hired back by the district in whatever capacity the board sees fit, for a period of three months at a salary of $5,400. He will also be entitled to Teacher's Retirement Fund benefits if he pays into the fund for the 2½ years he is on leave.

The board has refused to reveal the reason for Adelberg's request for leave of absence. The members have also refused to reveal why they must rehire him for three months after the leave is up.

Planners probe incorporation effects

What services would Prospect Heights provide its residents if it becomes incorporated, and how would the new city pay for those services?

This was the main concern expressed last night at a Mount Prospect Planning Commission public hearing on the proposed incorporation of Prospect Heights. The commission has been asked to make a recommendation to the Mount Prospect Village Board on whether Mount Prospect should give its consent to the incorporation.

While the primary reason behind the hearings was to give Mount Prospect residents a chance to voice their opinions, planning commission members asked most of the questions. Only three residents had any questions on the issue.

The case for incorporation was presented by officials of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), which for two years has been trying to incorporate the area of about 13,000 residents. The PHIA's attempts have been stymied by objections from Wheeling and Arlington Heights. Mount Prospect so far has remained silent on the issue.

THE PHIA IS NOW trying to get consent from all three municipalities so that incorporation efforts can proceed. Court efforts to eliminate the need for consent are at a standstill, and bills that would do the same are still pending in the Illinois General Assembly.

Marie Caylor, plan commission member, asked what services the new city would provide, and how it would provide police protection. Currently, Prospect Heights is served by the Cook County Sheriff's Police, which protects all unincorporated areas in the county.

"We would have to have a reasonable amount of time to establish our own police protection," said Jack Gilligan, county police protection would not stop the minute Prospect Heights was incorporated.

"We have all the services we want, through districts already established — sanitary, fire protection, library and parks. All we would need is a public works department and police department," Gilligan said.

GILLIGAN SAID he hoped that the area, if incorporated, could contract with Wheeling Township to provide road maintenance. Currently, the township provides that service to Prospect Heights because it is unincorporated.

James Grier, commission member, asked what the PHIA intended to do about flooding in their area and if they had any plans for installing storm sewers. "The area being considered for incorporation is in a good section of a flood plain that affects Mount Prospect," Grier said.

Grier also said, "I have a personal concern on how you can cut the mustard for village improvements that are necessary."

Gilligan said the flooding would be one of the main concerns of the new city's officials. He said he didn't think residents wanted improvements such as street lights, curbs or sidewalks.

Grier also asked the PHIA to provide some details on what policies would be taken on the use of vacant land in the area. "We want to keep the area basically residential or commercial. We don't like multi-family housing," Grier said.

School district names new principal

A college assistant professor of education has been appointed principal of Mount Prospect Dist. 57.

Donald R. Driver, 43, was appointed by the school board this week.

An assistant professor of education at Chicago State University, Driver was recommended for the principal's post by Supt. Richard Percy and the incoming superintendent, Earl Sutter.

Besides his seven-year term at Chicago State, Driver served from 1963 to 1966 as the principal of Goodrich Elementary School in Woodridge. Prior to that, he was an elementary school teacher in San Leandro, Calif., and Berwyn, Ill.

Driver has a Ph.D. in education from Northwestern University. He attended Goshen College (Ind.) at the same time Sutter was in school there.

Driver said he decided to leave the university because "I had a very rewarding experience as an elementary principal before and I wasn't getting that kind of feedback where I was." He said there were also other factors involved in his decision to leave that he didn't care to comment on.

PERCY AND Sutter have not decided yet what school Driver will be assigned to. At the moment, the only vacancy is at Sunset Park School. Sunset Park's principal, Roger Pedersen, resigned recently.

In other business this week, the board approved an increase in the district's special education staff.

The three new staff members who have been approved include persons certified in speech correction, learning disabilities and a school nurse. The additional personnel are needed to begin a program of instruction for 3 and 4-year-olds with learning disabilities.

The state has passed legislation requiring school districts to begin such programs by September. According to Asst. Supt. Dwight Hall, part of the salaries for the new personnel may be reimbursed by the state if those persons hired meet professional specifications.

The board also approved an increase of a part-time teacher at Gregory School next year for kindergarten. The reason for the increase in staff is the unanticipated enrollment of 43 youngsters at Gregory School kindergarten next year. Hall said the administration had anticipated only about 30 or so youngsters next year according to tht preschool census.

School building converted to civic center

Officials see transformation of old building

by TOM VON MALDER

Mount Prospect officials learned Saturday that it is possible to convert an old school building into a civic center.

Twenty-three officials visited the Glen Ellyn Civic Center, a former three-story junior high school, to see what could be done with a school building. Members of the village board, public library board, village commissions and village department heads attended.

The trip was arranged by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley because the village board is currently considering the purchase of vacant Central School here for expansion purposes.

After the tour, Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he considered the purchase of Central School "a must" for the village. "I hope we have all seen enough to whet our appetite," he said. "We have to get ahold of the Central School site."

Central School, Main Street and Central Road, was sold by School Dist. 57 in 1969 for $410,111 to a private land trust. The school has an estimated 44,600 square feet of space in two floors, with a raised basement.

IN GLEN ELLYN, the village had 33,000 square feet of space. A 7,000-square-foot section was added. The building and land cost $362,000, and remodeling cost was $856,537.41. Furnishings cost another $166,075.78.

The total Glen Ellyn cost of $1,384,649.19, spent through 1972, is in excess of the $700,000 estimated by Mount Prospect Village Trustee Donald B. Furst for Central School.

Furst, who had the village board set aside $110,000 as a capital improvement fund this year, said he believes remodeling could be done for $200,000 after a $500,000 purchase of the site. This was before he saw the Glen Ellyn project, however.

The Glen Ellyn facility is divided into 8,300 square feet for police, 6,300 square feet for administrative offices, 15,000 square feet for public use and the remainder for storage and corridors.

Two rooms in Glen Ellyn have been set aside for senior citizen use and several of the old classrooms are available to any civic group for use. The gymnasium was left as a gymnasium and is also used as a theater.

THE GLEN ELLYN Village Board passed a 5 per cent utility tax for three years to help pay for the project, and also utilized the village's share of state income tax rebates. However, actual revenue was greater than anticipated and the sales tax was revoked after only two years. Glen Ellyn has a population of 22,500.

Emphasizing the need for a building, Teichert said perhaps the board and commission members should look at the municipal facilities in Wheeling, Elk Grove Village and Hoffman Estates. He said all three are smaller communities than Mount Prospect, yet all have new municipal facilities.

"It's nice to say to people we don't have a garbage levy, we have a low tax rate and no sales tax," he said. But, he added, "we don't have the proper facilities to serve them either."

Board confident of referendum OK

by FRED GACA

Members of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board are confident that Saturday's $1.25 million bond issue referendum to remodel the two oldest junior high schools in the district will pass.

The 16 elementary schools in the district will be used as polling places and will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Remodeling would be done at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

If passed, the referendum would provide funds to replace heating and ventilating systems at both schools, relocate classrooms, improve learning centers and build small additions to each school.

TOTAL COST of the remodeling is divided, with $585,000 for Grove Junior High School and $665,000 for Dempster Junior High School.

According to school district figures, the tax rate increase for the referendum will be three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current bond and interest fund rate is 56 cents per $100. Next year's budget calls for the rate to drop to 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation without the referendum. If the referendum is passed, the rate will rise to 50 cents per $100 — still below the current rate.

No date has been set for work to begin if the referendum is passed. James Ervin, district superintendent, has said the architect would require several months to prepare the necessary drawings and award contracts.

The majority of the work is to be done during the summer when the schools are closed. Some work will take place during the normal school year, but the schools will remain open for regular classes. The school year work would have little or no disruption of classes, according to the architect.

THE MOST VOCAL objection to the referendum has come from Joseph Stecker, 1602 Willow Ln., Mount Prospect. He contends Grove Junior High School is "short-changed" in the proposed remodeling and says the overall plans call for unnecessary and expensive work.

Originally, Stecker said the referendum should be passed, but recommended that the school board should change the plans before beginning work.

He said yesterday he now would like the referendum defeated because no member of the school board has considered changing the plans. Stecker said the board should develop new plans and then submit them for a new referendum.

Stecker was vice chairman of a citizens' committee that studied the district's junior high schools more than two years ago. He was primarily responsible for the committee's recommendation that Grove and Dempster junior high schools be remodeled to bring them up to the standards of the district's other, newer junior high schools.

Stecker has said the district went beyond the committee's recommendation in the proposed remodeling plans.

IN A PREPARED statement, Stecker listed five specific objections to the remodeling plans:

—An addition is planned for Dempster Junior High School, although enrollment will decline with the opening of Friendship Junior High. He contends Dempster will have empty classrooms.

—Shop classrooms at Grove will be 17 per cent smaller than the same areas at Dempster.

— Grove will lose one classroom in the remodeling.

—No provisions have been made for special education classrooms at Grove, while Dempster will have 960 square feet for such classes.

—Grove is forced to have three children using lockers designed for two children; and no provisions for additional lockers are included in the plans.

Jeffrey Schultz new Eagle Scout

Jeffrey Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Schultz, 602 E. Council Tr., Mount Prospect, was presented recently with the Eagle rank, Scouting's highest award.

Schultz, a sophomore at Prospect High School, has been active in Cub Scouts and Boy Scout Troop 154, serving as patrol leader, senior patrol leader and instructor.

For his Eagle Service project, he taught handicapped children to swim at the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

At ceremonies Monday evening, Troop 154 also presented the Tenderfoot rank to John Nelson, Rodger Kruse, Glenn Zastro and Scott Stevens. The Life rank was earned by Paul Diekhoff, Jim Parsons, Bill Goffinski and Len Jacobs.

Troop 154 is sponsored by the Lions Park School PTA.

Scouting news

TWENTY GIRL Scouts from Troop 597 recently took a three-day trip to Milwaukee. The girls toured the Schlitz Brewery and the Performing Art Center in addition to seeing a play "Sticks and Stones."

Village seeks to purchase Central School

Mount Prospect will begin negotiations soon to buy the Central School property.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley has been told to contact Alexander Magnus, spokesman for the land trust owners. An appraisal of the two-story brick building and 2.59-acre site was delivered Tuesday.

Eppley yesterday said he did not know if he could really negotiate "in good faith" since the village board has not instructed him on how he should negotiate and to what amount. He said the appraisal was a starting point but the board will have to give him further instructions at Tuesday's special board meeting.

No formal board authorization for negotiation was given Eppley this week. After the meeting, Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he had meant to raise the issue but forgot it since the item was not on the agenda. He did say Eppley could proceed, however.

THE VILLAGE board has been considering a renovation of the existing school building into facilities for municipal offices, senior citizen use or library use or some combination of the three. The board last Saturday visited the Glen Ellyn Civic Center, which is a converted junior high school building.

In 1969, Central School property was sold for $410,111 to a land trust, then believed to have been headed by Magnus. The village was offered first option to buy the property by the School Dist. 57 board, but the village board refused to buy the site.

Trustee Donald B. Furst has urged the village to buy the site now, although he opposed the suggested 1969 purchase. He has estimated that it would cost $500,000 for the land and $200,000 to renovate the building. The appraisal may have come in higher than $500,000, however. Teichert refused to make public the appraisal.

Teichert raps harassment by citizens' group

in approving the Colony project and its variations was arbitrary and unreasonable . . . The public hearings and village board meetings held in connection with the Colony project were not conducive to free and open discussions since opponents of said Colony project were embarrassed, intimidated, harangued and harassed by the mayor and certain members of the village board."

Teichert denied the charges made in the preamble and said he was withdrawing the petitions from consideration. He said letters to all who signed the petitions would be sent out. The letters would recap the preamble and ask if persons still wished to have their names on the petition and preamble. The petitions will be reconsidered, he said, at the June 19 village board meeting.

Palatine could profit from building stadium for hockey

by JULIA BAUER
A news analysis

When it was learned yesterday that Palatine officials are considering buying land and building a professional sports stadium on Northwest Highway, the big question was why.

Publicly-owned sports stadiums are springing up around the country, and they generally have one thing in common: they're successful.

And success to the government that runs such a stadium means a healthy income from ticket sales, concessions and rentals. Such income is far greater than the government would get from property taxes on a privately-run stadium built on the same property.

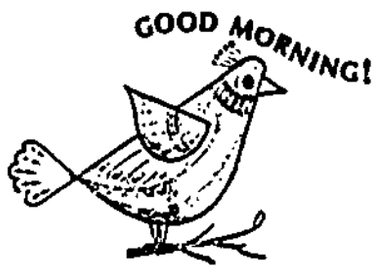

Walter and Jordan Kaiser, part owners of the Chicago Cougar professional hockey team, have been eyeing a 40-acre site just north of Arlington Park Race Track in Palatine for more than a year. Last month, the Kaisers approached Palatine village officials, asking them if they would be interested in purchasing the site already owned by the Kaisers, northeast of the Northwest Highway-Rte. 53 intersection.

The Kaisers have been planning to move the Cougars to a new stadium in the Northwest suburbs for months. The Palatine location, near an ice rink and tennis facility already owned by the Kaisers, is accessible from both the Rte. 53 freeway and the Chicago and North Western Ry. station at Arlington Park Race Track, across the street from the site.

The proposed stadium would cost between $20 million and $25 million, with an 18,000-seat capacity. The Cougars now play in the International Amphitheater, where the lease expires in two years. It is expected to take almost two years to build the stadium.

All discussions so far have been behind

Weedsville

There're lots of lots with weeds topping the village's 12-inch limit

by JOE SWICKARD

The weeds of Arlington Heights appear to be in firm control of the vacant lots throughout the village.

The Herald surveyed several sections of town and found more than 30 lots with weeds topping the 12-inch limit set by village ordinance.

Frank Charlton, village health director, admitted the situation was serious, but said the village had yet to cut a single lot because the person with the cutting contract cannot be found.

According to Charlton, the village has more than 90 complaints in some stage of progress. Of these, seven lots have been cleared by the owners, 71 have been verified and owners notified with a 10-day cutting order, and 12 are awaiting attention by the missing cutter.

The control procedure outlined by Charlton is an involved procedd that could possibly result with the weeds still standing when autumn arrives.

CHARLTON SAID the village usually acts as the result of a neighbor's complaint. An inspector is then dispatched to verify if the weeds are over the foot limit.

The lot is then located on the appropriate township tax roll to determine the owner. Often, the ownership is hidden through a bank trust, Charlton said.

These trusts can be forced to reveal the true owner, but this can be time consuming.

Charlton said many times when the supposed owner is contacted, he claims to have sold the lot to another party, also covered through a trust.

One lot has changed hands three times since last summer.

The problem arises, along with the weeds, because the village will not assign the cutting until after a ten-day grace period following the owners receipt of a registered letter informing him of the violation.

CONCEIVABLY A lot could go uncut if it has been sold often enough through various trusts.

Charlton estimated that a quarter to a third of all vacant lots in the village change hands every year.

The weed problem this year "is the worst I've ever seen," Charlton said.

The weeds shot up "almost overnight" because of the record rains followed by a period of warm days, he said.

The village has contracted with two private parties for weed control this summer, but as yet not a weed has been trimmed.

A Rolling Meadows man was granted the trimming concession for southern Arlington Heights. However, he cannot be located.

"HE CAME IN here about two weeks ago and asked if there was any work for him," Charlton said. "We told him to come back next week when we had enough to make it worth his while. We have 12 lots ready for him, but he left town. His neighbors said he went to Detroit, but we can't find him."

Coughron Landscapers of Wheeling has the northern portion of the village, but they haven't cut a weed yet either. Charlton said Coughron was waiting for schools to begin summer vacation before hiring the necessary help.

The village lets the contracts at a rate of $25 an hour.

The village forestry department has a tractor fitted for weed-cutting on village property, but Irwin Page, village forester, reports the machine is being repaired now.

The forester's tractor was used in emergency cutting situations last year when weeds on some lots were presenting a health hazard from pollen to asthma sufferers.

CHARLTON SAID he opposed "philosophically" to having the village cut the weeds.

"I think it's wrong for government to be doing what the private property owner should be doing in the first place. Our way may take time, but we do eventually catch up with everyone and get our costs back," Charlton said.

Last year, the department spent about $3,000 on cutting vacant lots. All but $800 was recovered. The remainder will be collected through liens placed on the property.

All liens must be paid, before a clear title transfer can occur.

Charlton also cited the cost of equipment as another factor keeping the village out of the weed-cutting business.

A TRACTOR, with rotary cutter and protective devices is priced about $11,000, Charlton said.

Kenning said the machinery was only part of the expense.

"If you've taken a look at some of the lots, especially the ones in industrial areas, you'd be amazed at what is in there. A steel rod can go right through a tire or the engine. You really need a driver and a man to walk out in front to keep an eye out for this debris," he said.

Charlton summed it up: "The situation is very bad."

Return with us now to those thrilling days of yesteryear . . .

THE WEEDS just look higher than the house in the background. But they may be by the time the village gets around to cutting them. More than 90 vacant lots are violating the village weed control ordinance. But one cutting contractor cannot be found and the other is awaiting summer help from college students.

School board confident referendum will be OKd

by FRED GACA

Members of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school board are confident that Saturday's $1.25 million bond issue referendum to remodel the two oldest junior high schools in the district will pass.

The 16 elementary schools in the district will be used as polling places and will be open from noon to 7 p.m.

Remodeling would be done at Grove Junior High School in Elk Grove Village and Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

If passed, the referendum would provide funds to replace heating and ventilating systems at both schools, relocate classrooms, improve learning centers and build small additions to each school.

TOTAL COST of the remodeling is divided, with $585,000 for Grove Junior High School and $665,000 for Dempster Junior High School.

According to school district figures, the tax rate increase for the referendum will be three cents per $100 assessed valuation. The current bond and interest fund rate is 56 cents per $100. Next year's budget calls for the rate to drop to 47 cents per $100 assessed valuation without the referendum. If the referendum is passed, the rate will rise to 50 cents per $100 — still below the current rate.

No date has been set for work to begin if the referendum is passed. James Ervin, district superintendent, has said the architect would require several months to prepare the necessary drawings and award contracts.

The majority of the work is to be done during the summer when the schools are closed. Some work will take place during the normal school year, but the schools will remain open for regular classes. The school year work would have little or no disruption of classes, according to the architect.

THE MOST VOCAL objection to the referendum has come from Joseph Stecker, 1602 Willow Ln., Mount Prospect. He contends Grove Junior High School is "short-changed" in the proposed remodeling and says the overall plans call for unnecessary and expensive work.

Originally, Stecker said the referendum should be passed, but recommended that the school board should change the plans before beginning work.

He said yesterday he now would like the referendum defeated because no member of the school board has considered changing the plans. Stecker said the board should develop new plans and then submit them for a new referendum.

Stecker was vice chairman of a citizens' committee that studied the district's junior high schools more than two years ago. He was primarily responsible for the committee's recommendation that Grove and Dempster junior high schools be remodeled to bring them up to the standards of the district's other, newer junior high schools.

Stecker has said the district went beyond the committee's recommendation in the proposed remodeling plans.

IN A PREPARED statement, Stecker listed five specific objections to the remodeling plans:

—An addition is planned for Dempster Junior High School, although enrollment will decline with the opening of Friendship Junior High. He contends Dempster will have empty classrooms.

—Shop classrooms at Grove will be 17 per cent smaller than the same areas at Dempster.

— Grove will lose one classroom in the remodeling.

—No provisions have been made for special education classrooms at Grove, while Dempster will have 960 square feet for such classes.

—Grove is forced to have three children using lockers designed for two children; and no provisions for additional lockers are included in the plans.

BUILDING PRINCIPALS at Grove and Dempster junior high schools refuted Stecker's contentions.

Thomas Powers, Dempster principal, said the addition to the school will be used for office space and arts rooms. He said the projected enrollment for the school through 1977 is an estimated 1,018 students.

"At no time will there be any empty classrooms in the school," said Powers.

The enrollment projections were made by a citizens' committee that studied enrollment trends in the district last fall.

Al Stone, principal at Grove Junior High School, said the existing shop classrooms at the school are in better condition than those at Dempster. He said the proposed remodeling plans make maximum use of the shop areas within the limitations of the building's structure.

THE "LOST CLASSROOM" at Grove, according to Stone, is a small room used for remedial training. The area will be converted to a faculty room.

The remedial training "will be more than made up" in two seminar rooms planned for the school's learning center, according to Stone.

Special education at Grove operates in a different manner than at Dempster, said Stone. He said two special education teachers at the school do most of their work in the regular classrooms, assisting the regular teachers. When special education teachers at Grove need to work directly with students, they are only dealing with one to three students at a time and the work can be done in small office space.

Stone said some students are forced to share three to a locker, but said the enrollment is expected to decline at the school and within a year or two, students will be sharing two to a locker.

Since the schools were first opened, Grove has had four additions and Dempster has had five additions. School officials have said the additions have eliminated the development of any comprehensive educational programs.

Allen Sparks, school board president, has said the district does not have the funds to do all the remodeling that needs to be done. If the referendum fails to pass, he said the district may attempt another one before the summer of 1974.

SPURTS OF GOOD weather yesterday moved local youths to song as the sun shone and temperatures reached into the 70s. People who find the combination a rarity because of frequent rain during the past year are learning to make the most of sunny moments when they occur.

Schools seeking parents' responses on student goals

Arlington Heights School Dist. 25 still is seeking from parents further responses and comments on the 14 student goals developed by its steering committee.

The committee, consisting of four administrators, teachers and residents, listed goals that were developed in individual schools by teachers, principals, members of the PTA and by the committee itself.

The goals involved the intellectual, social and academic phases of learning. They represent the first part of a new program for state recognition and supervision of schools adopted by Michael Bakalis, state school superintendent.

The district had sent out 220 questionnaires earlier this year to a random sample of parents in order to get a broader community reaction. Parents were asked how they felt the district was achieving each goal by indicating one of the following levels of performance: 1. The district seems to be meeting this goal. 2. This goal needs more emphasis. 3. This goal needs less emphasis and 4. Insufficient information to judge.

PARENTS WERE also asked to choose the three most important and the three least important goals.

"We are still interested, however, in seeking further responses and ideas," said Donald Strong, Superintendent of School Dist. 25. "The steering committee is continually working and evaluating. The district would welcome a letter or other communication."

Parents who have comments and ideas, or wish to be informed of the details of the questionnaire, should call or write Donald S. Monroe, director of administration and planning, School Dist. 25, Arlington Heights.

Strong said the results of the questionnaires showed that parents "wanted more of something. They showed a high interest in education for the most part," he said. "Very few people wanted less emphasis on anything and most wanted more emphasis on something."

There was a wide divergence on which of the 14 goals the individuals thought had most priority, according to Strong. "In general, it probably indicates that together the goals reasonably well reflect the overall priorities of the community."

closed doors. An initial meeting between Kaiser and Palatine board members resulted in Village Mgr. Berton Braun investigating ways that the village could finance the project. He and Village Atty. Bradley Glass will be looking into the legal, policy and local impacts of the village buying the land and possibly constructing the stadium itself.

"We'll make sure that it's mutually beneficial to both the Kaisers and the village," Village Pres. Wendell Jones said yesterday. Two more closed sessions are planned in the next 10 days. On June 14, village trustees will meet to rehash the discussion of last Tuesday, then on June 18, Jones and the rest of the board will talk again with the Kaisers. Between now and then, the village will "be doing its homework," Jones said.

Palatine has an impressive lineup of alternatives if it does plunge into the sports arena business. Three different sports centers in this county all house professional hockey teams, and each has a different way of running its arena.

City officials in Bloomington, Richfield, and Minneapolis, Minn., allied in the early 1950's to buy a large site in Bloomington and convert it into a baseball field and parking lot. That move was a successful effort to lure the Washington Senators to Minnesota. They're now the Minnesota Twins.

THEN SIX years ago, the three-town commission decided to get football and hockey into the act. Since the cities already owned enough land for the second structure, they allowed a private corporation to build the ice facility at the other end of the parking lot for the Minnesota North Stars.

For the corporation, the big drawback to building on public land was that it couldn't mortgage any of the land to finance the construction of the $6 million building, according to stadium controller Orrin Wichelmann.

The towns receive no rent from the building. But each month, Bloomington gets credited for a certain percentage of the income on events in the arena. When the village's "account" totals the corporation's cost of building the rink, the structure will become village property.

"We expect that it will take 22 to 24 years before we reach that amount," Wichelmann said yesterday.

The arrangement with three different municipalities hasn't been all rosy. Minneapolis was included in the original 1950's land purchase because Bloomington and Richfield weren't big enough to float revenue bonds by themselves to finance the project.

NOW BLOOMINGTON is reaping the benefits of having the facility in its town limits. Besides the extra business coming to the area, Bloomington also has levied a three per cent admission tax on the stadium tickets.

The Buffalo, N. Y., Municipal Auditorium is a relative granddaddy to other public stadiums in the country. Built in 1940 under the Work Projects Administration program, the original facility cost $2,650,000. Two years ago, an expansion of the building cost $10 million, paid by general municipal bonds, according to Director Joseph Figliola.

The seven-acre Buffalo site has little room for expansion. The National Hockey League team, the Buffalo Sabres, has a 20-year lease on the auditorium, and the city gets a graduated percentage of ticket sales: for the first ten years, they get 6 per cent, the next seven years brings 7½ per cent of the gate, and during the last seven years of the lease, the city gets 10 per cent of the gate.

"The basic question is whether private organizations can afford to build and pay for an auditorium. It's very difficult unless the organization owns the franchise," Figliola said.

A DIFFERENT kind of leasing arrangement is being set up by Erie County, where a new stadium to house the Buffalo Bills professional football team is scheduled to open in August.

There, the county owns the land and constructed the stadium. But when the stadium is done, the responsibility of operating, managing and maintaining the stadium will fall into the lap of Bills management, on a 40-year lease. During the years of the lease, the county will get either 10 per cent of the ticket sales, or $500,000 a year, whichever is higher. The $500,000 each year, at the end of the 40-year lease period, will total the $20 million the county spent to build the stadium. As in most public-professional sport stadiums, proceeds from the concession sales are split between the team and the stadium owners.
